Steel's Top 5 Plunge Into Contract Bargaining

Pittsburgh, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Nation's five biggest steel producers plunged into new contract bargaining with the CIO United Steel Workers today in an effort to prevent a Nation-wide strike.

No decisions were announced. More confabs were scheduled for Monday.

Negotiators are working against a strike set to begin October 1 unless what the union calls "mutually satisfactory agreements" are reached on pensions and insurance programs.

Tension mixed with uncertainty over the situation is blamed for wildcat walkouts which have closed two Pittsburgh steel plants and idled 2300 workers.

At Indiana Harbor, Ind., Inland Steel Co. executives sat down with union negotiators. Similar meetings were held at Pittsburgh, New York and Cleveland.

Most Closely Watched

Most closely watched conference, however, is the discussion between Union Chieftain Philip Murray and Vice President John A. Stephens of the United States Steel Corporation, world's biggest steelmaker.

The union sent other bargaining teams to New York to dicker with Bethlehem Steel Corp. and to Cleveland for talks with Republic Steel Corp. Sessions with Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., also are being held in Pittsburgh.

The big issue to be resolved in all sessions is whether employers bear the entire costs of pension and social insurance.

The union insists they should. The companies contend workers ought to contribute part of the expense.

A presidential board recommended company-financed insurance and pensions. That is the basis for present bargaining sessions.

Recessing Until Monday

After a two-hour meeting between United States Steel and the union, Murray said the conference would recess until Monday at 9:30 a. m.

Murray said the large negotiating teams of about 35 men each will be reduced for next week's sessions.

Other contract talks between the union and Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. and Crucible Steel Co. likewise adjourned until Monday with all parties announcing today's sessions were uneventful.

The three steel companies and the union all held their meetings on the seventeenth floor of a downtown hotel. Nearly a quarter-million steelworkers are involved in the three sets of negotiations.

A total of 10 firms have scheduled.

Police Say Fish May Have Pulled Angler to Death

A fisherman was drowned last night after he apparently fell in his excitement or was yanked by a fish into the Tidal Basin near the 14th st. nw. overpass.

Moses Simpkins, 30, of 1508 P st. nw., according to a companion who identified his body, was fishing on a ledge overlooking the water. About 7:40 p. m. he was seen to vanish in the basin.

When Harbor Police recovered his body, about 8:20 p. m., they dragged in his rod and line with a "good-sized" catfish. The catfish, officers said, was so violent it ripped the reel off the rod in a desperate effort to escape. Police theorized that Simpkins may have been dozing, and the fish's bite was enough to pull him to his death.

Sunk off Florida

Silver Ingots Found in Hulk Of Galleon

Miami, Sept. 23 (AP).—An undisclosed number of solid-silver bars have been recovered from a sunken Spanish galleon off the Florida Keys.

The Smithsonian Institution in Washington confirmed the find today and announced it had bought one of the ingots of solid silver weighing 70 pounds.

Dr. Alexander Wetmore, secretary of the Institution, said the bar had been bought from Charles M. Brookfield, Florida representative of the National Audubon Society, and that it was "more than 200 years old."

The find was made by Arthur McKee city recreation director of Homestead, Fla., last Memorial Day while pursuing his hobby of making underwater pictures.

McKee, who has searched the Keys for nine years, said the ship was inside a reef and "more than 3 miles from land."

He would not divulge the exact location, but said the wreckage lies in less than 60 feet of water.

"The ship carried at least six guns we can see," McKee said.

"I took pictures of the cannon and then came across some bulk and tried to move it. I got all excited and called to my crew to send down a line.

"The silver ingots were lying in b llast," he said.

At the scene at the time were Brookfield, Charles G. Woodbury, vice president of the National Parks Association, Washington, Mason L. Armstrong and Robert E. Hiller, both of Homestead.

McKee did not disclose how many ingots had been recovered but exhibited two, one weighing 60 pounds and another 80 pounds. The institution also offered to buy another bar, but McKee refused.

The institution offered $1000, but Brookfield said the ingot was worth far more as an historical piece.

The vessel was not identified, McKee said, except that it was a Spanish craft and some of the wreckage bore Spanish markings similar to those on the silver ingots.

Attlee Regime Going to Mat On Pound Cut

London, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Clement Attlee's Labor government decided today to challenge the Conservative Party on its opposition to devaluation and ask for a vote of confidence next week in Parliament.

The Labor Party has a large majority in the House of Commons, but if it is defeated the government will have to resign and new elections be held.

The government will ask approval of its devaluation policy—tantamount to a motion for a vote of confidence. The debate is expected to last three days.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps, Attlee, Board of Trade President Harold Wilson and Minister of Health Aneurin Bevan will defend the government. Winston Churchill, Anthony Eden, Oliver Stanley and Oliver Lyttelton will speak for the Conservatives.

The threat of inflation probably will be a potent weapon for the Conservatives. There have been some price increases, all with government approval and bread and flour were expected to go up immediately, bread about 20 percent.

The government got a temporary respite on the labor front when the last 1500 railway workers on a go-slow strike in London voted to resume normal work today.

8 Killed in B-29 Crash

Tokyo (Saturday) Sept. 24 (AP).—A Superfortress crashed last night on a Guam runway when its engines failed on a takeoff, killing eight men and injuring six, the Far East Air Force said today. Names of the victims were withheld until relatives are notified.

Bomb Caused Plane Crash Killing 23

Quebec City, Quebec, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—A 41-year-old mother confessed today that she arranged to put a home-made bomb aboard an airliner that exploded in flight, killing 23 persons. Police immediately arrested J. A. Guay, her alleged lover, who they charged master-minded the explosion in order to kill his wife, who was one of the passengers.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police Inspector Rene Belec said Mrs. Marie Pitre had signed a confession admitting she had a parcel containing the bomb placed aboard the plane that crashed September 9, killing all aboard, including three New York industrialists.

They said she claimed she didn't know the parcel contained a bomb, but that she had taken it to the Quebec airport at the request of Guay, a Quebec city jeweler and her alleged lover.

Guay's 29-year-old wife, Simard, was one of the victims of the plane crash—third worst in Canadian history.

Inspector Belec said Guay and his wife had had "domestic difficulties" and had been living apart several weeks before reaching an apparent reconciliation shortly before the crash.

Belec said the crash apparently was engineered partly as the result of a "love triangle" involving Mrs. Pitre, Guay and his wife, and partly to obtain $10,000 worth of insurance, which Mrs. Guay and her husband bought before she boarded the doomed plane en route to Baie Comeau, Quebec. The insurance, which cost 50 cents, named Guay as beneficiary.

Immediately after the crash, Guay told reporters:

"I kissed her (his wife) when she

Mrs. Gould Says Breakup Came Over Dower Rights

Fleischmanns, N. Y., Sept. 23. (AP)—Mrs. Silvia Gould, heiress to the Jay Gould fortune, said tonight she canceled her engagement to Lieut. Comdr. Ernest Hoefer, jr., United States Navy, because he refused to sign away his dower rights to her estate.

Yesterday, newspapers said the scheduled wedding Saturday was called off because of Hoefer's refusal to give up his Navy career and become a businessman in New York.

The couple was to have been married at Furlough Lodge, the Gould family estate near here.

The twice-married Mrs. Gould said "those earlier reports are entirely erroneous. I had every intention of living with him on any assignment he had."

"He refused to sign a prenuptial dower rights agreement, relinquishing those rights in my estate. And my two children must be protected," she said.

Comdr. Hoefer, a native of Sheboygan, Wis., is a Harvard and Annapolis graduate, now attending a Navy school in Washington.

Girl, 20, Kills Father After His Cancer Operation

Stamford, Conn., Sept. 25 (AP).—A police sergeant, operated upon for cancer, was shot and fatally wounded in Stamford Hospital tonight by his daughter, Police Chief John B. Brennan reported.

The chief said the daughter "didn't want him to suffer."

The sergeant, Carl Paight, 50, was operated upon for cancer this morning, the chief said, and his daughter, Carol, about 20, shot him with his service revolver while visiting him at the hospital tonight.

Sergeant Paight, a veteran of 28 years in the department, died 7 hours later. The daughter collapsed.

Payroll Bandits Get $4000 In Daring Holdup on Street

Four men, apparently well informed and waiting, robbed a Washington bricklaying contractor of $4000 in payroll money yesterday in Silver Spring and escaped.

More than 20 police cars from the area, alerted by radio, established roadblocks immediately but failed to foil the getaway.

The victim was Thomas Pignatoro, 25, of 764 Princeton pl. nw., a World War II veteran whose contracting office is at 908 14th st. nw.

He slowed down at the intersection of Franklin and Flower aves. at 4:45 p. m., he told police, when another car stopped near his. The driver, he said, shouted to ask directions.

When he began to reply, Pignatoro said, a man of about 40, wearing a goatee, left the auto and approached him.

The man pointed a gun at him. Pignatoro said, and demanded his money. The contractor took a bag with the $4000 from under a blanket on the front seat. He said the bandit missed an envelope in his pocket containing $600.

After the robbery, Pignatoro

Truman Reveals Red A-Blast; No Widespread Alarm Felt; Stockpiling May Be Speeded

Summary Of Reports On A-Blast

THE INEVITABLE news that Russia had achieved an atomic explosion was made public yesterday by President Truman. (Page 1, Column 8).

THIS DISCLOSURE resulted in much speculation and comment, but there were no developments tending to indicate any changes in American foreign policy. (Page 1, Col. 5).

SECRETARY ACHESON emphasized that America always had assumed Russia sometime soon would be able to develop an atomic bomb, had formulated policy on that basis, and that yesterday's news would mean no switch in policy. (Page 3, Column 5.)

MILITARY PLANNING in the United States will be little affected except possibly to speed research. (Page 1, Column 6.)

CONGRESSMEN generally were unaware of the news until the President made it public. The man-in-the-street took the development philosophically. (Page 1, Column 4.)

ONE IMMEDIATE QUESTION is the possible revision of the policies of the Western Powers. The Washington Post's editors discuss two steps they think the free world ought to take in an editorial on Page 6.

Vishinsky Calls For Peace Pact Among Big 5

New York, Sept. 23 (AP).—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky called for a peace pact among the Big Five powers today.

The other big powers were immediately skeptical of Russian sincerity.

American Delegate Warren R. Austin issued a two-sentence statement to the press: "It is the same propaganda as before. As for the proposal for a five-power pact, I must have more information of its substance before commenting."

Vishinsky's major policy speech for Russia in the United Nations Assembly also made no mention of Secretary of State Dean Acheson's comment that Mr. Truman's disclosure would bring no change in American policy.

The Russian omitted all reference to the Tito-Stalin feud and he refused to be drawn into a quarrel with the Nationalist Chi-

U. S. Won't Halt Present Policy Of Developing Peaceful Uses

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

American defense chiefs will consider whether to speed up the stockpiling of atomic bombs.

A Defense Department spokesman said yesterday that there would be no immediate change in the present policy of developing the peaceful uses of atomic energy along with the stockpiling.

But a "re-examination" of the policy, he said, was clearly in order. His reason was that "the nation where the explosion took place" did not have a very good record of international cooperation.

Mostly Into Bomb Making

So far the overwhelming proportion of American atomic effort is known to have gone into the making of bombs. In recent months, however, there has been a sharp increase in the research and the money devoted to the peacetime applications of atomic power.

The defense spokesman's guarded statement was a hint, at least, that this increase might have to be checked and perhaps reversed.

The blast that blew up America's monopoly of the atomic bomb was expected yesterday to have these additional results:

1. New efforts to get an international control agreement in the United Nations—if only to discover whether the Soviet attitude toward control has changed;

2. The quickest possible revival of the wartime sharing of atomic information among the United States, Britain and Canada—if necessary, by asking Congress at this session to amend the present Atomic Energy Act; and

3. Full speed ahead with the military, economic and moral rebuilding of western Europe and the entire non-Communist world.

More Hope Than Expectation

To these expected results, officials added still another which they admitted was more of a hope than an expectation.

It was the ending, at long last, of uninformed talk about the American monopoly, which the Government always knew was temporary.

One high official said, a little ruefully, that he wished Winston Churchill had never made his now-famous statement in Boston last spring: "It is certain that Europe would have been communized and London under bombardment some time ago but for the deterrent of the atomic bomb in the hands of the United States."

The same official, an expert on Russia, maintained that the men of the Kremlin were not suicidal adventurers like Hitler; they were

President's Announcement Does Not Say Reds Have Bomb

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday announced the United States has evidence that in recent weeks an "atomic explosion" occurred in the Soviet Union.

The momentous news, which seemingly marked the end of America's monopoly of the atomic bomb, was given out in a formal statement at the White House while Mr. Truman was meeting with the Cabinet.

It was received on Capitol Hill, at the Pentagon and elsewhere in Washington as a fulfillment of the inevitable. There was disappointment and shock, some excitement, but no widespread alarm.

The atomic explosion in Russia came earlier than American experts had thought possible. In recent months these experts had fixed 1950 as the earliest Russia might be expected to produce such an explosion.

"We Have Evidence"

Mr. Truman in his statement did not say Russia had developed an atomic bomb.

"We have evidence," his statement said, "that within recent weeks an atomic explosion occurred in the U.S.S.R."

This studied language was used, it was clear, because Mr. Truman was not in a position to be more specific. The "evidence" to which he referred, it was reliably reported, came from instruments that recorded the blast somewhere in the sprawling vastness of Russia.

High officials said there was no doubt it was an "atomic explosion." If the evidence were not conclusive, they said, Mr. Truman would not have issued his statement.

They warned it would be unwise to assume there had been an accident, such as the blowing up of an experimental atomic pile.

Recalls Earlier Statements

They themselves assumed the Russians had exploded an experimental bomb, as the United States did at Alamogordo, N. Mex., in July, 1945.

Mr. Truman obviously shared this view. In his statement yesterday he recalled what he had said on October 3, 1945—that there was substantial agreement "that foreign research can come abreast of our present theoretical knowledge in time."

He recalled, too, that in a declaration made by himself and the Prime Ministers of Britain and Canada on November 15, 1945, "it was emphasized that no single nation could in fact have a monopoly of atomic weapons."

Germans' Role Stressed

Well-posted officials here stressed the fact that the United States had a four-year head start over the Russians. They made these points:

That the Rusisans so far probably have produced no more than one bomb.

That the fact they can make one experimental bomb does not necessarily mean they can make many such bombs.

That, even if they could, they probably could not make them faster than the United States unless they have more raw materials than this country.

Soviet A-Blast Fails to Jolt Pentagon

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Any major change in United States military policy as a result of Russian development of an atomic explosive is unlikely, it was learned yesterday.

In fact the news was received with surprising calmness at the Pentagon and the Navy Building. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, expressed interest when informed of President Truman's announcement and then went out to play golf.

Later he issued a statement saying:

"The calmer the American people take this the better.

"We have anticipated it for four years and it calls for no change in our basic defense plan."

Told Not to Talk

Officials of the defense establishment talked guardedly and, in some cases, said they had been instructed "on the highest level" not to talk at all. However, a defense spokesman did give this very meager information:

1. The United States "has a very good idea" whether the explosion occurred on land or over water but won't say which.

2. So far as the Defense Department knows this was the first atomic explosion in Russia.

3. Very definitely Russian development of atomic fission was not based on information stolen in the United States.

It was speculated that the principal research project to be affected would be development of a means of preventing delivery of an atomic bomb, probably in the Grave Senate Hears News Of Explosion

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday received its first news of the Russian atomic explosion with grave but "we knew it was coming" calm.

Calls for renewed efforts for international controls, a Truman-Stalin meeting and direct appeals to the "Russian people" figured in the first flurry of debate.

Senators were told that decisions of "unsurpassed gravity and fatefulness" must be reached, requiring "the highest level of our national intelligence."

Some suggested stern alternatives if international control moves should fail.

Warn Against Panic

Senate atomic spokesmen took the floor to warn against either panic or hysteria, but there was apparently little need to do so.

There was stoic acceptance of the stunning, if inevitable, news even in the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee, which was told of it first.

Only one Senator had advance information, held the secret overnight.

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), chairman of the joint atomic group, was called to the White House at 3:15 p. m. Thursday and was told about it.

Committeemen Summoned

McMahon told his secret to no one, but summoned a restricted meeting of his joint committee at 10:30 a. m. yesterday. There his colleagues heard it for the first time

News of the Russian atomic explosion hit 13th and F sts. nw. yesterday morning with an impact that sobered and confused the public.

Men and women on the street recognized it was important news, but the reasons they gave for its significance varied from "Good God!" to "Thank God!"

Spontaneous reactions were shaded with disbelief, but little fear, as newsboys shouted "Russia has the A-bomb," although President Truman made no mention of a bomb in his dramatic announcement.

"Now that both countries have the bomb, maybe they can stop bluffing and get down to business," one man said.

"The scientists and the President have been telling us that the bomb could not be a secret forever—they were right, and that's all," many said.

Most felt the news was not encouraging, but, of more than 20 persons interviewed, only one expressed fear and only one felt it meant war.

U. S. Learned of Atom Blast Through 'Mechanical Means'

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

"Mechanical means" rather than espionage brought United States the news of the Russian atom explosion, it was learned here last night.

Nature of the detection, however, was a closely guarded secret, suggesting three possibilities:

1. Extremely sensitive earth shock recorders similar in principle to seismographs which detect earthquakes. Such instruments picked up the Bikini test blasts and even the initial atom bomb test explosion at Alamogordo, New Mexico, which preceded military use of the bombs against Japan.

2. Radiation detectors, capable of registering unnatural accumulations of radioactivity in the atmosphere. Such detection also requires careful study of air movements to trace the radioactivity's source.

3. Some new, top secret detecting device, the existence of which was neither confirmed nor denied

Belgrade Spotters Track Plane in Air Raid Drill

Belgrade, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—A Yugoslav air force plane was tracked for an hour over Belgrade by six searchlights tonight in what appeared to be the first searchlight air raid drill since the war.

No civilian alarm was sounded.

The plane droned over the city at a high altitude about 6 p. m. while the six searchlights followed it as it slowly circled the city.

A-Blast Is Linked To Cosmic Rays

Groves Says U.S. Expected Red A-Blast

New York, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Leslie R. Groves, one of the builders of the first atom bomb today said the United States has been preparing for some time for news Russia has found out how to make atoms explode.

Groves, retired Army lieutenant general and head of wartime atomic project, said there was no need for panic in President Truman's announcement.

"I thought about the announcement for a minute when I heard about it," he said. "Then I forgot about it. I'm not going to lose any sleep over it."

In fact, he said, he hadn't thought about it again until he was met by reporters at La Guardia Airport when he arrived here from Washington.

"I think if they have accomplished it (the bomb), they may have a difficult time," Groves said. "The question is not have they built one? But how good is that one, what is their attitude, can they catch up with us?

U. S. May Rush Stockpiling

cold and calculating opportunists, just as so many other Russian leaders were in the days of the Tsars.

In other words, he argued, the mere possession of the bomb would not lead them to launch a war which they were certain to lose, and which would bring frightful retaliation upon their own people.

Officials reminded questioners here, as retired Lieut. Gen. Leslie R. Groves did in New York yesterday, that the United States had a 4-year head start over Russia in the production of atomic bombs, and that the explosion of one experimental bomb did not mean Russia had a stockpile or anything like it.

For these and other reasons, they took the line that the explosion in Russia had not brought a new war nearer. They professed confidence that Russia would not start a war unless her leaders felt reasonably sure a war would be profitable.

They recalled that the original American plan for international control of atomic energy—the so-called Baruch Plan—had been based on the knowledge that the American monopoly could last only a few years.

Possession of the bomb may make the Russians more "arrogant" than before, one official said yesterday; or it may give them some of the same sobering responsibility that the United States showed after Hiroshima. The new approach to the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission, announced by President Truman yesterday, should at least give a clew.

Meanwhile, the executive branch of the Government was more than ever convinced yesterday of the need of restoring the American-British-Canadian partnership of wartime.

High officials of the three countries began negotiations on Tuesday in an effort to revive the old interchange of information, and to assure all three countries of dependable sources of uranium, the basic raw material of atomic energy.

When they met on Tuesday they knew about the Russian explosion, it was said yesterday, although their talks had been planned and scheduled beforehand. Certainly, an American negotiator said yesterday, the Russian explosion emphasizes the need for "the most rational possible" use of all the three countries' resources in the field of atomic energy.

London, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Scientific circles here speculated today that the reported atomic explosion in Russia might have been caused by experiments with cosmic rays—believed to be a far more potent source of energy than the uranium atom.

They said Peter Kapitza, Russia's top cosmic expert, was recalled from London in 1939 for a "visit" to his homeland. He has never returned.

Kapitza had been working with British cosmic researchers before his sudden recall.

Sources here said Kapitza was believed to be head of the "atom city" research center the Russians reportedly built behind the Ural Mountains.

Scientists here said Allied intelligence agents consider Kapitza so important they keep a constant check on his movements.

When it was rumored recently he had been imprisoned, intelligence officials said they "knew" he had attended a banquet the previous night.

French Army Reportedly Detected Soviet Blasts

Paris, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Reliable sources tonight said French army engineers and scientists recently detected three atomic explosions on the plains of central Russia near Tobogsk, 1150 miles east of Moscow.

The French observers reportedly used American-made instruments, furnished by the United States for atomic surveillance 10 months ago.

The sources said the West European defense staff "has kept a close watch on Russian progress in atomic investigation," and has been studying reports of the atomic explosions for some time.

The sensational weekly newspaper Samedi Soir reported July 25 the three explosions were detected July 10, leaving "no possible doubt" Russia had the atomic bomb.

Swede 'Doesn't Doubt' Reports of Explosion

Stockholm, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Capt. Bror von Veegesack, atomic energy specialist of the Swedish General Staff, said American scientists probably "discovered heavy concentration of radioactivity in air masses normally moving from Russia eastwards."

"There is no reason to doubt reports of a Russian atom blast," he added.

"Knowing what time it took the United States to make just a few bombs, Russia must be far from starting a full-fledged production.

"The mere performance of an atomic bomb explosion, however, must strengthen the Russian strategic position."

Canadians Say Spies Got Valuable A-Data

Ottawa, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—A Soviet spy ring in Canada obtained information that would have been "of considerable help" in atomic research, the Royal Commission Report on Espionage discloses.

Most important was the part of Dr. Allan Nunn Mayo, a British scientist sentenced to 10 years imprisonment for giving atomic secrets to Russia.

He was able to supply the spy ring with samples of uranium 235 and uranium 233 considered so important that an official of the Soviet Embassy flew to Moscow with them.

Red Paper in London Hints New Party Line

London, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—The London Daily Worker, Communist organ, tonight said the United States and Britain must negotiate for international atomic control "on the basis of the Soviet proposal to outlaw the bomb."

This was the first hint of the Communist Party line on President Truman's announcement of an atomic explosion in the Soviet Union.

The Worker's report said, "the ending of the American 'monopoly' was announced as long ago as November 6, 1947, by Mr. Molotov, who said that the secret of the atom bomb, hitherto the 'sole possession' of the United States, 'may be considered nonexistent.'"

Blast 'Heard' Mechanically

Accident Assumption Unwise

Disclosure that the Russian atomic explosion was uncovered by mechanical means came from two separate sources high in Government authority. Neither, however, would permit use of his name.

One State Department official said it would be "unwise to assume" the blast was an accident, such as the blowing up of an experimental atom pile. This was the nearest he would come to saying the explosion was that of a real atom bomb.

Such disclosure lends strength to the possibility the explosion was picked up on seismograph-type instruments, especially since Russia is well within range of many such devices in western Europe, in lands friendly to United States.

Radiation detectors might have been used, though if such was the case they have been perfected more fully than reported in general scientific circles. Three years ago newspapers carried stories of the airplane use of radiation detectors to measure radioactivity of a cloud mass over France, reported to have settled there three weeks after the Bikini atom bomb explosion tests.

Lends Credence to Theory

Some scientists last night pointed out that President Truman's omission of an exact time of the explosion lends credence to the possibility it was detected by radioactivity measuring devices. The radioactivity accumulations, they argued, might not settle for weeks and it would require further time to trace their source through study of atmospheric currents.

An unguarded answer by Sumner T. Pike, acting chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, yesterday emphasized the possibility that a new scientific instrument may have picked up the explosion.

Asked if he could name someone who could tell what instruments are available for detecting atomic explosions, he answered:

"Yes, I do, but the guy who told you would probably get shot."

Atomic Energy Commission officials in positions to know of current developments in detection techniques all refused to comment on the matter. They received "instructions" to "make no statement whatsoever," they told newspaper reporters.

Seismologists, who said the President's disclosure came to them as a complete surprise, all agreed that the detection means could well have been highly sensitive seismographs.

The Rev. Edward Powers, S. J., seismologist at Georgetown University's Observatory, stated that though no mystery explosion was recorded on his instruments the shocks could have been picked up in stations closer to Russia.

At Weston Observatory, Weston, Mass., where instruments recorded the Alamogordo test bomb explosion before use of the bombs at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Japan, the seismologists declared their instrument has not been in operation this summer.

Officials of the Harvard Observatory, Cambridge, said their seismographs have not picked up any shocks which could be suspected of atomic bomb origin in Russia. They pointed out, however, that a chain of West Coast seismograph stations all picked up the test explosions at Bikini, at distances far greater than European stations are from Russia.

Admittedly, they said, the scientists were prepared to look for deviations in recordings of their instruments during the test hours. But the same records could have been registered without advance notice, they said.

Stations Set Up in 1947

As to the extent of seismographic patrol of Russia, informed sources said that United States set up a chain of shock recording stations in Europe two years ago, ostensibly to make records of effects of the blasts used to blow up the German fortress island of Helgoland.

The line of stations was said to extend from Cuxhaven, Germany, to Florence, Italy. Equipment and personnel sent to the locations, the same sources pointed out, indicated the stations were not being set up on a short-term basis.

France's sensational Paris weekly, Samedi Soir, reported late in July that American seismographs had detected three atomic explosions in Russia, beginning July 10.

European meteorological stations not believed tied in to the chain of Americans stations, variously reported this summer of recording earth shocks apparently originating in Russia or Siberia. Any tie-in to atomic bomb blast origin at the times was met with skepticism of scientists.

Results Never Made Public

Prior to the Bikini atom tests, scientists publicly talked of the possibility of detecting airborne radiation at distances up to several thousand miles from the site of atom bomb explosions. Plans were then announced that the stratosphere would be explored with balloon-borne Geiger counters, which record radioactivity.

Results of such testing were never made public, nor has it been disclosed that such tests were actually made.

The mystery cloud of radioactive accumulations believed to have settled in France some three weeks after the Bikini test explosions was reported by scientists at the Puy du Dome mountain top observatory, in central France. The cloud, hovering about 20,000 feet up, was penetrated 20 times by airplanes equipped with special instruments to determine its composition.

At Great Altitude

Observatory scientists said then that the cloud, which they said would eventually destroy itself, had probably originated over Bikini, in the Pacific, and floated at great altitude to France.

Both radiation detection and seismographic devices are scarcely sensitive enough to record from great distances any explosion which might occur in an atomic pile, scientists generally agreed yesterday.

Such explosions would in no sense pack the same power as a real atom-bomb explosion, they said. They pointed out that production of fissionable material can be easily regulated so that any atom pile explosion, though it might kill people in the immediate neighborhood of the unit, would be but a puff in comparison to explosion of the finished product, the real atom bomb.

Text of Truman's Statement

Text of President Truman's statement announcing an atomic explosion recently in the Soviet Union:

I believe the American people to the fullest extent consistent with the national security are entitled to be informed of all developments in the field of atomic energy. That is my reason for making public the following information.

We have evidence that within recent weeks an atomic explosion occurred in the U.S.S.R.

Ever since atomic energy was first released by man, the eventual development of this new force by other nations was to be expected. This probability has always been taken into account by us.

Nearly four years ago I pointed out that "scientific opinion appears to be practically unanimous that the essential theoretical knowledge upon which the discovery is based is already widely known. There is also substantial agreement that foreign research can come abreast of our present theoretical knowledge in time."

And, in the three-nation declaration of the President of the United States and the Prime Ministers of the United Kingdom and of Canada, dated November 15, 1945, it was emphasized that no single nation could, in fact, have a monopoly of atomic weapons.

This recent development emphasizes once again, if indeed such emphasis were needed, the necessity for that truly effective and enforcable international control of atomic energy which this Government and the large majority of the members of the United Nations support.

Baruch Stresses Need Of International Control

New York, Sept. 23 (AP).—Bernard Baruch today said he agreed with President Truman that Russia's reported development of an atomic bomb emphasized the need for rigid international control of atomic energy.

Baruch, one of the Nation's "Elder Statesmen," formerly represented the United States on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

"I agree completely with the President," Baruch said, adding he believed the "President has never wavered in his attitude toward international control of atomic energy."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower: "I see no reason why a development that was anticipated years ago should cause any revolutionary change in our thinking or in our actions."

Grave Senate Hears News of Soviet A-Bomb

had himself publicly announced the development.

The committee proceeded immediately to the Senate and McMahon took the floor. He said the President had just made a statement of "transcendent importance" and read it to the Senate.

He said his committee will hold more meetings "after sufficient time for deliberation upon the implications, military and political, which this event brings about."

Urges Calm Consideration

Senator Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.), second ranking minority member of the committee, appealed for calm consideration of fateful decisions that must be made "without fear, without hysteria, and by repelling all thoughtless clamor."

Said Millikin: "I hope the national decisions which will have to be made, however they may be made, will express the highest level of our national intelligence, our finest instincts for the preservation of humanity, and that the execution of those decisions may be characterized by resolute, undeviating courage."

Senate Republican Whip Leverett Saltonstall (Mass.) said he could assure the Senate our military leaders have been planning for some time for "an emergency."

Speaking as a member of the Armed Services Committee, he told the Senate:

"I believe there will be no particular change in their minds . . . nor great surprise by the knowledge we have received this morning. We may have complete confidence in their proceeding with the defense and the security of our country in a way that will give all the greatest possible confidence."

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) criticized delayed release of the news. He said the information should have been given to the Senate before Thursday's vote. Cain argued the Senate had proceeded "in a vacuum" without all the facts and the news "undeniably would have changed what we did yesterday."

Statement Disputed

This was disputed by McMahon. McMahon said it may not have affected the vote in any way. He said the information reassured him that he had "wisely" voted for the arms bill.

Accounting for the delayed announcement, McMahon said the President "had to be definitely assured by his advisers as to the definiteness of the information before making an announcement of this kind and character."

Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Va.) proposed that we enter into direct negotiations with Russia in an effort to agree that neither nation will use the bomb "unless attacked by it."

Flanders said he proposed months ago that the United States make an unilateral declaration that we will not use the bomb unless it is used against us.

McMahon replied that the United States had "nothing whatsoever to be ashamed of in our past."

"We said to the world: 'Here it is. Let us make use of it together. All we ask are effective safeguards that it shall not be used to destroy us.'"

Later, Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) backed up the President's emphasis on "truly effective enforceable international control" of atomic energy. Lucas called for reconsideration of the subject in the United Nations.

"I know that our diplomats stand ready again to find a feasible plan," Lucas said. "The future of our civilization may hinge upon it."

Lucas denied, however, that the Soviet development "changes the fundamental pattern of world power."

"The United States has a four-year lead in the progressive utilization of atomic energy," he said. "Our scientists and our technologists will enable us to maintain our lead."

Would Control all Arms

Senators John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) and Frank P. Graham (D., N. C.) likewise urged renewed efforts for international controls. Sparkman called for control not only of A-bomb but of all weapons. Said Graham: "We must not give up hopes and efforts for such control."

Most Senators left with a terse "no comment" but Chairman McMahon held a brief press conference after the meeting of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee.

Dr J. Robert Oppenheimer, head of the AEC's general advisory committee, said merely: "I am very glad that we have the facts."

McMahon recalled to newsmen that he proposed in a Senate speech Thursday that President Truman invite Soviet Prime Minister Stalin to a meeting on the question of atomic controls in behalf of peace

"That suggestion is as good today as it was yesterday," he said.

He said that when Mr. Truman broke the news of the explosion to him Thursday it was "a shock, but not a surprise."

Effect on U. N. Efforts

A reporter asked if the development "will have any effect" on U. N. efforts to bring about atomic controls.

"It ought to have," said McMahon. "It has never been marked off the agenda of U. N. and cannot be as long as this question remains unsolved."

Then he issued a statement calling on the American people to do two things: "Avoid hysteria or panic" and "appreciate that the United States faces the most crucial dilemma of its history."

Saying the Kremlin "will bargain for universal peace in its own time and on its own terms—that is, if the Kremlin wants peace at all," McMahon's statement went on to say:

"We must alert the entire civilized world to the peril which the Kremlin policy involves. We must employ to the utmost every channel of diplomacy which yields the slightest hope of finding a way out of the impasse.

"I believe President Truman and the heads of Great Britain and France should demand the right to place the atomic case before the Russian people in direct radio talks. In his turn, Premier Stalin should present the Soviet case in direct radio communication with the American people and peoples of other nations . . ."

Critics Dispute View

Advocates of military custody of the bomb may seek reexamination of the act.

Senate proponents of the military assistance bill predicted the development would improve prospects of House-Senate conference approval of the full amount asked by the President, but some critics disputed this view.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.), who voted against the arms bill, told newsmen: "This development brings us right up against the reality of what our approach ought to be. You can't fight atomic energy with rocks and stones. It won't do any good to send a lot of old pistols and muskets to Europe."

Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), who also opposed the arms bill, told reporters he believes more than ever "that we should concentrate on our atomic development and better bombers rather than waste arms and money overseas."

House Takes News Of A-Blast Calmly

Top Speed

Soviet Bomb Work Pushed For 4 Years

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Members of the House yesterday received with sober concern President Truman's announcement of the "atomic explosion" in the Soviet Union.

Comment from Democrats and Republicans alike revolved chiefly about the increased need for international control of atomic energy, the effect on the arms aid program, and the development of measures of counterdefense.

Only one comment discounted the gravity of the announcement. House Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.), called the news a "scare story" and said it meant that "some new Administration request is going to be sent to the Hill."

Correct, Durham Says

But Representative Carl T. Durham (D., N. C.), vice chairman of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, who had attended a closed session with AEC Commissioners, scientists, the military liaison committee, and representatives of the State Department, said there was no question as to the correctness of the President's announcement.

Warning that there was no need for panic or hysteria, Durham said this Nation's atomic energy program is in good shape, and the very fact that the President was enabled to make such an announcement proved that American intelligence services were active and efficient.

"This," said Durham," is a very historic occasion, equalling in importance that historic day when this country first gave the news to the world that it had developed the A-bomb."

Must Have First Place

The American people, Durham asserted, must be prepared to sacrifice all sorts of otherwise desirable welfare programs on the domestic front in order to be sure of adequate defenses in the light of this situation.

House Democratic Whip J. Percy Priest (D., Tenn.) said the news emphasized the importance of action at the United Nations to control atomic energy.

The most immediate domestic effect, Priest said, would be that the House conferees would be likely to act quickly to accept the Senate version of the arms-to-Europe bill, and the House would quckily accept that version. Previously the House had cut in half the Administration request.

House Democratic Leader John McCormack (D., Mass.) declared there should be no "premature alarm" until there are more facts on the Soviet progress in the manufacture of atom bombs.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee said:

"Russia could have only one purpose and one nation in mind. There should be international control of atomic weapons but we know that is futile. The only alternative is to be prepared for any emergency at any time."

Chairman John Wood (D., Ga.) of the House Un-American Activities Committee summed up what most Congressmen of both parties were privately commenting—namely that if Russia did not have all this Nation's atomic energy secrets it would be surprising in view of what they called this Nation's laxity in dealing with Communist spies.

Wood said the committee soon will issue a document based on its spy hearings "which I think will prove to the satisfaction of the American people that the Russians have had every opportunity to avail themselves of information on nuclear energy."

Durham insisted that the fact Russia is now obviously at the very least on the way to A-bomb manufacture pointed to the urgent need for the fullest exchange of information with the British and Canadians.

Valuable in Defense

Such an exchange, he said, would be valuable in working out counter-measures of defense. The American people, he said, should know that it was British scientists who developed the fuse which touched off the first A-bomb.

Referring to the present conference with the British and the Belgians over raw material, conferences which started in the dramatic night meeting at Blair House, Durham said it was folly not to develop mutual defenses, with information being exchanged by all three nations and Canada.

It is known that Russia has within its own borders ample supplies of the necessary raw materials and has had thousands of persons working in its uranium mines for more than three years.

Sharing Was Opposed

When the Blair House conference was held, there was considerable opposition to this country's giving any of its information to the British and Canadians, particularly on the part of Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.). There was some speculation that in the light of the present situation this opposition might decrease.

Durham, one of the best informed of the House members on the subject of atomic energy, said that while this Nation's atomic energy program, on which his committee soon will issue a report, is in good shape, the American people cannot afford to be "complacent."

It will take many sacrifices, he said, over the next few years and cuts in domestic rather than arms programs if this Nation's security is to be maintained.

Not Surprised, Woods Says

Wood said the Un-American Activities Committee was not surprised by President Truman's announcement. The committee, he said, had information for months "that if the Russians haven't got the atomic bomb, they're just plain dumb."

He said the implicatons are very serious because "they would have no hesitation in using the bomb on us whenever they are ready."

The committee said in a report a year ago that Communist leader Steve Nelson, operating as a Red espionage agent on the West Coast, got an important atomic formula in 1943 from a "scientist

By The Associated Press

Soviet Russia has strained for four years to master secrets of atom-bomb production the Hiroshima explosion proved the United States possessed.

Toil, sweat, propaganda and—western court records show—some spying marked the Russian struggle.

Forced labor sweats in the Soviet-controlled mines of Saxony to dig the pitchblende that is a source of uranium and atomic power. Miners who escaped to western Germany have reported thousands working there under guard with rickety, makeshift equipment.

Soviet technicians and German scientists, captured or hired, toiled long in their laboratories in an effort to catch up.

Some Double Talk

The Kremlin's diplomats and news organs screened the activity with a flow of words—some double talk to Western ears—intended to quiet fears at home.

Most noted of the esplonage activity was a spy network linked to the Soviet Embassy in Canada. It was exposed by Igor Gouzenko, embassy clerk, whose testimony has been instrumental in the conviction of 10 persons with sentences ranging up to six years in prison.

The United Nations has been used by the Russians as a sounding board on atomic problems since 1946. Their approach was pegged upon a demand for outlawing of the bomb and opposition to Western plans for its control. Russia demands veto power over inspection of atomic energy production.

Andrei A. Gromyko told the United Nations in May, 1947, the idea of an American monopoly of atomic energy production was an illusion. Five months later Col. Gen. Andrei Zhadanov, high in the Kremlin and the power behind the Cominform, was quoted in a dispatch from Warsaw as saying Russia did not yet possess the bomb.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov declared November 6, 1947, the secret of the atomic bomb has "ceased to exist."

No Monopoly, He Says

Andrei Vishinsky, the Deputy foreign minister who later succeeded Molotov, told the U. N. in Paris last October 1: "It is a mistake to think there is just one state which has a monopoly over the atomic bomb."

Three months later Palmiro Togliatti, Italian Communist boss who is close to the Kremlin, chimed in at Bologna: "The atomic bomb is no longer a secret. Don't be worried, because the United States can't make war."

Winston Churchill, in a speech at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology March 31, said:

"It is certain that Europe would have been communized and London under bombardment but for the deterrent of the atomic bomb in the hands of the United States."

form of a defensive target-seeking high-altitude missile.

It was pointed out that United States military policy long has taken into consideration the likelihood that Russia would not voluntarily become involved in war until she had the bomb or the means of preventing its delivery, or both. Therefore, planning has necessarily been on the basis of engaging in warfare with a nation which possessed the bomb.

Strategy and tactics long have been designed with that probability in view and no change appears to be contemplated.

Public Reaction Awaited

The great imponderable is the attitude of the American people as a result of Mr. Truman's momentous announcement. Should the public demand an increase in the armed forces, Congress no doubt would provide it. Should public reaction take the form of demanding large increases in one of the services at the expense of the others, that very likely would take place despite the views of those responsible for military planning. The real basis of a military force is the amount of funds made available by Congress, rather than the experience and judgement of military professionals.

It was pointed out, in connection with the possible effect of Russian success in achieving an atomic explosion, that it would be unlikely any nation would purposely engage in an atomic war without possessing the bomb in militarily useful quantities. As it is, it is apparently not known whether Russia actually has developed a useful bomb or has achieved the explosion in some other manner. Furthermore, the United States has been stockpiling the bomb for four years, which gives it a tremendous lead unless the Russians develop some method of producing it with much greater speed than this country has been able to attain.

Earth Tremor Sept. 14 May Have Been A-Blast

Stockholm (Saturday) Sept. 24 (AP).—A spokesman for the observatory at Lund, Sweden, today said its seismograph had registered an earth tremor September 14 which might have been caused by an atomic explosion in Siberia.

that German scientists played an important part in bringing about the "explosion" reported by President Truman.

Some 200 of these German experts are believed to have been transported into Russia after the end of the war. They would have the engineering and mechanical know-how to add to the theoretical know-how the Rusisans already possessed.

How long President Truman has known about the big event in Russia was a question that remained unanswered yesterday.

It was stated authoritatively he did not know about it when he conferred with congressional and military leaders at Blair House in July.

There was some speculation at the time, because of the "grim" expressions on the faces of the conferees that Russia might have developed the bomb. It transpired however, that the subject under discussion was a freer exchange of atomic information between the United States, Britain and Canada.

It is certain Mr. Truman knew about it early this week. The British and Canadian governments knew about it when their officials met with American officials Tuesday at the start of important atomic negotiations.

The President summoned Senator McMahon (D., Conn.) to the White House at 3:15 p. m. Thursday and told him about the reports he had received. McMahon called a meeting of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee for 10:30 yesterday morning.

It was arranged to have Mr. Truman's statement issued while he himself was discussing the matter with his Cabinet at the White House.

It was arranged also to have an identical statement issued in London and Ottawa at the same time.

Reporters who attended the regular 10:30 news conference of White House Secretary Charles G. Ross were told, as they were leaving his office, not to go away from the press room.

At 11 a. m. Miss Myrtle Bergheim secretary to Ross, entered and said: "Press, Mr. Ross wants to see you."

After the reporters had assembled, Ross ordered the doors of his office closed and kept closed until every reporter had a copy of the statement he was about to issue.

When the mimeographed sheets had been passed around, there was a wild dash for the press room across the White House lobby—reminiscent of the days in 1945 when Mr. Truman announced such electrifying events as VE-Day and VJ-Day.

Cabinet officers, on their way out of the White House later, did not appear to be excited.

Secretary of Defense Johnson was pressed for more information than was contained in the White House release.

Fears "Overplaying"

"You've got a calm, factual statement," he told reporters, "and I don't want to overplay it."

"Have we made any change in the disposition of our forces since this happened?" he was asked.

"No," Johnson replied.

"Does the Cabinet know any more about this than is contained in the President's statement?" a reporter asked.

"The Cabinet knows all about it," Johnson said. "It was fully informed."

Why the news was released yesterday and not earlier was another question that remained unanswered.

It was suggested in official quarters Mr. Truman did not want to give it out earlier for fear it might look like an attempt to "pressure" the Senate into passing the arms bill.

No Mention of U. N.

It was suggested, too, the timing might have been connected with a speech Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky was scheduled to make before the United Nations Assembly yesterday afternoon.

According to this reasoning, there was the possibility Vishinsky might loose the news on the world in a dramatic speech and thereby get the maximum propaganda value out of it.

Actually, Vishinsky made no mention of the explosion in Russia when he addressed the Assembly. He accused the United States of leading an agressive bloc in plans for a new war—a theme on which Soviet leaders long have dwelt.

Soviet Atom Blast Site Put In Eastern Siberia by Nenni

Rome, Sept. 23 (AP).—Pietro Nenni, leader of the pro-Communist Italian Socialists, tonight said the Soviet atomic explosion occurred in eastern Siberia.

Nenni returned recently from a visit to Moscow. He did not indicate whether he was speaking from personal knowledge or hearsay.

Nenni mentioned eastern Siberia when he was asked for comment on President Truman's statement on the Soviet atomic explosion. The President did not locate the blast. Nenni termed the President's statement "the first peaceful news ever given by Truman" and added "evidently this changes prospects which up to now had been predicated on presumption of an American atomic monopoly."

X." The scientist was employed at the radiation laboratory at the University of California at Berkeley.

The scientist never has been named publicly by the committee.

The case still is under investigation. By coincidence Dr. Irving David Fox, who also was a scientist at the laboratory at the time, will be a witness next Tuesday.

World Should Not Be Shocked At Atom Blast, Acheson Says

New York, Sept. 23 (NYHT).—Fundamental United States foreign policy will not be changed because Russia has an Atomic weapon, Secretary of State Dean Acheson said today, nor should Americans or other peoples of the world worry about it. Time and again Acheson reiterated at a press conference at the United Nations General Assembly that people should not be shocked at the announcement.

He said they should have been prepared for this eventually—by the many statements to this effect by President Truman, the Secretary himself and his predecessors, David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, and chiefs of other official American organizations.

Peace Still Primary Aim

The preservation of peace still stands as the primary al mof American foreign policy, the Secretary said, adding that this new development merely underlines our oft-stated position that the world must agree to a truly effective and forcible system for the international control of atomic energy.

Acheson said the United States learned the Soviet Union had exploded an atomic weapon, and that the information did not come from a third nation.

He said there was no significance to making the announcement at this time, that there was nothing tricky about it. He said it was announced as soon as President Truman was completely sure where he stood, and certain of what he said.

He Knew It Wednesday

He said that when American leaders of the executive and legislative branches of the Government, and the Atomic Energy Commission, met at Blair House in July, the United States did not know of the atomic explosion in the Soviet Union, but that he knew of it when he addressed the General Assembly of the U. N. last Wednesday.

The explosion apparently took place between these two events, but the Secretary said he could not give the date. He said we have been aware of increasing evidence of the explosion for some time.

Acheson said he had no knowledge of any other unpublicized atomic explosions—either in Russia or elsewhere.

Only by preserving peace can we avoid the increased terror and hardships of war, the Secretary said, and every American means was being directed toward this end.

Assumes It's a Weapon

Asked directly if the Russian explosion was an atomic bomb, he said he assumed they made a weapon which exploded.

In answer to a question if Russia would be more or less likely to accept international control of atomic energy now that she has the weapon, the Secretary replied that this will be a very important test of their intentions.

He declined to comment on Russia's stage of development in the atomic energy field. In regards to the United States, he said we have done everything we can with available funds and time, and we are not displeased with what we have been able to do.

There is no reason to think that all things in the world must change because Russia has the key to releasing atomic energy, he said. This has been contemplated and business will proceed in a normal way.

A-Bomb Cannot Decide War Result, Stalin Said

Prime Minister Stalin, in answering questions submitted by Alexander Worth, of the London Sunday Times and reported by the Associated Press on September 23, 1946, said:

"I do not believe the atomic bomb to be as serious a force as certain politicians are inclined to regard it. Atomic bombs are intended for intimidating weak nerves, but they cannot decide the outcome of war since atomic bombs are by no means sufficient for this purpose. Certainly monopolist possession of the secret of the atomic bomb does create a threat, but at least two remedies exist against it: (a) Monopolist possession of the atomic bomb cannot last long. (b) Application of the atomic bomb will be prohibited."

lege student, said Russia had our secrets of atomic energy for some time.

"The situation between this country and Russia won't get any worse because Russia has atomic energy, unless we continue to act as if we were the only people who had the secret," Holmes said.

C. Almario, of 2300 18th st. nw., a technical assistant to the Philippine Embassy, was pessimistic.

"The U. S. should be worried. We should get tougher now that we have lost the advantage we had. We should go more on the offensive. I don't mean we should go to war, but we will have to take more care, and improve our own atomic weapons," Almario said.

Raph H. Gibeaux, of 2738 Ordway st. nw., a Government transportation cost analyst, said the news should not scare anyone.

"The news is old," he said. "Many scientists predicted that the Russians would have atomic bombs before today, and many of them have said that Russia already had the secrets. I can't see how this news will strain diplomatic relations between the two countries any more than they are strained today. It may improve relations," Gibeaux said.

Mrs. Hallie Jetton of 4329 3d st. nw., a housewife, said the United States should start making more atomic bombs right away.

"I don't think the Russians should have the bomb. They don't need it and they won't know how to use it, except against us."

"We ought to think seriously about how we can make our bombs do the most good right now," she said.

Three members of a West Indies family visiting Washington differed sharply about the significance of the news.

The father, a Government employe who asked that he remain anonymous, said the United States must protect itself. To do that, he said, more atomic bombs must be manufactured to keep pace with the Russians.

His son disagreed. "This news should clear the air," he said. "I am glad Russia has the secret. Now we both know the other has the bomb. Now nobody has to bluff the other."

The mother agreed with her husband. "Relations between the two countries will become more strained, more clouded with suspicion."

Gloria Nutter, British Admiralty employe of 2012 Wyoming ave. nw., said she felt "just helpless."

"Nothing can be done by people like me," she said. "I do think the Russians are scared of the Atlantic Pact nations and will not use the bomb against us. But diplomatic relations are bound to become strained."

A citizen of England, she said she saw no reason why the countries should manufacture more and more atomic bombs.

Throughout the day, a giant truck parked at 13th and F containing an exhibit of two models purporting to be the Russian and British conceptions of the atomic bomb, did a land-office business. The exhibit was sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Many lunch-hour strollers thought President Truman's announcement and the VFW exhibit were connected. Some entered one end of the truck pooh-poohing the idea the Russians had the atomic bomb and came out convinced they had just seen the Russian atomic bomb.

Soviet Copy of B-29 Could Carry Bomb

By Jones J. Strebig
Associated Press Aviation Writer

If Russia should make an atomic attack in the near future—which United States strategists consider wholly unlikely—she probably would use a copy of the B-29 Superfortress.

So far as is generally known in this country, the Red air force has not developed any other long-range heavy bomber, although it is reported to be far outproducing the United States in total warplanes.

The Russian B-29 copy is designated the TU-70. Its performance has not been disclosed, but it is presumed to at least match the B-29's range of 4600 miles or more. Russia is understood to have increased fuel capacity by omitting armor and other installations, and thus made up for the lower efficiency of their copied engines.

Russia was able to duplicate the B-29 by using five which landed in Red territory during the war.

The Soviet has been developing jet bombers, but based on experience in this country they are not likely to have achieved the range needed for an attack on this continent.

Russian plane builders are reported to have built as many jet fighters last year as this country built of all military types. Its total production of warplanes was reported at more than three times that of the United States in numbers, although the total air-frame weight was only about two and a half times as great. That indicates they produced smaller planes on an average.

Soviet aircraft production is understood to be scaled at an even higher level this year. One estimate places their heavy bomber schedule for 1949 at 1000 planes. That would be 10 times as many as they were reported to have flying about two years ago.

Little information has become generally known about Russian missile activities, beyond the fact that it is a major project. At least one claim has been made that the Reds have a piloted supersonic rocket. Such a missile might carry an atom bomb.

Russia has comparatively few large and well equipped air bases, and lacks the extensive electronic airways necessary for heavy air transport operations.

The Soviet warplane program last year is reported to have included more than 4000 fighters and 2500 bombers and attack planes with a total airframe weight of nearly 70 million pounds. This country has not approached those figures since the war.

The indicated United States Air Force production program for the present fiscal year which runs through next June 30 is about 800 combat planes and a similar number of trainers and transports. However, the appropriation bill still is in Congress, with the possibility that funds for more extensive production as approved by the House will be agreed upon.

The Navy air program as it stands in Congress would provide only half as many new planes as for the Air Force.

The Air Force program aims at a force of about 250 B-36 bombers, rated the world's highest flying and longest range offensive weapon. Fewer than 100 have been built. About 2000 B-29s are available, and the faster, longer range B-50 is in production. A six-engine, 600-miles-an-hour jet bomber, the Boeing B-47, is going into production at Wichita, Kans. All of those planes can carry the atom bomb.

American Missing In Poland

Czech officials said he never arrived there

World Shrugs And Shudders At Disclosure

(From Press Dispatches)

Europe reacted with a shrug and a shudder last night to news Russia has successfully staged an atomic explosion.

In London, the British government said it had expected other nations eventually would develop atomic energy and this always had been taken into account.

In Paris, French Defense Minister Paul Ramadier indicated more than one atomic explosion might have come from Russia.

"It is not the first time that suspected detonations have been registered, notably in France," he said.

"It is therefore not a surprise," he continued. "Moreover, it is a matter of atomic explosions and not necessarily of atomic bombs."

Canada hopes Russian possession of an atomic weapon will spur the powerful nations to seek a lasting peace, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent told the House of Commons.

The announcement is not expected to change Canada's basic atomic energy policy, which calls for working only on the peaceful aspects, a high source said.

At Belgrade, Yugoslavs said "It's a disaster."

President Truman's statement surprised all but a few of the 59 delegations to the United Nations Assembly at New York.

Britain and Canada said they knew about the same thing Mr. Truman did.

France's Foreign Minister Robert Schuman said "the Americans in the face of such news have showed a remarkable calm."

Secretary-General Trygve Lie was obviously surprised.

"If this is true, then the United Nations is more indispensible than ever before," he said.

Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Assembly president declared:

"If this is true, the deadlock in the Atomic Energy Commission becomes the most pressing problem before the Assembly. We must face it squarely and solve it."

A. A. Arutinian, Russian delegate, said it was all news to him.

Asked if he was surprised, he said, "There is no surprise under the sun."

Air Policy Group Set End of 1952 as Earliest

The most recent official estimate of when Russia might be able to produce atomic weapons came from President Truman's Air Policy Commission.

That group, headed by Thomas K. Finletter, reported on December 30, 1947, that "It would be safe to assume . . . that possibly hostile powers will not be producing atomic weapons in substantial quantities before the end of 1952."

The commission added:

"We point out that this does not assume that such powers may not have a few atomic weapons prior to that date."

Allies Say Red Troops Seized German Scientists

Berlin, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Allied officials today said advancing Russian troops during the war captured at least 200 top German atomic scientists and shipped them to the Soviet Union.

Allied officials said the Russians converted uranium mines in eastern Germany into a Soviet trust and reportedly took over co..trol of uranium mines in Czechoslovakia.

Don't Wipe Out Stockpile Fund, Truman Pleads

President Truman asked Congress yesterday not to wipe out a 275-million-dollar fund for stockpiling strategic defense materials.

In a letter to Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee and Chairman McKellar (D., Tenn.) of the Senate Appropriations Committee, the President stressed "the importance, from a national defense standpoint, of rapid steady progress toward the attainment of our stockpile objectives."

The letter, dated September 20, was made public by Cannon after the White House announced its awareness of an atomic explosion in Russia.

Freedom Of News

The Department of Justice has yet to prove its charge that the Lorain (Ohio) Journal and four of its officers are guilty of conspiracy to monopolize the dissemination of news. For that reason one must reserve judgment as to the merits of the civil action that the department has brought in the Federal District Court at Cleveland against the Journal. But it is good to know that the department is alert to the dangers of monopoly in this field. For the principle of freedom of the press is utterly incompatible with the development of monopolistic practices on the part of the press.

The Lorain Journal is accused of trying to acquire ownership of its competitors, the Lorain Sunday News and radio stations WEOL and WEOL-FM, by refusing to publish in the Journal the advertisements of business firms which used these other advertising media. In other words, the Lorain County paper is charged with resorting to illegal coercion to destroy competition. If that charge should be proved, the desirability of putting the offending publishers under a court order to stop their offense would scarcely be open to question. Newspapers no less than merchants and industrial companies are subject to the antitrust laws and consequently to restraining orders from the courts if they are found to have violated those laws.

There is a temptation for the press to invoke its privileged status under the First Amendment to the Constitution whenever any of its practices are challenged. In cases of this sort, however, the First Amendment seems to us to point in the same direction as does the Sherman Act. In both one may read the intent of encouraging free competition in the dissemination of information. Indeed, a free society can thrive only so long as all the sources of information are protected and encouraged. Unfair methods of silencing competition in the distribution of news not only run contrary to the public interest; they also militate against freedom of the press by encouraging increased governmental intervention.

Electrical Currents

No one should be very shocked by the failure of the so-called right wing of the CIO United Electrical Workers to generate sufficient support to throw out the Communist-line leadership. The right-wingers, led by CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey, made a valiant try at the convention in Cleveland, but eight years of domination by Albert Fitzgerald, Julius Emspak and James Matles was too much to overcome.

Whether the national CIO will take action at its convention next month is another question. CIO President Philip Murray has done a good deal of talking about making Communist-line unions toe the mark, and his remarks have had particular pertinence for the UEW and Harry Bridges' International Longshoremen's Union. The UEW has deliberately courted an ouster by a set of imperious demands on the CIO, with a threat that unless they are met per capita tax payments will be withheld. Mr. Murray can hardly avoid smacking down this sort of insubordination without damaging his own prestige.

And yet the current left-wing policy seems to be to avoid an open break with the CIO. The UEW has even decided to comply with the anti-Communist affidavits required by the Taft-Hartley law. This it can do by having President Albert Fitzgerald, who is a stooge for Messrs. Emspak and Matles, sign them—an indication of how illusory a protection the affidavit is. The subterfuge will be as apparent to Mr. Murray as to the perpetrators. But by the same token the CIO will think twice before lopping off half a million constituents and may decide instead to concentrate on recapture of the UEW.

Part of the trouble here has been in the failure to popularize the non-Communist cause. It is ridiculous to assume that more than a small number of UEW members are in sympathy with the Communist line. But Mr. Carey, who is the foremost opponent of the Fitzgerald tactics, has spent most of his time working with the national CIO and, incidentally, in doing a valuable job of labor representation for the United States abroad. Walter Reuther of the United Auto Workers has demonstrated how control can be wrested from the Communists. Organization is required—and political education, discipline and a determination to outvote the Communists. If the UEW is to be redeemed, the work will have to start at the grass roots.

Airline Bonanza

Eastern Air Lines is the newest convert to the low-priced air coach service that has been generating vast amounts of new traffic for air carriers. Eastern has announced that it will begin off-hour coach service from New York to New Orleans and later to Houston. Meanwhile Capital Airlines also plans to inaugurate coach service from New York to New Orleans and Atlanta at approximately rail coach rates. These are encouraging manifestations of a healthy trend toward self-help among the airlines in restoring their depleted finances.

The air coach movement probably was spurred by the bargain rates of the so-called nonscheduled carriers. The first reduction from luxury fares came in American Air-Lines' family fare plan, which was promptly adopted by several other lines. Capital, however, was the first to inaugurate a genuine coach service with rates in competition with rail coach fares. Capital was soon followed by Trans-World and by Northwest Airlines, and the operations have been extraordinarily successful.

An indication of the success can be had from Capital's experience on its New York-Chicago and Washington-Chicago runs during the first nine months. The net profit on these runs, including an apportionment of all airline costs but without any reliance on mail pay, was $275,000. The net added income above the extra costs incurred by the service itself was in excess of a million dollars.

Air coach service dispenses with luxury frills such as meals, but it observes the same standards of safety and maintenance as first-class service. The differential is possible because the coach service is operated late at night, when equipment otherwise would be idle. In its present form, the coach service is most practicable between cities of high traffic density, and it probably could not be extended to all parts of the country. But its popularity does indicate some of the possibilities of low-cost mass travel which the airlines have just begun to explore.

Return Of The Native

The sudden arrival in Boston last Wednesday of Henry M. Blackmer, the expatriate oil magnate, creates a number of interesting legal problems. It is probably safe to say that the great bulk of Mr. Blackmer's former compatriots had forgotten all about him, about his role in the great Teapot Dome scandals of a quarter century ago, and that he fled to France rather than face a ruthless inquisition in connection with the Government's efforts to annul the oil leases granted by Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall.

Just what prompted Mr. Blackmer to return and to face the long-standing criminal charges against him does not appear. It may have been a nostalgic desire to end his days in the scene of his former splendors, for his destination is Denver. He is now 80 years old. But the "deal" which he is said to have made with the Department of Justice concerning the six indictments of perjury and income-tax invasion standing against him was probably the immediate cause for his return.

Perhaps the ultimate judgment against Mr. Blackmer will be that he was, like Harry F. Sinclair and Edward L. Doheny themselves, a kind of anachronism. We think of him, and properly, as a kind of industrial freebooter living by his own special code of morals, whereby it was no sin to enrich oneself at the expense of the public interest. A generation earlier such men were known as "empire builders," and vast homage was paid to them. Up to the time of the Teapot Dome investigation the history of his career was a rather impressive version of the familiar American success story. From relatively humble beginnings in Worcester, Mass., he had become a great industrial pioneer and what was called in those times a captain of industry. Had he been born, say, 30 or 40 years sooner, it is quite possible he might have gone down in American history as a champion of progress and a patron of culture and learning; his name and memory might be perpetuated in a university and perhaps a half dozen other foundations. Such men no doubt have served a certain purpose in the development of this continent; but they are, we fear, a luxury that we can no longer afford.

LABOR DAY

What do I care if summer is coming
And people in buses throng the town,
Summer is long but soon is ended
With the people gone and the shutters down.

And what do I care that the summer people
Bind the shutters and leave the town.
What do I care if the hawk goes over;
Curling and turning and veering down.

Summer is long and summer is ended.
Boats are hangared along the beach,
Only the surf is loud and busy.
Over the fog the seagulls screech.

This is a place for a boy to grow in.
Clean as the pebbles along the shore,
This is a place when the people leave it
That sweeps the summer behind the door.

Now shall the season thrive and freshen
The splendor of salt that mats the hair.
The sea and the boy when summer is over
Are happy as schoolmates at the fair.

ROBERT DAVID O'BRIEN

The Russian Bomb

President Truman's announcement of an atomic explosion in Russia shatters with dramatic suddenness the myth that the United States has a monopoly on the atomic bomb. The stark fact is that the existence of a Russian bomb or bombs alters the balance of power in the world. But anyone acquainted with the scientific background of the bomb knew that eventually the Russians would have it. The knowledge that our monopoly has ended is no cause for panic. President Truman has rightly shared this momentous information with the people, and the people must now share the responsibility of carrying out a calm and sensible policy.

The mere fact of one explosion does not necessarily mean, of course, that the Russians have the capacity to make bombs in quantity. Their achievement should in no way be minimized; they apparently have upset most American strategic estimates by two years or more. Russia has had access to all the basic scientific information applied in the American bomb, and she had commandeered the efforts of German scientists. But the assembly of one bomb is largely an engineering process. It is a great deal easier, for example, to manufacture one bomb, using laborious methods of refining uranium in small quantities, than to perfect huge plants for processing fissionable material in large amounts. No one knows for sure, but it is unlikely that Russia has yet developed a method similar to our gaseous diffusion process for quantity production of fissionable material.

Nevertheless, the fact that a Russian bomb does exist means that now the American lead in applications of atomic energy is one of productive capacity and techniques. Quantity and quality are now the criteria. There is no reason to believe that the United States has lost its lead in these respects, but the President's announcement should come as a healthy shock to those persons who have confused the issue by concentrating on secrecy rather than substance respecting atomic energy.

This is a time, not for panic or burrowing underground, but for hard thinking. As General Bradley advised yesterday, "the more calmly the American people take this, the better off we are. We have anticipated it for four years, and it calls for no change in our basic defense plans." Most military strategists have veered far away from the assumption that the atomic bomb is an absolute weapon. Indeed, this seems also to have been the thinking of the Russians themselves. Premier Stalin, in an interview with Alexander Werth on September 24, 1946, stated:

> Atomic bombs are intended for intimidating weak nerves, but they cannot decide the outcome of war, since atomic bombs are by no means sufficient for this purpose.

Thus the determining factor is still the total military strength of Russia and of the Western World. There is not the slightest reason to deprecate, as Senator Wherry has done, the accent on ground force preparation in the military-aid program. For the tactical offensive use of the atom bomb is limited. It can blow up cities and inflict great damage, but it cannot occupy territory. The principal advantage Russia has gained is psychological. There is just as much need as ever for American support of western Europe, and the very worst thing that could happen would be for hysterical reaction to push this country into a sort of atomic isolationism.

Defenses against the bomb have been improving. It is something of a feat, for instance, that the Russian explosion was detected by the United States and Britain. This implies the existence of a detection system, possibly seismographic, but more probably involving examination of the radiation in the atmosphere. The proximity fuse and guided missiles hold promise as means of intercepting atomic attack.

As a matter of fact, the bomb itself is coming more and more to be regarded as a defensive instrument. Again to quote General Bradley, in a recent interview:

> Up until the present time, we have had a tendency to consider the atomic bomb largely as an offensive weapon. However, in our joint preparations, aiming at the defense of the Western World, the the atomic bomb will play an important part. Its existence will render defense easier and less costly, and on the other hand will make the aggressor pay more dearly for his attack.

The assumption that the American monopoly was temporary was, of course, implicit in the Baruch Plan for international control of atomic energy. It is barely possible that the Russians now will consider themselves equals in the atomic field, and that actual mastery of a force they previously knew little about will induce them to reconsider the international control measures they have so persistently vetoed. That chance ought to be explored vigorously in the United Nations.

But such a hope, in light of the record, is a dim one, and it ought not in the least to preclude other necessary steps. First of all, we can afford no delay in making the Western defense system an effective, integrated whole. What is lacking fundamentally is not arms so much as unity. Unity as between the United States and western Europe, and unity of command, are now "musts."

Secondly, the discovery makes almost academic the discussions with Britain and Canada over atomic information. What is imperative now is full partnership. The three countries should jointly evolve the best atomic program possible, making full use of each other's scientific brains and techniques. The Administration ought to take the lead in proposing any necessary measures to make such a partnership a fact. Undeniably the bomb in Russian hands is a threat. But it can also be the impetus that will weld the Western World together.

Chest Prospects

Congratulations and commendations on the Community Chest bellweather business unit meeting held Tuesday. It puts the finger squarely on the sore spot of past years' campaign failures. It is welcome news to the few hundred business houses who (with their loyal employes) year after year have held the bag for thousands of lagging fellow storekeepers and personnel. As the business unit goes, so goes the Chest Campaign. Bottoms up.

Devaluation's Effect

The monetary and trade experts have been filling the columns of the newspapers with comments on the causes and effects of the devaluation avalanche let loose by Great Britain. I should like to call attention to one of its significant implications which the technical men may consider too general to deserve their attention.

Assuming that there will be no serious move on our part to adopt any counteracting measures and that a substantial part of the reduced exchange rates will be reflected in the prices of imported goods, the result will be that the American consumer, who already enjoys the highest standard of living in the world, will have his purchasing capacity still further increased in terms of labor and resources of the devaluating countries.

On the other hand, the standard of living in the latter countries will be reduced, for a time at least, since the main object of the devaluation was to bring prices down to a more competitive level in our market. Lacking the political strength or courage to make their people accept knowingly the unpleasant consequences of the impoverishment produced by the two world wars and the dislocations of the interwar period, the governments of these countries have decided to achieve the same results indirectly through devaluation.

Whether devaluation will produce a lasting stimulant to international trade is still an open question, but it is quite certain that it will serve to widen the gap between the standards of living in the two sectors of the world economy and thus intensify the economic isolation of the United States, resulting from its overwhelming economic superiority, unless we allow our resources to be wasted by labor strife and unsound economic policies.

It is generally admitted that devaluation was unavoidable; it is merely a more formal recognition of the change in the international economic position of the United States that has been going on since Versailles and greatly accelerated by the last war. But we must not assume that the shift in exchange rates is a solution that will stabilize our economic relationship with the outside world. Our economic predominance, which we cannot help, will remain in an intensified form as a disturbing element, with serious political and social consequences for Western civilization.

GI Dividends

Anyone acquainted with GI insurance knows that most men over 40 paid 65 cents per thousand dollars of insurance and 79 cents per thousand dollars while the men over 40 paid twice that amount. But Veterans Administrator Carl Gray is going to return 55 cents per thousand dollars to the men under 40. Their insurance will have cost from 10 cents to 24 cents per thousand dollars.

But men over 40 are refunded on a declining scale. I paid $16 plus for $10,000 or $1.60 per thousand dollars and my return is to be 34 cents per thousand dollars or $3.70 on a $16 premium while a man 40 or younger will receive a $5.50 refund of $6.50, or an 85 percent return.

Now all of us as GIs paid according to age and the money so paid earned a common interest. It is most unfair that one GI should get 85 per cent return while another only averages 26 percent. RAY L. MORRIS.

Friendship Club

On September 13 we noted a letter entitled Friendship Club from H. W. in which it was suggested that a club be started for people over 50.

The Federal Recreation Committee is actively engaged in stimulating such recreation programs for Federal employes. We know of many clubs and associations H. W. and others might be interested in joining, ranging from poetry and ceramic clubs to bridge and book discussions.

At our last meeting on August 9 our entire program was devoted to activities for older and retired employes. Many organizations, including the National Association of Retired Civil Service Employes are interested in what we are doing and have indicated their willingness to cooperate. Readers who may be interested in such programs may contact me.

Dulles' Tariff Stand

Mr. Owen D. Young's announcement of his support of Senator Dulles in the November election in New York came, very inopportunely, directly after the vote in the Senate on the reciprocal trade bill. For, in the crucial fight over the bill, Senator Dulles' name was counted on the isolationist and high-tariff side at every stage of the struggle.

The fight on the reciprocal trade bill in the Senate was the crisis in the movement to lend our economic support to Britain, to the British Commonwealth of Nations, and to the Atlantic Defense Alliance. In this general movement for economic unity as the main pillar of our unity and of our defense measures, a lowering of our tariff wall will furnish the solid foundation for all other necessary measures.

This is obviously true in the case of Britain and her export trade. If we maintain that wall as it is, the devaluation of the pound will be much too short a ladder to enable British industry to scale that wall. Last July we exported 80 million dollars worth of goods to Britain and imported 16 millions worth from her.

Keep the crest of that high wall up where it is, and both Britain and our Allies on the Continent will find themselves, two years from now, in worse straits than they are today; and we shall go right on voting more than five billion dollars a year in support of those Allies from whom, up to last week we had made not the slightest gesture in the direction of buying more goods.

On the day of the decisive battle, Senator Dulles failed us utterly. Some who, like the present writer, were disposed to take a neutral stand in the New York campaign, are now forced to line up solidly behind Governor Lehman. FRANK BOHN.

"Housing Co-Ops"

In your editorial, 'Cooperative Housing," August 14, you said that "if housing is to be subsidized, it ought to be kept under public management to make certain it will be used for a public purpose—the housing of slum dwellers or the elimination of conditions that are a menace to the community." To many bystanders, who happen to be taxpayers, the management of our public housing projects has been handled with inefficiency and abuse.

In this country the private management of wealth still leads to its most effective utilization. That which is common property is still too often regarded as no one's property and it is still too often treated with neglect and abuse. More than that, with the institution of private property still subjected, by public sanction, to the regulation of the police power of the state, why would public management be necessary to assure the certainty of use you desire?

In this same editorial you also contended that loans by the Government which would provide acceptable housing for that middle economic third of our population—those of us who cannot afford traditionally financed housing nor qualify for public housing—"is not part of the Administration's housing program."

It certainly would prove interesting to many of your subscribers if in an early editorial you would tell us what the Administration's program is for housing acceptably this third of the population. Raymond M. Foley must have some constructive ideas and thoughts on the solution of this problem. To cast doubt upon the ability of co-ops to house families in the $2500 to $4000 income group does nothing to correct our outmoded system of traditional mortgage financing.

Nor are you any more constructive in your editorial, "Housing Co-ops," September 16. Your taking a stand against progress "because of the other vast demands on the Treasury and because of the element of subsidy that, in all probability, would be involved," and this without an inkling of how subsidy would be involved, makes me wish I were a logician.

I should like to be able to prove to you that next to food, our most essential requirement is acceptable shelter, that frustration resulting from improper home environment is one of our most costly social diseases, and that the only reason it is right to make direct Federal loans at low interest rate to farm cooperatives and those in the Rural Electrification Program and not to housing cooperatives is because our moderate-income group is not organized into an effective political bloc.

Then too, if veterans have found it most difficult to borrow 4 percent money in the traditional money market, what instance causes you to believe that organized into co-ops they would find it less difficult to borrow 3 percent money in the same market?

Finally, is the problem really one, as your editorial seems to imply, of giving impetus to cooperative housing? Or, rather, isn't it one to provide a balanced and comprehensive program to assist all needy families in obtaining acceptable homes.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Price Of Steel

WHILE the steel companies and the steel union prosecute their dispute over who gets what, we the public sit on the sidelines nervously looking on. We know that the outcome will affect all of us and yet we know, too, that there is little or nothing we can do about it.

Because steel is so basic, the present conflict between the big employer and the big union illustrates dramatically the power of organized minorities. It is a power that often seems to ignore the welfare of the great unorganized mass of consumers.

This is reflected in a phase of the report of the President's steel fact-finding board that has been generally ignored. The report pointed to the extraordinary profits of the steel companies in 1948 and the first half of this year.

For the first quarter of 1949 the annual rate of profit after taxes was 157 percent above the two prewar years of comparable activity, 1940 and 1941. At the same time the board pointed out that the steel companies were quite properly plowing back a considerable part of this profit in modernizing and expanding present plants.

"Given the country's peacetime and possible wartime needs for larger steelmaking capacity," the board reported, "the program seems entirely desirable. But there is a question as to whether a larger part of the financing of such long-term assets should not have been through long-term debt instead of recent profits, thus leaving more of the current profits for dividends to stockholders and for social insurance and for setting up reserves for pensions."

ONE OF the results of modernization will be to reduce the cost of making a ton of steel and "with no great decrease in the demand for steel, there should be continued and higher profits." The board raised a question of who is to get the benefit of these higher profits:

"If these profits do not result in benefit to the consumer in the form of lower prices, there would be justification for the union to renew its demand for increase of wage rates in order better to participate in the industry's prosperity."

Lower prices would benefit all the public and not just organized workers or organized employers. But the question is: How to get lower prices?

There is no organized group of consumers to work for lower prices. In the absence of such organization and the pressure that goes with it, a reduction seems very unlikely. In fact, news stories inspired by the steel companies have indicated that there will be no drop in the foreseeable future.

If the dispute is settled peaceably and if after a few months or a year of still higher profits with relatively high production, what is the next move? Well, if the union follows the recommendation of the fact-finding board, a new wage demand will be made and it would be fully justified.

THERE are economists who go even further. Not only will such a raise be justified, they say, but it would be essential if the national economy is to be kept on an even keel. This is in accord with the general theory of the late Lord Keynes, Britain's wizard on economics and finance, that purchasing power must be kept flowing into the pockets of the many who will spend and not concentrated in the bank balances of the few who will hoard.

But the steel companies would not be likely to grant a wage increase without another contest. Therefore, we on the sidelines would once again watch a contest between the giants and wonder what the outcome would mean to our own personal destiny.

For the present, we are left to wonder when, if ever, steel prices will come down. In the past the price of this basic commodity has shown a tendency to stay up, even when other prices, and particularly farm prices, were tumbling down. That was true in the depression years leading to the breakdown of 1932-33.

If prices are reduced only in the later phase of a severe depression, it is likely to be too late to cause anything but further general decline. To sit idly by while two contending powers dispute an issue that touches everyone so immediately is bound to produce a sense of frustration and resentment. It certainly doesn't contribute to a belief in the democratic process and the right of the individual to a free choice.

Union Pensions

In your issue of September 20, the front-page portrait of a double-chinned, overstuffed "unioneer" breakfasting in bed instead of getting out and doing an honest day's work, the meanwhile griping that he isn't assured a lifelong pension, fairly epitomizes what is chiefly wrong in America's economic and industrial system today. Perhaps you intended it that way.

There is a profound moral preachment there too, but one wouldn't expect a unioneer to see it, though perhaps he would if his kids lay abed mornings and refused to go to school because they weren't shown free movies and fed popcorn twice a day instead of being at least expected to study. Even the unioneers might grasp the lesson if their wives refused to get up in the morning and prepare breakfast for them to eat in bed.

Forrestal's Papers Kept Top Secret

By The Associated Press

The White House has the private papers of the late James V. Forrestal, former Secretary of Defense, under lock and seal and will not make them public.

The documents—particularly Forrestal's diary—have been sought by the House Armed Services Committee in the belief they might shed some light on the Navy-Air Force controversy over the merits of the giant B-36 bomber.

Meanwhile, a naval court of inquiry, which has been looking into the source of now-discredited charges of politics and fraud which swirled about the purchase of B-36's by the Air Force, recessed indefinitely. The court is waiting to see whether the House Armed Services Committee will allow it to inspect a report containing information from Air Secretary Symington.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross disclosed the presence of Forrestal's personal papers at the White House. He told reporters Forrestal himself left them there for safekeeping shortly after he resigned as Defense Secretary. A short while later Forrestal ended his life in a leap from a window of the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md.

Ross said the papers and the three-drawer cabinet that contains them are considered private property. He said they "have not and will not be opened."

"They are under seal and are being held for the executors," Ross said.

He explained that Forrestal asked that his papers be kept at the White House because his own house was being closed and he wanted them in a safe place.

In recessing the naval court of inquiry indefinitely, Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid declared "there is no bickering" with Symington.

The Secretary of the Air Force refused Thursday to take the witness stand and tell the court what he knows about the origin of a once-anonymous memorandum spreading rumors the B-36 was obsolete but that Symington and other officials stuck by it for political reasons. A civilian naval official, Cedric R. Worth, finally admitted writing the discredited memo. He was suspended from his job.

Symington, in declining to be a witness "at this time," told the three-admiral naval court the information he has on the B-36 is based on a report which has been given to the House Armed Services Committee. He said Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of that group, had instructed him not to disclose its contents.

The naval court asked Vinson for the report. He replied it is up to the committee whether to make it available.

'Sneak Blow'

Gen. Kenney Warns U. S. Of Attack

Santa Monica, Calif., Sept. 23 (AP).—The United States now must maintain "24-hour radar detection to defend itself against a sneak attack," the Air Force's Gen. George C. Kenney warned today.

"This is a portentous day in history," he said in referring to President Truman's announcement the Russians recently set off an atomic explosion.

The announcement caused him to alter a speech he had prepared for a meeting of 500 military, civic and industrial leaders marking the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first round-the-world flight.

Surprised at Delay

General Kenney said he was "surprised that our intelligence service has not told us before of the fact Russia was so far advanced in nuclear fission research."

Returning to his prepared speech, the general said, "A fairly modest number of modern bombers using atomic bomb, in a single raid, now has the capability of exerting more foot pounds of destructive energy than the total exerted by all the bombers of all belligerents combined throughout the whole of World War II."

"No Time to Relax"

General Kenney, commander of the Air University at Montgomery, Ala., and wartime Allied Air Force commander in the South Pacific, warned that "from all the signs that stare at us these days . . . this is no time for us to relax our vigilance and run the risk of a newer and far more disastrous Pearl Harbor."

He recalled how three Army fliers 25 years ago today landed at Santa Monica after having flown around the world in 175 days, contrasting this with last spring's nonstop world flight of the B-50 Lucky Lady in 94 hours.

Vishinsky Calls For Peace Pact

nese government, which yesterday accused Moscow of directing and aiding Chinese Communists.

Vishinsky dismissed the China charges as slanderous.

Vishinsky made the familiar blasts at the Western powers, especially the United States and Britain, but he ended on a high note of peace, proposing that the General Assembly:

1. Condemn preparations for a new war he said were being made in the United States and Britain.
2. Condemn further delays in adoption by the U. N. of treaties for the "unconditional prohibition" of atomic weapons and for international control of atomic energy.
3. Call on all nations to settle their disputes peacefully and for the United States, Britain, China, France and the Soviet Union to conclude among themselves a pact for the strengthening of peace.

Impact Is Tremendous

Mr. Truman's atomic announcement in Washington at noon-time hit the U. N. Assembly with tremendous impact.

Delegates tensely discussed the implications and sat back to hear what Vishinsky had to say.

Most of Vishinsky's applause came, as usual, from the Slav countries and from a large Russian spectator group at the side of the hall. Acheson did not applaude after Vishinsky spoke and he would not comment on the speech.

Instead of flailing the air with his arms as he did when he made his "warmonger" speech in 1947 and in many other speeches, the Soviet Foreign Minister frequently leaned on the speaker's stand.

It was his first major policy speech in the U. N. as Foreign Minister. In the past he has appeared here as Chief Deputy to V. M. Molotov, whom he replaced last winter.

Vishinsky dealt first with Nationalist China's chief delegate, T. F. Tsiang. He accused Tsiang of distorting facts and making insinuations against Russia. He said this gave proof of one thing only—"of the beastly hatred of the foundering reactionary Chinese circles which he (Tsiang) represents" for everything advanced and truly democratic.

Charges By-Passing

Then Vishinsky got on more familiar ground. He accused the United States and Britain of undermining and by-passing the U. N. through the North Atlantic Pact, the Marshall Plan and in many organizations of the U. N.

With sarcasm, he said the sponsors of the North Atlantic Pact had said it was meant to strengthen the U. N. but that in reality it weakened the organization.

"The creation of a group of states," he said, "participating in the North Atlantic Alliance stands in direct contradiction to the U. N. Charer and represents a direct violation by member states of the U. N. of the obligations undertaken by them in accordance with that Charter."

He said the United States and Britain are not cooperating in developing friendly relations among nations but are creating aggressive military blocs and preparing for a new war. He said the United States and Britain are engaged in a frantic arms race and are building new military, naval and air bases over the world.

Both Sides Rest Cases In Red Trial

New York, Sept. 23 (AP).—Taking of testimony in the trial of 11 American Communist leaders came to an end today in the trial's thirty-sixth week.

The defense rested after calling its thirty-fifth witness and the Government promptly followed suit. There was no rebuttal testimony.

It probably will be at least two weeks before the conspiracy case goes to the jury. Federal Judge Harold R. Medina excused the 15 jurors, including three alternates, until October 4, indicating that final summations by the lawyers will begin then.

The next court session will be next Wednesday, when defense motions are expected to be presented in the absence of the jury.

Only 6 of the 11 defendants took the stand, although defense spokesmen had indicated when the trial began last January 17 that all would testify.

Originally, the 12 top leaders of the Communist Party, comprising its politburo, were indicted last year under the Smith Act on charges of conspiracy to advocate the overthrow of the United States Government by violence.

William Z. Foster, jr., the party's national chairman, was granted a separate trial because of a heart ailment in January.

The six defendants who testified in the trial were Benjamin J. Davis, jr., New York city councilman; John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper; Gilbert Green, Illinois party chairman; Robert Thompson, New York chairman; Henry Winston, organizational secretary; and Carl Winter, Michigan secretary.

The other five are Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the party; Gus. Hall, Ohio chairman; Irving Potash, manager of the Furriers Joint Council of New York, CIO; Jack Stachel, educational secretary; and John Williamson, trade union secretary.

Red Artillery Blasts Amoy, Troops Land

Hongkong, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Communist reports said today that units of Red Gen. Chen Yi's twenty-ninth Army landed at the southeast port of Amoy Thursday under cover of a heavy artillery barrage.

Amoy, last government port opposite Formosa, is on Haimun Island, separated from the mainland by a narrow strip of water.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek returned to Canton to direct the supreme council's discussions of latest military setbacks.

Communist pressure in west Hunan Province, about 250 miles northwest of Canton, was reported increasing, with the Communists moving six armies southward in three columns of two armies each.

Communists Held Aides in Spying Here

District Communist Party members aided and made possible the work of espionage agents in Government departments here, the House Committee on Un-American Activities charged yesterday.

The function of the Communist Party here as a kind of "service of supply" for spies within the Government was stressed by the committee in the foreword it wrote for a published transcript of recent hearings on communism in the District.

The committee declared that the District Communist Party, "because fo its location in the Nation's Capital, may be considered one of the most important affiliates of the Communist Party of the United States.

"Considerable attention has been given by the committee in the past to the activities of a secret Communist espionage ring which operated within the Government a few years ago.

(The trial of Alger Hiss, former State Department policy maker, grew out of committee-aired charges about the inner-circle Government espionage ring. A first trial ended in a hung jury, and he is awaiting a second trial. The first trial also produced admissions from another former State Department official, Henry Julian Wadleigh, that he had supplied secret information for the Russians while serving as a Government official.)

The committee foreword added: "We are frank to state that these espionage agents could not have successfully evaded detection—in fact they could not have operated without the aid of Communist agents working from outside the Government.

"This is a pattern which has long been typical of Communist operations throughout the world. It is similar to the practice of using outsiders to aid Communists operating within large industrial plants and is known in Communist jargon as 'concentration.' Such 'concentration rings' have in the past been known to render the following services to their fellow conspirators within Government agencies or strategic plants:

"1. To furnish financial aid, in some cases running into large sums.

"2. To handle the mechanics of Communist Party membership, dues payments, distribution of directives, literature, etc.

"3. To establish contact with Communist Party officials.

"4. To transmit Government documents and information to Communist Party officials.

"5. To furnish convenient meeting places.

"6. To furnish convenient mailing addresses and drops."

The foreword briefly summarized the cases on which eight persons were brought before the committee during its hearings in the District. The committee said the witnesses had "uniformly refused to answer questions on reported Communist affiliations on the grounds of self-incrimination. In other words, they have restored to the same conspiratorial methods of nondisclosure which have characterized known Communists in their appearance before the committee.

"It should be further noted how closely the Communist network in the District was interlocked and interwoven. Communist-front organizations and Communist-controlled unions employ Communists on their staffs. Communists supply these organizations with funds and a nucleus of active membership."

The committee said the Washington Cooperative Bookshop still is "one of the Communist Party's most important fronts in the District—it is principally known as an outlet in the Nation's Capital for Communist literature, as a Communist contact point, as a meeting place, and as a propaganda center for Communist lecturers."

Prague Admits 'Capitalistic Underground'

Prague, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Communist Minister of Justice Alexej Cepicka today disclosed existence of a "capitalistic underground" in Czechoslovakia and said it faced swift and sure punishment.

Cepicka, speaking at the opening of the Lawyers' Congress, admitted the government was being "harrassed" by the underground which he linked with the Roman Catholic Church. It was the first time a high official has admitted such an underground.

He spoke as Prague was flooded with rumors the government is preparing to hold a treason trial similar to the Budapest trial and amidst reports that hundreds of members of the Communist Party had been arrested.

Reliable church sources said four Catholic priests and three religious brothers were 'violently dragged away" from the Svordaov monastery in Bratislav, capital of strongly Catholic Slovakia, by Communist secret police.

The source said arrests of important vicars in Prague continued.

Soviet Rejects New Offers on Austrian Pact

New York, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Big Four Deputy Foreign Ministers met for the 212th time today to discuss an Austrian independence treaty. They agreed only that all should consult with their respective Foreign Ministers before meeting again.

Today's opening session in New York lasted a little more than four hours. Diplomatic sources said the Western deputies offered concessions on some of the nine articles remaining in dispute, but the Russians would not change their position in any way.

An American spokesman said "it was clear from the start the Russians were not prepared to modify their position."

The chief bargain offered the Soviets was a proposal to liberalize the Western position on the question of Russian oil rights in eastern Austria.

The next session probably will be held Monday.

Barkley Leaves Town—For St. Louis Perhaps

By The Associated Press

Vice President Barkley left the Capital for an undisclosed destination yesterday—but the guessing on St. Louis ran high.

An aide at Barkley's residence said he left word that he would not be back until late Sunday night.

Before he left, it had been reported that Barkley planned to attend a birthday party given by Mrs. Carleton Hadley, the vivacious St. Louis widow with whom the Vice President's name has been coupled romantically.

Monday Vote Set on Raises For Military

The Senate yesterday sped toward apparently certain passage of a bill to increase the pay of the armed forces by 302 million dollars a year.

The final vote was set for 5 p. m. Monday. A similar bill already has been approved by the House.

The Senate version carries some raise for every rank and grade in every branch of the three services. But it reduces allowances and some special provisions, with the result that some servicemen will not profit because they will offset their increase in pay.

Backers of the measure expect some votes against it, on economy grounds, but they are sure it will be enacted. They argued in yesterday's debate, the raise must be granted so the armed forces can attract and hold men of experience and leadership ability.

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has warned, the Senate must "either revise the pay scale or accept a progressive downgrading of our armed forces."

Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.) said the Navy is losing good men who refuse to reenlist because of lack of opportunities.

All Parties Accept Pact On Indonesia

The Hague, The Netherlands, Sept. 23 (AP).—Dutch and Indonesian negotiators have unanimously accepted the main points of a statute setting up a United States of Indonesia under the Dutch crown, it was learned today.

The three parties to the round table talks—the Dutch, the Indonesian Republicans and the Indonesian Federalists—formally notified the conference steering committee of their acceptance of the main points. The talks have been under way here for a month.

These were the points of agreement:

1. The charter of the union statute.
2. The positions and functions of the heads of the union.
3. The duties and composition of the conference of ministers of the union partners. These conferences will be held at regular intervals.
4. The duties and composition of the union's arbitration court.
5. Contact and cooperation among the parliaments of the union partners.

Details are not yet available.

Query on What Farmers Want Brings GOP Confusing Reply

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Sioux City, Iowa, Sept. 23.—The Republican Party today asked Midwest farmers, "What do you want?"

The answers were prompt but confusing. They ranged all the way from a plea for the Brannan plan and demands for 100 percent parity price supports plus "full agricultural production" to requests for a try-out for the Agricultural Act of 1948 with its provisions for a sliding scale of price supports to go into effect next January.

Republican leaders here admitted they have no program for the farms. Representative Clifford Hope of Kansas, part author of the present law, who delivered today's keynote speech, explained the GOP position in this manner:

"We Republicans believe that the way to solve these problems is to go first to the farmers themselves. So we are here today not to give you advice but to ask for your help in our efforts to work out an agricultural program which will be helpful to the farmer and to the Nation as a whole."

Admit Fear of Plan

Many of the Republican leaders here are unusually frank in declaring they are "scared of the Brannan plan." They are making no effort to hide the fact that the proposals by the Secretary of Agriculture have got more support from rank and file farmers than they expected.

Republican fears were aroused two weeks ago when a group of Republican farm leaders was called together at the Iowa State College at Ames to discuss their approach to this week's meetings. Reports from that meeting are that some good, old standpat Republicans came up with kind words for the Democratic program.

Iowa's Governor William S. Beardsley declared, "any sucessful farm program should be free from all political interference and implications. The greatest disservice that any political party or public servant can do to the American farmer is to drag this economic matter through the mire of partisan politics."

"Whoever the man or whatever the party, he who would trifle with this important business by pretending to offer a program which promises all things to all people at the price of regimentation and excessive regulation, should be branded as a self-seeking politician and unworthy of the confidence of the American farmer."

It remained to Hope, however, to do the blasting of the Brannan plan. He called it a labor-inspired measure. Most of his talk was devoted to denouncing the Democratic rally of last June when the Brannan farm plan was presented to the Midwest farmers.

"The Des Moines meeting was advertised and ballyhooed as a great farm meeting," Hope declared. "There were farmers there all right, but they were there as spectators. They listened to many speeches. Newspaper accounts give the idea that the meeting was a great rally of the Iowa and the AFL and the railroad labor organizations."

Hope gave half his time to attacking the unions represented at the Des Moines affair. He then paid his respects to the Brannan plan itself.

"Some people have wondered where this plan originated," he said. "There is no particular mystery about that. Everyone will remember the many promises the President made in the course of the campaign last fall. He had something for everybody. He said among other things he was going to support farm prices at high levels and at the same time bring down the cost of living.

"That sounded like nice work if you could do it—something like the pyramid clubs we heard so much about a few weeks ago. The Brannan plan would seem to be a direct effort to carry out the President's impossible campaign promises."

Steel Talks Resumed

uled bargaining conferences with the steelworkers in the next few days. The other five are Sharon Steel Corp., meeting in Youngstown, Ohio; Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., Youngstown; Shenango-Penn Mould, Sharpsville, Pa.; Rustless Steel Co., Baltimore, all today; and Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Co., Pittsburgh, Monday.

57 Firms Involved

A total of 57 companies and subsidiaries are involved in the steel dispute. All are expected to begin contract bargaining in the next few days.

Even before the first talks started the union received pension offers from two companies.

Follansbee Steel Corporation, with plants in Follansbee, W. Va., and Toronto, Ohio, offered to pay six cents an hour per man toward pensions if workers would contribute three cents. The firm already has a insurance program to which workers contribute. No union reaction to the proposal was immediately available.

Standard Steel Works of Lewistown, Pa., a Baldwin Locomotive subsidiary, was reported by the union to have accepted the recommendations of President Truman's fact-finding board for a 10-cent hourly package covering company-financed pensions and insurance.

Failure of industry and union to begin bargaining on the basis of that proposal brought on the latest steel crisis. The companies refused to be bound in advance to the non-contributory principle.

President Truman got the disputants to bargaining again for the first time since July 6 by asking each to give "the greatest weight and most earnest consideration" to the recommendations in talks during the latest six-day strike truce.

State Police Alerted For New Mine Violence

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 23 (AP).—State police and mine operators were on the alert today for a recurrence of violence in the Blair County coal fields.

Sheriff J. H. Summers telegraphed Gov. James H. Duff last night for State police assistance, declaring he was unable "with the men at my command to control the situation."

Summers said his plea was made after mine operators used shotguns to hold 300 roving pickets at bay until State police arrived at the Kenner Mine near Coupon, Pa.

The pickets were dispersed, Summers said, after four truckloads of coal—which the pickets threatened to dump—were driven away.

Mine operators at other points reported about 95 tons of coal had been dumped from trucks along Blair County roads, Summers said.

Girl, 11, Still Missing

Hemlock, N. Y., Sept. 23 (U.P.) Police officials admitted tonight that they had drawn a complete blank in five days of search for 11-year-old Joanne Lynn, who disappeared Monday morning while walking to school.

Union Orders Plans for Ford Strike Pushed

Detroit, Sept. 23 (AP).—Union leaders were told in a confidential memorandum today to proceed with plans for a strike of 115,000 Ford workers.

The memorandum said published reports that Ford and the CIO United Auto Workers are near a settlement are "completely erroneous and have no foundation in fact."

As a "final word of clarification on strategy" it added that the 12:01 a. m. Thursday contract termination deadline is not necessarily a strike deadline.

The secret document was signed by the UAW's National Ford Negotiating Committee and sent to all international and regional union officers.

To Keep Leaders Primed

It apparently was aimed at dispelling any belief that a settlement of the pension dispute is ready for signing and to keep union leaders primed for a strike if necessary.

Industry and labor observers had interpreted the UAW's contract termination notice last Monday as the equivalent of a strike notice.

But that notice, said the memorandum, "does not necessarily mean that a strike automatically begins" next Thursday if no settlement is reached by then.

"If a satisfactory settlement has not been reached by that time," it added, "all local unions will be notified officially as to what time a strike will start."

The union negotiators said that assignment of pickets, making of picket signs, and other strike preparations "should already be under way."

Ahead of Steel Date

The Ford contract expiration date is 48 hours ahead of a scheduled national steel strike. Some labor and industrial experts believe a Ford settlement might head off a steel strike.

Ford already has offered the UAW a pension plan valued by union sources as the equivalent of an 8¾ cents an hour wage boost. An employe insurance plan, to which the company contributes the equivalent of another 1¼ cent an hour, already is in effect.

Thus the two add up to the 10-cent-an-hour "package" increase recommended for the Nation's steel workers recently by a presidential fact-finding board.

The UAW officially has not yet dropped its original demands for $100 monthly pensions at the age of 60, a company-financed health insurance plan, and a cost-of-living wage boost estimated at 8 to 10 cents an hour.

The Ford offer reportedly would give workers pensions of $80 to $100 a month at the age of 68, completely company-financed.

Jewish Rites Mark Start of Year 5710

Rosh Hashanah services last night marked the beginning of the new year of 5710 and of a 10-day period of meditation and prayer for members of the Jewish faith.

To Jews, the season is the most solemn and deeply religious time of the year. It will come to its climax with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, which begins at sunset October 2.

Reform Jews will end their new year celebration after services this morning. Orthodox and Conservative Jews will continue to observe the holiday until sundown Sunday.

At Constitution Hall last night, Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld told members of the Washington Hebrew Congregation that "there is no greater religious challenge to any man than to treasure the spiritual resources of our strength and then to dedicate our lives so that the righteous influence of our blessed land shall fulfill its divine mission in the mystery of God's time."

Sees Mission for Nation

Stressing the fact that America is the freest country in the world today, Rabbi Gerstenfeld asserted that "in the years that lie ahead the entire world depends upon the leadership of this great America."

"To be a part of the American tradition is to be a partner in the greatest experiment in human righteousness the world has ever known," he said.

Rabbi Solomon H. Metz spiritual leader of Adas Israel Congregation, 5th and I sts. nw., extended his "heartfelt wishes to the Washington community for health, happiness, normal and spiritual uplift" on the eve of the Jewish high holy days.

In his sermon last night, he said that in spite of the strife and troubles the world has known in the first part of this century, there is great hope in the fact that men today are beginning to realize that the peace of mind and the good life the world is seeking stem from man's spiritual and moral resources.

'Message of New Year'

"The message of the new year," he said, "is that in order to find this fulfillment we must revive our faith in the eternal values of life, our faith in ourselves, our faith in our fellow men, and our faith in the future and our faith in God."

Rabbi Leo Ginsburg, new spiritual leader of congregation B'nai Jacob, conducted services at the Anacostia Temple House, 2407 Minnesota ave. se.

"It is changed men the world needs, not merely changed opinions," he declared. "When people are changed, they begin to look out on life with a new kind of vision.

"When we seek God's strength, we change, and only changed men can change the world. The change is so great that all things become new—the world becomes a new creation," Rabbi Ginsburg said.

Cornerstone Laying Sunday For Extension at Oxon Hill

Dr. Fred C. Reynolds, superintendent of the East Washington District of the Methodist Church, will officiate at cornerstone laying ceremonies for an extension to Oxon Hill, Md., Methodist Church at 3 p. m. Sunday.

The extension will include a new chancel and four large Sunday school class rooms. One large room in the basement will be arranged so it can be used for both Sunday school classes and a kitchen. Much of the construction is being done by members of the church and community residents.

Additions to the present building were made necessary by a great increase in Sunday school attendance since early this year. In the past three years Sunday school attendance has jumped 300 percent in the community and church attendance has increased 400 percent.

The first brick church of the Oxon Hill congregation was built in 1811. Eighty-six years later the church was rebuilt, with brick from the original building used in the foundation, and some of the original timbers used as floor joists. More than $3000 has been spent on repairs and renovations of the building since 1946.

The present minister is the Rev. William C. Harpold, who has held the pastorate since 1946. In June Mr. Harpold resigned from the Marine Corps after 25 years service to devote full time to the church.

Dr. Bennett to Speak At Wallace Church

Dr. Vincent Bennett, evangelist and author, will preach at 11 a. m. and 3:30 and 8 p. m. Sunday at Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church, New Hampshire ave. and Randolph st. nw.

Dr. Bennett, who is a graduate of McCormick Theological Seminary, recently resigned as assistant to the president of Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill., to devote his full time to conducting Bible conferences. He spoke at a banquet for the Wallace Memorial young people last night and is scheduled to speak at a picnic of the group at Kensington today.

Churches Plan Education Week Events

Religious education week will be observed in many churches during the week of September 25 through October 2.

Dr. Jones

The week was organized 19 years ago by the International Council of Religious Education, which has headquarters in Chicago, Ill.

Both the President and the District Commissioners have announced their support of the aims of Religious Education Week.

In a letter to the general secretary of I.C.R.E., President Truman asserted that "the spiritual ideals which impelled our forefathers to seek freedom of worship in this country must constantly be renewed if our democratic institutions are not to decay."

He declared that the week would "demonstrate the incontestable validity of religious teaching in our struggle with the forces of selfish materialism, both at home and abroad."

In a formal proclamation indorsing Religious Education Week, the Commissioners said:

"We urge our fellow citizens to support each his own church or synagogue and the educational enterprises associated with it, to work together in whatever ways they can for the training of better citizens, to lead our city to a new understanding of spiritual values and their important role in our democracy, and to continue the free religious heritage that has helped to make America foremost among the nations of the world."

As part of the week's events, the Religious Education Week Committee of the Washington Federation of Churches is sponsoring a dinner honoring church school superintendents at 6:30 p. m. Monday at Chevy Chase Methodist Church, 6401 Connecticut ave.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Philip C. Jones, associate secretary for the mid-century world convention of the World Convention of Christian Education. Dr. Jones has held pastorates in Meriden, Conn., Cleveland, Ohio, and New York City.

He is the author of "The Church School Superintendent" and an adult guide of the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, and the Rev. Paul Reaser, pastor of Atonement Lutheran Church, will also speak at the dinner.

Members of Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw., will welcome the Rev. and Mrs. J. Artley Leatherman at a tea from 4 to 6 p. m. at the church. Mr. Leatherman was recently named pastor of the church to succeed the Rev. Dr. H. W. Burgan, who retired last spring.

27 Baptist Churches of Area To Have Evangelistic Series

Evangelistic services will be held at 27 Greater Washington Baptist churches during the coming two weeks.

The city-wide services are sponsored by the missions department of the D. C. Baptist Convention, of which Dr. William J. Crowder is director. In preparation for the evangelistic campaign, many churches in the area have had programs of visitation evangelism during the past week.

In a letter to the Rev. Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., President Truman expressed approval of the aims of the campaign and said he hoped it will "set an example which will bring many to a realization of the strength that lies in the everlasting reality of religion."

Rally Set for Tonight

The program will open with a rally service at 7:45 p. m. today at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw.

The Rev. Dr. C. E. Matthews, director of the campaign and superintendent of evangelism of the Home Missions Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, will speak and Dr. E. Powell Lee of Dallas, Tex., will lead singing.

During the campaign there will be noonday services at 12:10 p. m. at New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, 1301 New York ave. nw.

Dr. Matthews will preach at the noonday services September 26 through 30 and the Rev. Dr. W. A. Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Dallas, Tex., will conduct the services October 2 through 7.

Forrestal's Papers Kept Top Secret

By The Associated Press

The White House has the private papers of the late James V. Forrestal, former Secretary of Defense, under lock and seal and will not make them public.

The documents—particularly Forrestal's diary—have been sought by the House Armed Services Committee in the belief they might shed some light on the Navy-Air Force controversy over the merits of the giant B-36 bomber.

Meanwhile, a naval court of inquiry, which has been looking into the source of now-discredited charges of politics and fraud which swirled about the purchase of B-36's by the Air Force, recessed indefinitely. The court is waiting to see whether the House Armed Services Committee will allow it to inspect a report containing information from Air Secretary Symington.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross disclosed the presence of Forrestal's personal papers at the White House. He told reporters Forrestal himself left them there for safekeeping shortly after he resigned as Defense Secretary. A short while later Forrestal ended his life in a leap from a window of the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md.

Ross said the papers and the three-drawer cabinet that contains them are considered private property. He said they "have not and will not be opened."

"They are under seal and are being held for the executors," Ross said.

He explained that Forrestal asked that his papers be kept at the White House because his own house was being closed and he wanted them in a safe place.

In recessing the naval court of inquiry indefinitely, Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid declared "there is no bickering" with Symington.

The Secretary of the Air Force refused Thursday to take the witness stand and tell the court what he knows about the origin of a once-anonymous memorandum spreading rumors the B-36 was obsolete but that Symington and other officials stuck by it for political reasons. A civilian naval official, Cedric R. Worth, finally admitted writing the discredited memo. He was suspended from his job.

Symington, in declining to be a witness "at this time," told the three-admiral naval court the information he has on the B-36 is based on a report which has been given to the House Armed Services Committee. He said Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of that group, had instructed him not to disclose its contents.

The naval court asked Vinson for the report. He replied it is up to the committee whether to make it available.

'Sneak Blow'

Gen. Kenney Warns U. S. Of Attack

Santa Monica, Calif., Sept. 23 (AP).—The United States now must maintain "24-hour radar detection to defend itself against a sneak attack," the Air Force's Gen. George C. Kenney warned today.

"This is a portentous day in history," he said in referring to President Truman's announcement the Russians recently set off an atomic explosion.

The announcement caused him to alter a speech he had prepared for a meeting of 500 military, civic and industrial leaders marking the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first round-the-world flight.

Surprised at Delay

General Kenney said he was "surprised that our intelligence service has not told us before of the fact Russia was so far advanced in nuclear fission research."

Returning to his prepared speech, the general said, "A fairly modest number of modern bombers using atomic bomb, in a single raid, now has the capability of exerting more foot pounds of destructive energy than the total exerted by all the bombers of all belligerents combined throughout the whole of World War II."

"No Time to Relax"

General Kenney, commander of the Air University at Montgomery, Ala., and wartime Allied Air Force commander in the South Pacific, warned that "from all the signs that stare at us these days . . . this is no time for us to relax our vigilance and run the risk of a newer and far more disastrous Pearl Harbor."

He recalled how three Army fliers 25 years ago today landed at Santa Monica after having flown around the world in 175 days, contrasting this with last spring's nonstop world flight of the B-50 Lucky Lady in 94 hours.

Vishinsky Calls For Peace Pact

nese government, which yesterday accused Moscow of directing and aiding Chinese Communists.

Vishinsky dismissed the China charges as slanderous.

Vishinsky made the familiar blasts at the Western powers, especially the United States and Britain, but he ended on a high note of peace, proposing that the General Assembly:

1. Condemn preparations for a new war he said were being made in the United States and Britain.
2. Condemn further delays in adoption by the U. N. of treaties for the "unconditional prohibition" of atomic weapons and for international control of atomic energy.
3. Call on all nations to settle their disputes peacefully and for the United States, Britain, China, France and the Soviet Union to conclude among themselves a pact for the strengthening of peace.

Impact Is Tremendous

Mr. Truman's atomic announcement in Washington at noon-time hit the U. N. Assembly with tremendous impact.

Delegates tensely discussed the implications and sat back to hear what Vishinsky had to say.

Most of Vishinsky's applause came, as usual, from the Slav countries and from a large Russian spectator group at the side of the hall. Acheson did not applaude after Vishinsky spoke and he would not comment on the speech.

Instead of flailing the air with his arms as he did when he made his "warmonger" speech in 1947 and in many other speeches, the Soviet Foreign Minister frequently leaned on the speaker's stand.

It was his first major policy speech in the U. N. as Foreign Minister. In the past he has appeared here as Chief Deputy to V. M. Molotov, whom he replaced last winter.

Vishinsky dealt first with Nationalist China's chief delegate, T. F. Tsiang. He accused Tsiang of distorting facts and making insinuations against Russia. He said this gave proof of one thing only—"of the beastly hatred of the foundering reactionary Chinese circles which he (Tsiang) represents" for everything advanced and truly democratic.

Charges By-Passing

Then Vishinsky got on more familiar ground. He accused the United States and Britain of undermining and by-passing the U. N. through the North Atlantic Pact, the Marshall Plan and in many organizations of the U. N.

With sarcasm, he said the sponsors of the North Atlantic Pact had said it was meant to strengthen the U. N. but that in reality it weakened the organization.

"The creation of a group of states," he said, "participating in the North Atlantic Alliance stands in direct contradiction to the U. N. Charer and represents a direct violation by member states of the U. N. of the obligations undertaken by them in accordance with that Charter."

He said the United States and Britain are not cooperating in developing friendly relations among nations but are creating aggressive military blocs and preparing for a new war. He said the United States and Britain are engaged in a frantic arms race and are building new military, naval and air bases over the world.

Both Sides Rest Cases In Red Trial

New York, Sept. 23 (AP).—Taking of testimony in the trial of 11 American Communist leaders came to an end today in the trial's thirty-sixth week.

The defense rested after calling its thirty-fifth witness and the Government promptly followed suit. There was no rebuttal testimony.

It probably will be at least two weeks before the conspiracy case goes to the jury. Federal Judge Harold R. Medina excused the 15 jurors, including three alternates, until October 4, indicating that final summations by the lawyers will begin then.

The next court session will be next Wednesday, when defense motions are expected to be presented in the absence of the jury.

Only 6 of the 11 defendants took the stand, although defense spokesmen had indicated when the trial began last January 17 that all would testify.

Originally, the 12 top leaders of the Communist Party, comprising its politburo, were indicted last year under the Smith Act on charges of conspiracy to advocate the overthrow of the United States Government by violence.

William Z. Foster, jr., the party's national chairman, was granted a separate trial because of a heart ailment in January.

The six defendants who testified in the trial were Benjamin J. Davis, jr., New York city councilman; John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper; Gilbert Green, Illinois party chairman; Robert Thompson, New York chairman; Henry Winston, organizational secretary; and Carl Winter, Michigan secretary.

The other five are Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the party; Gus Hall, Ohio chairman; Irving Potash, manager of the Furriers Joint Council of New York, CIO; Jack Stachel, educational secretary; and John Williamson, trade union secretary.

Red Artillery Blasts Amoy, Troops Land

Hongkong, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Communist reports said today that units of Red Gen. Chen Yi's twenty-ninth Army landed at the southeast port of Amoy Thursday under cover of a heavy artillery barrage.

Amoy, last government port opposite Formosa, is on Haimun Island, separated from the mainland by a narrow strip of water.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek returned to Canton to direct the supreme council's discussions of latest military setbacks.

Communist pressure in west Hunan Province, about 250 miles northwest of Canton, was reported increasing, with the Communists moving six armies southward in three columns of two armies each.

Communists Held Aides in Spying Here

District Communist Party members aided and made possible the work of espionage agents in Government departments here, the House Committee on Un-American Activities charged yesterday.

The function of the Communist Party here as a kind of "service of supply" for spies within the Government was stressed by the committee in the foreword it wrote for a published transcript of recent hearings on communism in the District.

The committee declared that the District Communist Party, "because fo its location in the Nation's Capital, may be considered one of the most important affiliates of the Communist Party of the United States.

"Considerable attention has been given by the committee in the past to the activities of a secret Communist espionage ring which operated within the Government a few years ago.

(The trial of Alger Hiss, former State Department policy maker, grew out of committee-aired charges about the inner-circle Government espionage ring. A first trial ended in a hung jury, and he is awaiting a second trial. The first trial also produced admissions from another former State Department official, Henry Julian Wadleigh, that he had supplied secret information for the Russians while serving as a Government official.)

The committee foreword added: "We are frank to state that these espionage agents could not have successfully evaded detection—in fact they could not have operated without the aid of Communist agents working from outside the Government.

"This is a pattern which has long been typical of Communist operations throughout the world. It is similar to the practice of using outsiders to aid Communists operating within large industrial plants and is known in Communist jargon as 'concentration.' Such 'concentration rings' have in the past been known to render the following services to their fellow conspirators within Government agencies or strategic plants:

"1. To furnish financial aid, in some cases running into large sums.

"2. To handle the mechanics of Communist Party membership, dues payments, distribution of directives, literature, etc.

"3. To establish contact with Communist Party officials.

"4. To transmit Government documents and information to Communist Party officials.

"5. To furnish convenient meeting places.

"6. To furnish convenient mailing addresses and drops."

The foreword briefly summarized the cases on which eight persons were brought before the committee during its hearings in the District. The committee said the witnesses had "uniformly refused to answer questions on reported Communist affiliations on the grounds of self-incrimination. In other words, they have restored to the same conspiratorial methods of nondisclosure which have characterized known Communists in their appearance before the committee.

"It should be further noted how closely the Communist network in the District was interlocked and interwoven. Communist-front organizations and Communist-controlled unions employ Communists on their staffs. Communists supply these organizations with funds and a nucleus of active membership."

The committee said the Washington Cooperative Bookshop still is "one of the Communist Party's most important fronts in the District—it is principally known as an outlet in the Nation's Capital for Communist literature, as a Communist contact point, as a meeting place, and as a propaganda center for Communist lecturers."

Prague Admits 'Capitalistic Underground'

Prague, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Communist Minister of Justice Alexej Cepicka today disclosed existence of a "capitalistic underground" in Czechoslovakia and said it faced swift and sure punishment.

Cepicka, speaking at the opening of the Lawyers' Congress, admitted the government was being "harrassed" by the underground which he linked with the Roman Catholic Church. It was the first time a high official has admitted such an underground.

He spoke as Prague was flooded with rumors the government is preparing to hold a treason trial similar to the Budapest trial and amidst reports that hundreds of members of the Communist Party had been arrested.

Reliable church sources said four Catholic priests and three religious brothers were 'violently dragged away" from the Svordaov monastery in Bratislav, capital of strongly Catholic Slovakia, by Communist secret police.

Soviet Rejects New Offers on Austrian Pact

New York, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Big Four Deputy Foreign Ministers met for the 212th time today to discuss an Austrian independence treaty. They agreed only that all should consult with their respective Foreign Ministers before meeting again.

Today's opening session in New York lasted a little more than four hours. Diplomatic sources said the Western deputies offered concessions on some of the nine articles remaining in dispute, but the Russians would not change their position in any way.

An American spokesman said "it was clear from the start the Russians were not prepared to modify their position."

The chief bargain offered the Soviets was a proposal to liberalize the Western position on the question of Russian oil rights in eastern Austria.

The next session probably will be held Monday.

Barkley Leaves Town—For St. Louis Perhaps

By The Associated Press

Vice President Barkley left the Capital for an undisclosed destination yesterday—but the guessing on St. Louis ran high.

An aide at Barkley's residence said he left word that he would not be back until late Sunday night.

Before he left, it had been reported that Barkley planned to attend a birthday party given by Mrs. Carleton Hadley, the vivacious St. Louis widow with whom the Vice President's name has been coupled romantically.

Monday Vote Set on Raises For Military

The Senate yesterday sped toward apparently certain passage of a bill to increase the pay of the armed forces by 302 million dollars a year.

The final vote was set for 5 p. m. Monday. A similar bill already has been approved by the House.

The Senate version carries some raise for every rank and grade in every branch of the three services. But it reduces allowances and some special provisions, with the result that some servicemen will not profit because they will offset their increase in pay.

Backers of the measure expect some votes against it, on economy grounds, but they are sure it will be enacted. They argued in yesterday's debate, the raise must be granted so the armed forces can attract and hold men of experience and leadership ability.

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has warned, the Senate must "either revise the pay scale or accept a progressive downgrading of our armed forces."

Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.) said the Navy is losing good men who refuse to reenlist because of lack of opportunities.

All Parties Accept Pact On Indonesia

The Hague, The Netherlands, Sept. 23 (AP).—Dutch and Indonesian negotiators have unanimously accepted the main points of a statute setting up a United States of Indonesia under the Dutch crown, it was learned today.

The three parties to the round table talks—the Dutch, the Indonesian Republicans and the Indonesian Federalists—formally notified the conference steering committee of their acceptance of the main points. The talks have been under way here for a month.

These were the points of agreement:

1. The charter of the union statute.
2. The positions and functions of the heads of the union.
3. The duties and composition of the conference of ministers of the union partners. These conferences will be held at regular intervals.
4. The duties and composition of the union's arbitration court.
5. Contact and cooperation among the parliaments of the union partners.

Query on What Farmers Want Brings GOP Confusing Reply

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Sioux City, Iowa, Sept. 23.—The Republican Party today asked Midwest farmers, "What do you want?"

The answers were prompt but confusing. They ranged all the way from a plea for the Brannan plan and demands for 100 percent parity price supports plus "full agricultural production" to requests for a try-out for the Agricultural Act of 1948 with its provisions for a sliding scale of price supports to go into effect next January.

Republican leaders here admitted they have no program for the farms. Representative Clifford Hope of Kansas, part author of the present law, who delivered today's keynote speech, explained the GOP position in this manner:

"We Republicans believe that the way to solve these problems is to go first to the farmers themselves. So we are here today not to give you advice but to ask for your help in our efforts to work out an agricultural program which will be helpful to the farmer and to the Nation as a whole."

Admit Fear of Plan

Many of the Republican leaders here are unusually frank in declaring they are "scared of the Brannan plan." They are making no effort to hide the fact that the proposals by the Secretary of Agriculture have got more support from rank and file farmers than they expected.

Republican fears were aroused two weeks ago when a group of Republican farm leaders was called together at the Iowa State College at Ames to discuss their approach to this week's meetings. Reports from that meeting are that some good, old standpat Republicans came up with kind words for the Democratic program.

Iowa's Governor William S. Beardsley declared, "any sucessful farm program should be free from all political interference and implications. The greatest disservice that any political party or public servant can do to the American farmer is to drag this economic matter through the mire of partisan politics."

"Whoever the man or whatever the party, he who would trifle with this important business by pretending to offer a program which promises all things to all people at the price of regimentation and excessive regulation, should be branded as a self-seeking politician and unworthy of the confidence of the American farmer."

It remained to Hope, however, to do the blasting of the Brannan plan. He called it a labor-inspired measure. Most of his talk was devoted to denouncing the Democratic rally of last June when the Brannan farm plan was presented to the Midwest farmers.

"The Des Moines meeting was advertised and ballyhooed as a great farm meeting," Hope declared. "There were farmers there all right, but they were there as spectators. They listened to many speeches. Newspaper accounts give the idea that the meeting was a great rally of the Iowa and the AFL and the railroad labor organizations."

Hope gave half his time to attacking the unions represented at the Des Moines affair. He then paid his respects to the Brannan plan itself.

"Some people have wondered where this plan originated," he said. "There is no particular mystery about that. Everyone will remember the many promises the President made in the course of the campaign last fall. He had something for everybody. He said among other things he was going to support farm prices at high levels and at the same time bring down the cost of living.

"That sounded like nice work if you could do it—something like the pyramid clubs we heard so much about a few weeks ago. The Brannan plan would seem to be a direct effort to carry out the President's impossible campaign promises."

uled bargaining conferences with the steelworkers in the next few days. The other five are Sharon Steel Corp., meeting in Youngstown, Ohio; Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., Youngstown; Shenango-Penn Mould, Sharpsville, Pa.; Rustless Steel Co., Baltimore, all today; and Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Co., Pittsburgh, Monday.

57 Firms Involved

A total of 57 companies and subsidiaries are involved in the steel dispute. All are expected to begin contract bargaining in the next few days.

Even before the first talks started the union received pension offers from two companies.

Follansbee Steel Corporation, with plants in Follansbee, W. Va., and Toronto, Ohio, offered to pay six cents an hour per man toward pensions if workers would contribute three cents. The firm already has a insurance program to which workers contribute. No union reaction to the proposal was immediately available.

Standard Steel Works of Lewistown, Pa., a Baldwin Locomotive subsidiary, was reported by the union to have accepted the recommendations of President Truman's fact-finding board for a 10-cent hourly package covering company-financed pensions and insurance.

Failure of industry and union to begin bargaining on the basis of that proposal brought on the latest steel crisis. The companies refused to be bound in advance to the noncontributory principle.

President Truman got the disputants to bargaining again for the first time since July 6 by asking each to give "the greatest weight and most earnest consideration" to the recommendations in talks during the latest six-day strike truce.

State Police Alerted For New Mine Violence

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 23 (AP).—State police and mine operators were on the alert today for a recurrence of violence in the Blair County coal fields.

Sheriff J. H. Summers telegraphed Gov. James H. Duff last night for State police assistance, declaring he was unable "with the men at my command to control the situation."

Summers said his plea was made after mine operators used shotguns to hold 300 roving pickets at bay until State police arrived at the Kenner Mine near Coupon, Pa.

The pickets were dispersed, Summers said, after four truckloads of coal—which the pickets threatened to dump—were driven away.

Mine operators at other points reported about 95 tons of coal had been dumped from trucks along Blair County roads, Summers said.

Girl, 11, Still Missing

Hemlock, N. Y., Sept. 23 (U.P.). Police officials admitted tonight that they had drawn a complete blank in five days of search for 11-year-old Joanne Lynn, who disappeared Monday morning while walking to school.

Union Orders Plans for Ford Strike Pushed

Detroit, Sept. 23 (AP).—Union leaders were told in a confidential memorandum today to proceed with plans for a strike of 115,000 Ford workers.

The memorandum said published reports that Ford and the CIO United Auto Workers are near a settlement are "completely erroneous and have no foundation in fact."

As a "final word of clarification on strategy" it added that the 12:01 a. m. Thursday contract termination deadline is not necessarily a strike deadline.

The secret document was signed by the UAW's National Ford Negotiating Committee and sent to all international and regional union officers.

To Keep Leaders Primed

It apparently was aimed at dispelling any belief that a settlement of the pension dispute is ready for signing and to keep union leaders primed for a strike if necessary.

Industry and labor observers had interpreted the UAW's contract termination notice last Monday as the equivalent of a strike notice.

But that notice, said the memorandum, "does not necessarily mean that a strike automatically begins" next Thursday if no settlement is reached by then.

"If a satisfactory settlement has not been reached by that time," it added, "all local unions will be notified officially as to what time a strike will start."

The union negotiators said that assignment of pickets, making of picket signs, and other strike preparations "should already be under way."

Ahead of Steel Date

The Ford contract expiration date is 48 hours ahead of a scheduled national steel strike. Some labor and industrial experts believe a Ford settlement might head off a steel strike.

Ford already has offered the UAW a pension plan valued by union sources as the equivalent of an 8¾ cents an hour wage boost. An employe insurance plan, to which the company contributes the equivalent of another 1¼ cent an hour, already is in effect.

Thus the two add up to the 10-cent-an-hour "package" increase recommended for the Nation's steel workers recently by a presidential fact-finding board.

The UAW officially has not yet dropped its original demands for $100 monthly pensions at the age of 60, a company-financed health insurance plan, and a cost-of-living wage boost estimated at 8 to 10 cents an hour.

The Ford offer reportedly would give workers pensions of $80 to $100 a month at the age of 68, completely company-financed.

Jewish Rites Mark Start of Year 5710

Rosh Hashanah services last night marked the beginning of the new year of 5710 and of a 10-day period of meditation and prayer for members of the Jewish faith.

To Jews, the season is the most solemn and deeply religious time of the year. It will come to its climax with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, which begins at sunset October 2.

Reform Jews will end their new year celebration after services this morning. Orthodox and Conservative Jews will continue to observe the holiday until sundown Sunday.

At Constitution Hall last night, Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld told members of the Washington Hebrew Congregation that "there is no greater religious challenge to any man than to treasure the spiritual resources of our strength and then to dedicate our lives so that the righteous influence of our blessed land shall fulfill its divine mission in the mystery of God's time."

Sees Mission for Nation

Stressing the fact that America is the freest country in the world today, Rabbi Gerstenfeld asserted that "in the years that lie ahead the entire world depends upon the leadership of this great America."

"To be a part of the American tradition is to be a partner in the greatest experiment in human righteousness the world has ever known," he said.

Rabbi Solomon H. Metz spiritual leader of Adas Israel Congregation, 5th and I sts. nw., extended his "heartfelt wishes to the Washington community for health, happiness, normal and spiritual uplift" on the eve of the Jewish high holy days.

In his sermon last night, he said that in spite of the strife and troubles the world has known in the first part of this century, there is great hope in the fact that men today are beginning to realize that the peace of mind and the good life the world is seeking stem from man's spiritual and moral resources.

'Message of New Year'

"The message of the new year," he said, "is that in order to find this fulfillment we must revive our faith in the eternal values of life, our faith in ourselves, our faith in our fellow men, and our faith in the future and our faith in God."

Rabbi Leo Ginsburg, new spiritual leader of congregation B'nai Jacob, conducted services at the Anacostia Temple House, 2407 Minnesota ave. se.

"It is changed men the world needs, not merely changed opinions," he declared. "When people are changed, they begin to look out on life with a new kind of vision.

"When we seek God's strength, we change, and only changed men can change the world. The change is so great that all things become new—the world becomes a new creation," Rabbi Ginsburg said.

Cornerstone Laying Sunday For Extension at Oxon Hill

Dr. Fred C. Reynolds, superintendent of the East Washington District of the Methodist Church, will officiate at cornerstone laying ceremonies for an extension to Oxon Hill, Md., Methodist Church at 3 p. m. Sunday.

The extension will include a new chancel and four large Sunday school class rooms. One large room in the basement will be arranged so it can be used for both Sunday school classes and a kitchen. Much of the construction is being done by members of the church and community residents.

Additions to the present building were made necessary by a great increase in Sunday school attendance since early this year. In the past three years Sunday school attendance has jumped 300 percent in the community and church attendance has increased 400 percent.

The first brick church of the Oxon Hill congregation was built in 1811. Eighty-six years later the church was rebuilt, with brick from the original building used in the foundation, and some of the original timbers used as floor joists. More than $3000 has been spent on repairs and renovations of the building since 1946.

The present minister is the Rev. William C. Harpold, who has held the pastorate since 1946. In June Mr. Harpold resigned from the Marine Corps after 25 years service to devote full time to the church.

Dr. Bennett to Speak At Wallace Church

Dr. Vincent Bennett, evangelist and author, will preach at 11 a. m. and 3:30 and 8 p. m. Sunday at Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church, New Hampshire ave. and Randolph st. nw.

Dr. Bennett, who is a graduate of McCormick Theological Seminary, recently resigned as assistant to the president of Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill., to devote his full time to conducting Bible conferences. He spoke at a banquet for the Wallace Memorial young people last night and is scheduled to speak at a picnic of the group at Kensington today.

Churches Plan Education Week Events

Religious education week will be observed in many churches during the week of September 25 through October 2.

Dr. Jones

The week was organized 19 years ago by the International Council of Religious Education, which has headquarters in Chicago, Ill.

Both the President and the District Commissioners have announced their support of the aims of Religious Education Week.

In a letter to the general secretary of I.C.R.E., President Truman asserted that "the spiritual ideals which impelled our forefathers to seek freedom of worship in this country must constantly be renewed if our democratic institutions are not to decay."

He declared that the week would "demonstrate the incontestable validity of religious teaching in our struggle with the forces of selfish materialism, both at home and abroad."

In a formal proclamation indorsing Religious Education Week, the Commissioners said:

"We urge our fellow citizens to support each his own church or synagogue and the educational enterprises associated with it, to work together in whatever ways they can for the training of better citizens, to lead our city to a new understanding of spiritual values and their important role in our democracy, and to continue the free religious heritage that has helped to make America foremost among the nations of the world."

As part of the week's events, the Religious Education Week Committee of the Washington Federation of Churches is sponsoring a dinner honoring church school superintendents at 6:30 p. m. Monday at Chevy Chase Methodist Church, 6401 Connecticut ave.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Philip C. Jones, associate secretary for the mid-century world convention of the World Convention of Christian Education. Dr. Jones has held pastorates in Meriden, Conn., Cleveland, Ohio, and New York City.

He is the author of "The Church School Superintendent" and an adult guide of the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, and the Rev. Paul Reaser, pastor of Atonement Lutheran Church, will also speak at the dinner.

Members of Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw., will welcome the Rev. and Mrs. J. Artley Leatherman at a tea from 4 to 6 p. m. at the church. Mr. Leatherman was recently named pastor of the church to succeed the Rev. Dr. H. W. Burgan, who retired last spring.

27 Baptist Churches of Area To Have Evangelistic Series

Evangelistic services will be held at 27 Greater Washington Baptist churches during the coming two weeks.

The city-wide services are sponsored by the missions department of the D. C. Baptist Convention, of which Dr. William J. Crowder is director. In preparation for the evangelistic campaign, many churches in the area have had programs of visitation evangelism during the past week.

In a letter to the Rev. Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., President Truman expressed approval of the aims of the campaign and said he hoped it will "set an example which will bring many to a realization of the strength that lies in the everlasting reality of religion."

Rally Set for Tonight

The program will open with a rally service at 7:45 p. m. today at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw.

The Rev. Dr. C. E. Matthews, director of the campaign and superintendent of evangelism of the Home Missions Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, will speak and Dr. E. Powell Lee of Dallas, Tex., will lead singing.

During the campaign there will be noonday services at 12:10 p. m. at New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, 1301 New York ave. nw.

Dr. Matthews will preach at the noonday services September 26 through 30 and the Rev. Dr. W. A. Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Dallas, Tex., will conduct the services October 2 through 7.

Zion Baptists Set 85th Anniversary

Sunday School

Attendance Mark of 45 Years Is Set

Dr. E. E. Richardson, 76-year-old pastor emeritus of Congress Heights Baptist Church, Esther and Brothers pls. se., will round out 45 years of Sunday school attendance Sunday.

Dr. Richardson

Dr. Richardson, who has never missed a Sunday class, agreed yesterday that 45 years was "quite a little while" and said he thought it established some kind of a record.

Unlike most people, Dr. Richardson didn't attend church school as a boy, but began going after he came to Washington. A distant cousin of former President Calvin Coolidge, Dr. Richardson was born and reared in rural Vermont and couldn't get to Sunday school.

For most of the 45 years, the former pastor has been teacher of a Sunday school class, first at Calvary Baptist Church and then at Congress Heights after he became its pastor in 1909. He retired in 1943.

Even a year's trip around the world didn't break Dr. Richardson's attendance record. The ship almost always managed to land so he could make it to a class somewhere, he said, and when it didn't, the Baptist clergyman conducted a class on the ship.

On Sunday the adult department at Congress Heights Church will take time out to honor him on his forty-fifth anniversary. James H. Kettering, Sunday school superintendent, will speak at the ceremony at 9:45 a. m.

In addition to being pastor emeritus of Congress Heights Church, Dr. Richardson is professor emeritus of philosophy at George Washington University, where he taught from 1911 to 1938.

Dr. Richardson is also a medical doctor, and practiced in Washington for 17 years before turning to his work as pastor and professor of philosophy. Although he could be his own doctor, he pointed out that he had "never been sick a day in his life" and never needed any medical care.

Author of several books on philosophy and religion, Dr. Richardson is now working on a volume about the metaphysics of religion. He and his wife, who is also active in Baptist work, live at 3214 10th pl. se.

Zion Baptist Church, 337 F st. sw., which was organized before the end of the Civil War by a small group of free Negroes, this week will celebrate its eighty-fifth anniversary.

The church has had a history of unbroken unity, and today has a membership of 850, with the Rev. Alfonso Joseph Edwards as pastor. Originally services were held in a feed store on the present site, later a frame building was erected, and the present church has been in use since 1892.

Attending the anniversary celebration will be John Wiggins, 105 years old, who was born in slavery and has been a member of the church since it was founded.

Events during the anniversary week will include a special service at 11 a. m. Sunday led by the pastor, and an ordination service at 4 p. m. Sunday with the Rev. Earl Harrison, pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church, as guest speaker. On Tuesday at 8 p. m. there will be a musical program, and on Thursday at 8 p. m. a church birthday party and homecoming service. Next Sunday at 8 p. m. the church will dedicate a new organ.

Connally's Son Is Nominated As U. S. Judge

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday nominated Ben Connally and James V. Allred, Houston attorneys, to be Federal district judges for southern Texas.

Connally is the son of Senator Connally (D., Tex.).

Allred is a former Texas Governor and one time judge of the same court to which he again has been nominated.

After the nominations were announced, Senator Johnson (D., Tex.) issued a statement saying he had recommended the appointment of the 39-year-old son of his colleague. Senator Connally issued a statement saying he had taken no part in the nomination of his son.

Opposition that blocked nomination of Allred six years ago to be a judge on the Fifth Federal Circuit Court of Appeals is not expected to be raised to his present nomination to a district judgeship.

The complaints then were raised principally by Louisiana Senators, who contended the appointment belonged to their State because the vacancy being filled was created by the departure from the Circuit Court of a Louisianan. The Circuit Court covers several Southern States.

Former Texas Senator W. Lee O'Daniel, who had defeated Allred for the Senate in 1942, also objected to confirmation of Allred.

O'Daniel charged Allred had given up his Federal district judgeship to run against him, with the understanding that President Roosevelt would reappoint him later to another Federal position if he did not win the senatorial contest.

This Allred steadfastly denied.

President Truman yesterday nominated John C. Pickett of Wyoming to be a judge of the United States Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals.

The circuit serves Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Kansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Pickett now is United States attorney for Wyoming. His home is in Cheyenne. If his nomination is confirmed by the Senate, he will become the circuit's fifth judge. It now has four. The fifth judgeship is one of 27 new Federal judgeships established this year by Congress.

Cleveland Park Church to Hold Monthly Dinners

The first in a series of monthly fellowship dinners for members of Cleveland Park Congregational Church, 3400 Lowell st. nw., will be held Wednesday at 6 p. m.

Dr. Alfred Welsey Hurst, pastor of the church, said the dinners have been planned so that whole families could particiipate as family groups, rather than individuals.

Dr. and Mrs. Hurst and the church moderator and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Kemmell, will receive families in the church parlors from 6 to 6:30 p. m. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m., with a host and hostess at each table.

Following the dinner, the Rev. Philip Gordon Scott, minister of Westmoreland Congregational Church, Westmoreland circle, nw., will speak to the adults. For the children, there will be a story hour in the church parlors.

At 11 a. m. on Sunday Dr. Hurst will speak on "A Daring and Devout Man."

LARGE CHARGE—Firing the shot which was heard 'round the Naval Gun Factory yesterday, Louis Zampiglione, a chief petty officer dressed in an eary United States naval uniform, applies the torch to the charge in a muzzle-loading 1799 cannon, made in Washington. Navy Will Show New Devices At Gun Factory Anniversary

An ear lobe device that keeps check on the oxygen content of a flyer's blood is among the naval aviation medicine exhibits that will be shown during the Naval Gun Factory's week-long, 150th anniversary celebration, starting Monday.

The device, an oximeter, is for use in high-altitude experimental flights, and when connected with a light or bell in the plane will give the flyer a two-minute warning that there has been a functional failure in his equipment and the oxygen content of his blood is at the danger point.

The small photo-electric device will be susceptible to monitoring from the ground, so that the monitor can give the pilot another warning by radio.

According to Commander Norman Lee Bates of the Navy Medical Corps, the device also will be useful to anesthetists in operations.

Another device to be shown the public is a water exposure suit developed by naval aviation surgeons as a protection against immersion in arctic seas. Made of nylon with a water-resistant coating, it can be worn in comfort in flight, has a 3-pound-per-square-inch resistance to pressure, and has a high back collar to keep the neck and head out of water.

"Our men during tests have stayed in that suit three hours without appreciable decrease in body temperature," Commander Barr said. Normally, in the Bering Sea a man can survive only 8 minutes' exposure.

Another device to be displayed is a "mechanical breather" that simulates human breathing. It is for use in testing masks used when flying at high altitudes to make sure they will not break down, cutting off the oxygen supply.

Also to be displayed is an exterior lighting system for planes in formation, devised to prevent following planes from flying into the ground because of autogyro delusion (apparent motion of light when it is not in motion), and an ejector seat for jet pilots.

The Naval Gun Factory, formerly the Navy Yard, was founded October 2, 1799.

Feast of St. Matthew To Be Celebrated

The Feast of St. Matthew the Apostle, patron saint of St. Matthew's Cathedral, 1727 Rhode Island ave. nw., will be commemorated at a solemn high mass at 10 a. m. Sunday.

Grady Hutchinson Is New Pastor

New pastor of the Fair-Park Baptist Church, Seminary rd. and Crestwood dr., Fairlington, Va., is the Rev. Grady Hutchinson of Washington, who succeeds the Rev. E. H. Potts, who has accepted a pastorate in North Carolina.

Mr. Hutchinson, who was pastor of Avondale Baptist Church, Avondale, Md., during 1946 and 1947, has been regional director of Allied Youth for the past year.

Arnold Line Asks Boost Of 5c a Zone

Arnold Bus Line yesterday asked for a fare increase of 5 cents a zone to meet wage increases and other higher costs of operation.

The company asked the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Virginia State Corporation Commission to approve the fare in interstate and intrastate transportation, respectively.

Arnold asked also for approval to sell six tokens for $1 instead of four for 50 cents.

Interstate fare increases will become effective October 24 unless otherwise ordered by the ICC, the company said.

The State Corporation Commission has scheduled a hearing for October 19 on the proposed fare increase within the State.

Fare increases are necessary, the company said, because of a recent 17-cent-an-hour wage boost and because additional workers and buses are "badly needed." The company said it is operating at a deficit.

The line, which serves some 50,000 passengers daily on routes from Arlington and Fairfax counties into downtown Washington, said the wage hike awarded by an arbitration board will increase labor costs about $160,000 a year.

Moreover, it said, since an increase of 5 to 10 cents a zone allowed in 1947 "there has been a constant rise in other expenses incidental to operation."

"While the management has practiced the most strict economy in operation," the company stated, "increased costs plus a most recent substantial increase in labor costs now force the company to operate again at a deficit."

Cash rates in Virginia now range from 5 to 30 cents and interstate rates from 5 to 42 cents.

Committee Reports FEPC Bill But With No Recommendation

By the United Press

The Senate Labor Committee sent the fair employment practices bill out for Senate action yesterday without any recommendation on whether it should pass.

First the committee split evenly, 6-6, on the question of actually approving the measure.

Then it voted 11 to 1 to send the bill to the Senate without recommending action one way or the other.

That vote puts the matter in the hands of the Senate itself, but all signs are that congressional leaders will not take up President Truman's controversial civil rights program at this session.

The lone vote against reporting the bill was cast by Senator Hill (D., Ala.). He called the measure "outrageously bad" and said it will be defeated. It would set up a five-man commission to police business and trade unions that discriminate against anyone for racial or religious reasons.

Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) said those who voted against a favorable report on the bill were: Senators Withers (D., Ky.), Hill, Pepper (D., Fla.), Donnell (R., Mo.), Smith (R., N. J.), and Taft (R., Ohio). He listed those voting for approval as Senators Murray (D., Mont.), Neely (D., W. Va.), Douglas (D., Ill.), Thomas (D., Utah), Morse (R., Oreg.) and Humphrey.

Chairman Thomas (D., Utah) said there will be no Senate action on the bill at this session. He told reporters it would be "futile" to try. That apparently goes for the House, too.

A quiet move is under way among House supporters of President Truman's civil rights program to hold off action for strategic reasons until the 1950 session.

Dr. Vincent to Speak

Guest speaker at 11 a. m. Sunday at Petworth Methodist Church, 33 Grant cir. nw., will be the Rev. Dr. Kenneth Vincent, flying missionary from Puerto Rico. Installation services for members of the Methodist Youth Fellowship will take place at the 8 p. m. service.

Drive for Economy Renewed in Senate

By The Associated Press

Economy advocates opened a new drive in the Senate yesterday to achieve a balanced budget—even as Congress was told that a balanced budget is not always a desirable goal.

With the Government already operating deep in the red, Senator McClellan (D., Ark.) renewed his attempt to bring Federal outlays down to actual income levels.

He introduced a resolution that would require the President to submit an "alternative and balanced budget" for the 1951 fiscal year when the regular estimates are turned in to the lawmakers next January. McClellan said this would be in addition to "such other unbalanced budget as the President sees fit to introduce at that time."

McClellan, who led an unsuccessful drive last month to force the President to cut five percent off current expenditures, said the two budgets would enable Congress to get a more accurate appraisal of the Government's financial situation and prospects.

Idea Called Unsound

Shortly before McClellan introduced his resolution, a group of university economists reported to Congress that the idea of a balanced Federal budget every year is an unsound principle, which if followed rigidly might upset the Nation's prosperity.

They advocated, instead, a flexible budget system that could be quickly adapted to periods of inflation or depression as the case might be.

This advice was given by 13 college economists representing the National Planning Association, which describes itself as a "nonprofit, nonpolitical organization." Their report was drafted for a joint Senate-House economic committee, which is studying Government fiscal, credit and monetary policies.

The planning group said its survey showed that as of last week there was no discernible swing—either toward a resumption of inflation or toward increasing unemployment.

But H. Christian Sonne, chairman of the organization, told the committee later that Britain's devaluation of the pound possibly pointed the way toward a business downtrend in the United States.

The planning group said the Nation should have positive assurance that the Government will be prepared to act promptly either if prices should climb sharply or if unemployment should increase.

"One Great Merit" Seen

While assailing the balanced budget theory as "difficult in practice and unsound theory," the economists said it does have "one great merit."

"It provides a yardstick by which legislators and the people can scrutinize each activity of the Government, testing it both for efficiency of operation and for its worthwhileness in terms of cost."

But the report said that the balanced budget method does not provide the flexibility needed to cope with emergencies resulting from seesawing trends in the economy.

"If the Government's spending and income balance each other in good years as well as in bad," the group said, "there would have to be either big fluctuations in expenditure programs or severe and perverse changes in tax rates."

In such an event, they declared essential Government services either are curtailed or the taxpayers are caught in a squeeze.

On the latter score, the economists said the decision of the Eighteenth Congress to slash income taxes five billion dollars was "unfortunate." But they told the lawmakers it would be equally unwise to boost taxes now.

Besides Sonne, the reports were prepared by:

Dr. Howard R. Bowen, dean, College of Commerce, University of Illinois.

Dr. J. Kenneth Galbraith, Economics Department, Harvard University.

Dr. James K. Hall, professor of economics, University of Washington.

Dr. Albert G. Hart, professor of economics, Columbia University.

Of 2 Big Dairies

Senators Ask Closer Look At Profits

By the United Press

Two big national dairies were asked yesterday to provide a more detailed explanation of their sales operations after Senate price investigators challenged their method of figuring percentage profits.

Senator Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa), chairman of a Senate Agriculture Subcommittee investigating the "spread" between farm and retail food prices, said the action "implied no criticism" but that the Senators wanted all the facts.

Asked for their sales records were the Borden Co. and National Dairy Products, Inc. Gillette said the committee also will ask for the names and addresses of the "10 highest paid commission or salary route men" employed by the firms.

The inquiry was ordered after some Congressmen complained that the farmer is getting too small a share of the consumer's food dollar because processing and marketing costs are too high.

L. A. Van Bomel, president of National Diary, and Theodore G. Montague, president of Borden's, testified previously that their profits last year totaled less than 3 cents for each dollar of sales. They said the farmers get more of their sales dollar than he did 10 years ago.

Both were challenged by committee members who argued that profits should be figured on the basis of total investment rather than on dollar sales. According to that basis, they added, the percentage profits of the two milk firms would have been much higher.

Gillette said the committee also may send investigators to Milwaukee and Chicago to find out why Milwaukee, which is racked by a milk price war, can sell milk for 15 cents a quart while Chicago consumers who get milk from the same general source pay 21 cents.

"The consumers in Milwaukee are the envy of the Nation," he said.

2 Alexandria Burglaries Net Man 9 Years

A 30-year-old laborer drew a two-year prison sentence yesterday in Alexandria Corporation Court for breaking into a lunch stand, and a seven-year sentence for breaking into a home the same night.

In sentencing James Wallace for breaking into the home, Judge William P. Woolls pointed out the distinction between the two burglaries by saying:

"A man is entitled to be secure in his own home."

The judge later told a reporter that he considered breaking into a residence at night "one of the most aggravated crimes I know of." Breaking into a dwelling, he said, carries with it the possibility of injury to the residents.

"A man should be able to go to sleep at night," he added, "without having people running through his house."

Wallace, who lives at 417 S. Columbus st., Alexandria, was convicted of stealing $67.50 worth of loot May 7 from the home of Comer L. Martin, 1119 King st. He was sentenced to two years for breaking into Mighty Midget lunch stand at 1414 King st. and stealing $2.40 in cash, candy and gum.

In other dispositions yesterday, Judge Woolls sentenced Mrs. Edna Weaver, 48, of 302 Raymond ave., Alexandria, to one year for forging a $43 check, and sentenced Freddie L. George, 49, of 908 Queen st., Alexandria, to two years for breaking into an apartment house store room and stealing an electric hair dryer.

Maxey Sentenced To 6½ Years in Nurse Beating

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 23 (AP).—Russell Maxey was sentenced today to at least six and one-half years in prison for pistol-whipping a nurse who refused his love.

Maxey was convicted last Saturday night of beating Ann B. Pierce, 35. He said he considered her his common law wife and attacked her in a fit of jealousy because he thought she no longer cared for him.

Miss Pierce admitted letting Maxey photograph her in the nude and sharing hotel roms with him. But, she declared repeatedly, she did not love him and never promised to marry him.

Amputee Faces $25,000 Suit

A $25,000 damage suit was filed yesterday against an amputee driver who had lost both legs during a mine explosion in Germany.

The defendant is Lewis Gruber of Miami, Fla. The suit was filed by John A. Callahan, 315 Anacostia ave. ne., through Attorneys Nicholas J. Chase and Edward B. Williams. The accident occurred November 1, 1946, at Arkansas ave. and Emerson st. nw.

Callahan said he suffered collar bone and shoulder fractures and aggravated a heart condition in the collision.

3 Policemen Acquitted in Manhandling

Charges that they manhandled a prisoner while placing him under arrest were dismissed yesterday against three policemen by the Police Trial Board.

Acquitted were Pvts. David H. Gould and Delbert D. Brill of the Thirteenth Precinct and James A. Hansbrough of the Tenth Precinct.

Complainant in the case was James J. Witherspoon, 33, who was arrested June 9 at the Dunbar Hotel for allegedly taking a pocketbook from a woman there.

Charged After Complaints

As a result of his complaint, the three policemen were charged with willful maltreament and unnecessary violence and Hansbrough and Gould were charged in addition with using "harsh and profane language."

Witherspoon testified yesterday that he had hidden the pocketbook of Miss Jean Cain of 1337 15th st. nw., in the closet because he didn't want her to leave his room. She left, and later called police. They entered his room, ripped it apart and then struck him after they found the pocketbook, he said.

He denied that he put up any struggle when they arrested him. He said he sat quietly, while they searched his room.

Says Arm Was Twisted

Witherspoon said his arm was twisted while one policeman struck him on the back of the head. When he reached down to pick up his hat, he was struck again and later, two of the policemen held him while a third beat him, he declared.

He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital where a head laceration required about six or seven stitches, he said.

Miss Cain told the board that Witherspoon snatched her purse from her as she was about to leave the room and refused to give it to her.

When she returned with police, he objected to their entering his room and used profane language, she said. The policemen searched the room quietly, she added, and did not use any profane language.

Gold admitted before the board that he had struck Witherspoon three times, but he and the other two policemen testified it was only after Witherspoon had wrested Hansbrough's nightstick from him and started swinging it.

Arrested 8 Times

Defense attorneys introduced police records showing that Witherspoon had been arrested eight times since 1934 on charges of assault, disorderly conduct, threats and petit larceny.

The robbery charge lodged against Witherspoon after his arrest at the Dunbar Hotel was reduced to petit larceny and later dismissed in Municipal Court on the grounds it should have been taking property without right.

A second hearing before the board on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and prejudicial to the Police Department's good name, filed against Pvt. George M. Nelson of the Seventh Precinct, was postponed to October 14.

Sessions Open On Span Area Jurisdiction

Representatives of Washington, Arlington, the Interior Department and Virginia met yesterday to "untangle" police jurisdiction of the Arlington approach to the Key Bridge, but did not pass the exploratory stage in their discussion.

The meeting, held in the office of District Corporation Counsel Vernon West, was called by the State Corporation Commission of Virginia, with Virginia Delegate J. Maynard Magruder acting as chairman of the conference.

Magruder said officials were "most cooperative." They agreed that:

1. The mean high water mark is the boundary between the District and Virginia. This means land filled in by the Government in construction of the George Washington Memorial Parkway will be counted as Virginia territory.

2. Arlington and U. S. Park Police have concurrent jurisdiction over Rosslyn Plaza, at the Virginia end of Key Bridge, and over the George Washington Memorial Parkway. (District police patrol Key Bridge to a point above the mean high water, about 50 feet from the Virginia abutment.)

However, administrative details of the joint jurisdiction will not be worked out until after a second conference is called next week, Magruder said. Judge Alexander Knox, chief counsel for the Interior Department, will attend.

Officials at yesterday's meeting included Arlington Commonwealth's Attorney Denman T. Rucker, and Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Paul D. Brown, Arlington Police Chief H. L. Woodyard, Park Police Chief M. H. Raspberry, Arlington Highway Engineer Clifton G. Stoneburner, Virginia Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., West, Magruder and representatives of the National Capital Parks and the Bureau of Public Roads.

Magruder said the Rosslyn Circle area, though watched at rush-hour periods by Arlington police in recent months, has been a "no-man's land" over a long period of years.

Woman Killed, Husband Hurt as Coffee Cup Tilts

Harrison, N. Y., Sept. 23 (NYHT). Mrs. Pauline Robinson Pierce, 53, wife of Marvin Pierce, president of the McCall Corp., was killed here today and her husband injured in an automobile accident which police said was caused by a cup of coffee.

The accident occurred about 8:15 a. m. as Mr. and Mrs. Pierce made a last-minute dash from their home to the railroad station.

Mrs. Pierce had taken along a cup of coffee, and after drinking some, placed the cup on the seat between herself and her husband, who was driving, police said.

The cup tilted and in an attempt to keep its contents from spilling, Mr. Pierce lost control of the car, which smashed into a tree. Mrs. Pierce died instantly.

Veteran Claims He Wrote Hit Tune In Hospital Here

A man who clamis he wrote the hit tune he was in a veterans' hospital here asked District Court yesterday to officially declare him the author of "Powder Your Face With Sunshine."

He is Stanley Rochinski, of 1026 Otis st. ne. He named as defendants, Lombardo Music, Inc.; Carmen Lombardo, now at the Statler Hotel; Charles Bolatto, of Lawrenceville, Pa., and Chester A. Hammond, of Elmira, N. Y.

Rochinski says he registered the song for compyright on April 19, 1948, and has contracts with the Lombardo company for royalties. He says he is due some $20,000 in emoluments but that it has not been paid, since Bolatto and Hammond have claimed a lien against the sum and say they originated the work.

Woman Denied Writ for Child Husband Keeps in Argentina

The Fairfax County Circuit Court yesterday denied a writ of habeas corpus to a woman who claimed her husband is illegally keeping their infant child from her in Argentina.

The writ was sought by Mrs. Helen A. Wickes, 24, whose husband, Robert Boal Wickes, about 45, is a member of a socially prominent family owning Buenos Aires Villa near Mount Vernon.

Last Monday, when Wickes was in Fairfax visiting his family, Mrs. Wickes filed the following three actions at the Fairfax court: Petition for the habeas corpus writ; bill for alimony without divorce, and custody and support of the child; and bill for a writ of ne exeat, which would prevent Wickes from leaving the State.

Judge Paul E. Brown denied the writ of habeas corpus yesterday on the ground that Mrs. Wickes had not proved the child was being held illegally, and that since the child is in Argentina the court did not have jurisdiction.

Next Tuesday Wickes' attorney, J. Randall Caton of Alexandria, will seek to have the writ of ne exeat quashed. No date has been set to hear the suit in which Mrs. Wickes seeks alimony without divorce and custody and maintenance of her child.

Representing Mrs. Wickes are John A. Croghan of Washington and Marion B. West of Alexandria.

Snub Robeson, Legion Chief To Tell Posts

The national commander of the American Legion, branding Paul Robeson "a disgrace to his race," yesterday said he would call upon the Legion posts across the country to maintain a "hands-off policy, and to ignore the Negro baritone when making local appearances."

George N. Craig, in Washington yesterday to attend a Legion policy meeting, said Robeson "is attempting to make a martyr out of himself in the press, and we aren't going to help him."

Craig's statement came as an aftermath of the two pitched battles in Peekskill, N. Y., where veterans groups tangled with pro-Communist Robeson forces on the weekends of August 27 and September 4. The protesting veterans groups were then identified as elements from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Jewish War Veterans and Catholic War Veterans.

Robeson is scheduled for an appearance at a "Negro Freedom Rally" in Turner's Arena here, October 13.

Craig was the honor guest yesterday afternoon of the Indiana State Society of Washington at a reception at the National Press Club. Several hundred of his fellow Hoosiers, Legion officers and Government officials attended.

Self-Defense Plea Made in Hearts Case

Dover, Del., Sept. 23 (AP).—Robert Brennan shot and killed Wade Wooldridge in self defense, the 16-year-old youth's mother told the jury in Delaware's lonely hearts murder trial today.

Mrs. Inez Brennan, 46, took the stand to defend herself against the charge she was an accomplice in the slaying of the 67-year-old Stone Mountain, Va., handy man. Robert is being tried for first degree murder.

Mrs. Brennan denied she ordered Robert to kill the elderly Virginian, whom she met through lonely hearts correspondence.

She also called untrue her son's confession as read to her and said it contained "a lot of pathological lies."

Mrs. Brennan said Wooldridge came to the farm not by invitation but unannounced last October 10. After dinner, she said, Wooldridge went out to inspect the farm.

A few minutes later, she continued, Mrs. Dolly Dean, a boarder, came in and said:

"Bobby shot Mr. Wooldridge."

"In a minute or so Bobby came in and told Dolly: 'I had to do it, you know I had to do it. He pulled a knife on me.'"

"I asked Bobby, 'Why, oh why, did you do it?' He just stood there crying."

Victim of Robbery

Watchman Rescued From Bank Elevator

Bank robbers, had they been around, might have taken lessons Thursday night at the Hamilton National Bank, 14th and G sts. nw.

A watchman, Jonas Willis, 72, of 812 9th st. ne., was stuck in an elevator, whose machinery had been turned off, unbeknown to him. When Willis didn't punch his watch boxes, American District Telegraph Co. officers went to the bank. So did the police and fire rescue squad.

J. W. McAuliffe, engineer of the building, showed officials a secret window arrangement especially installed for such emergencies. They got in with aid of a ladder. Willis was released and the assembled crowd went home.

Lien Filed Against Mr. Tash

Notice was filed yesterday in District Court that the Bureau of Internal Revenue has placed a Federal tax lien for $2393.80 against Leon Tashof (Mr. Tash), trading as the New York Jewelry Co. The assessment is for the jewelry tax for July, 1949. Tashof could not be reached for comment.

Pignatoro said the four men in the bandit car were Negroes and he probably could recognize them. Montgomery County police took him to Hyattsville an hour later to see two suspects who had been arrested, but he said they were not in the auto.

The victim said he has 100 men working and had paid in full those on one job. The others, he said, received $30 to $40 "on account" and would be paid in full Monday.

6 Die as Record Rain Hits Bombay

Bombay, India, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Three days of torrential rains which set a record fall of 31.7 inches left six dead and many streets flooded today.

The weather bureau said 28.3 inches of rain fell during the 24 hours ended at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday. The previous high was 21.6 inches for 24 hours in 1930.

Police Slay 50 Villagers, Paper Reports

Bogota, Colombia, Sept. 23 (AP).—A dispatch published today by El Tiempo, which supports the Liberal Party, reported 50 persons killed in an unexplained attack by police at the town of El Playon, 25 miles northwest of Bucaramanga.

The dispatch related that some 150 police sacked and burned business establishments in the hamlet of La Ceiba and then went to El Playon at dawn yesterday when the sacking and burning were repeated. It added the police fired indiscriminately and most of the victims were women and children.

The Conservative Party organ, El Siglo, reported five party adherents including a woman were assassihated by "rebellious Liberals" in the village of Guaca, 25 miles southeast of Bucaramanga.

Argentina Sets Free Ads for Job-Seekers

Buenos Aires, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—A bill making it obligatory for Argentine newspapers to print "situations wanted" advertisements free of charge was approved by the Senate today.

Newspapers refusing to accept such ads free automatically would lose the right to import newsprint and other printing materials duty free.

The bill already had passed the Chamber of Deputies, but because of amendments introduced by the Senate, it will be returned to the lower house.

There now are far more "help wanted" than "situations wanted" ads.

The independent morning newspapers La Prensa and La Nacion, traditional favorites with job seekers, have limited such advertisements to three days a week since last May, when the government reduced to 12 the total number of pages they are permitted to print.

Noticias Graficas, a pro-government afternoon paper, started offering free ads to job-seekers last month.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

September 9, 1949

Dear Dr. Pruden:

Many times during the past decade the conviction has come to me with increasing force that a revival of the spirit of old-fashioned religion is what the world most needs.

Only when the hearts and minds of men are inspired and guided by the unchanging principles of the Sermon on the Mount can we hope that the nations of the world will find the pathway to a true and enduring peace. Without that help the best efforts of men and nations will fail.

One could hope earnestly that the proposed Evangelistic Crusade to be launched in the District of Columbia on September twenty-fifth will set an example which will bring many to a realization of the strength that lies in the everlasting reality of religion.

Very sincerely yours,

Harry Truman

Suggs Holds 6-Stroke Open Lead With 75-144

By West McLean
Post-Reporter

Neither rain nor heavy going could stay Louise Suggs in the Women's National Open championship yesterday as the lady from Georgia spun a 75, even par, over the Prince Georges Country Club course.

Lady Louise's 39, 36—75, coupled with her record 69 over the opening 18 holes, gave her a 36-hole total of 144, increasing her margin over the field to six strokes.

Carol Diringer Third

Babe Didrikson Zaharias, defending champion, slammed the ball around the spongy layout for a 76, moving into second place with 150.

Carol Diringer, virtual unknown from Tiffin, Ohio, was third with 75-76—151.

Little Marlene Bauer, the 15-year-old child star, and another Californian, Beverly Hanson, were tied for fourth with 153. Marlene added a 78 to her opening 75, but Miss Hanson soared to an 81 after her first-round 72.

Helen Sigel, Philadelphian, was the only one able to equal Miss Suggs' 75. Miss Sigel stood sixth with 79-75—154. At 156 were Frances Stephens, British champion, 75-81; Mae Murray, Rutland, Vt., 78-78, and Betty Hicks, Detroit, 76-80.

Berg Soars to 84

Like everybody else, two of the game's finest players, Patty Berg and Betty Jameson, found the going tough and they soared into the 80's.

Patty had an 84 after an opening 73 for 157 while Miss Jameson was 79-86—165—both so far back they were virtually eliminated from further title consideration with the tournament only half over.

Lady Louise, a slender 115-pounder who can hit a ball farther than most men, was the first to tee off yesterday morning, and the weatherman paid her scant consideration.

The day's start was delayed an hour by a hard rain, and when Miss Suggs set forth she found the greens sopping wet, some of them being well spotted with casual water.

These conditions cost her at least one stroke on the second hole. She plunked her second shot onto the green 20 feet from the hole. But there was so much water around her that she couldn't use a putter.

She attempted to get near the hole with a No. 6 iron, but took three shots for a 5. Under normal conditions, she would have had a nice putt for a birdie 3.

That was one of the few times that the greens and soft going got the better of the holder of the All-American and Western Open titles.

She used only 28 putts for the round, the same number she had in scoring her record 69 the day before.

On the back nine, with a warming sun improving conditions, Miss Suggs cut three strokes from her 39 on the first nine holes. On the sixteenth green, she got down her most gratifying putt of the day, a 25-footer for a birdie 4.

As the girls go into the third round today of the 72-hole competition, there apparently is only one question left unanswered—whether Didrikson can turn on enough steam to catch Suggs.

That may take quite some doing

W-L Rallies in 4th Period, Ties Central

Eberht Tosses 3 Touchdowns In 19-19 Game

By Howard Flieger, jr.

A desperate last-quarter passing attack by Slingin' Sam Eberht netted Washington-Lee High three touchdowns and a 19-19 tie against Central last night before 6000 fans at W-L Stadium in Arlington.

Going into the final period, Jimmy Pantos, star of Central's defending Washington champions, had staked the Vikings to a 19-0 lead.

Eberht's last scoring pass came with two minutes left, and found Dick Warden clear 20 yards away in the end zone and tied the count at 19-19. Eppy Riddle, poised to try for the winning extra point, received a bad fumble, and fell short of the goal line.

Central was off to a 12-0 lead in the first quarter. Pantos climaxed a 36-yard Viking drive with a 14-yard off tackle scoring thrust. Just before the end of the quarter, he snared a short pass from Quarterback Jim Sullivan, and scooted 17 yards for a touchdown.

In the third period, Central drove 48 yards on the ground to the W-L 1, where Pantos bucked over. Lynn Leathery converted from placement.

On the second play of the last quarter Eberht launched W-L's rally with a 20-yard toss to Jack Gilfillan, who raced 35 yards more for a touchdown.

Riddle place-kicked the extra point. With six minutes left, Eberht uncorked another scoring pass, this one 20 yards to Warden. Riddle's placement was low.

Oklahoma, B.C. Try Again Tonight

The Rain Came, the Coaches Pow-Wowed, Game Was Off

Boston, Sept. 23.—A football game that crowded the Boston Red Sox out of the papers here—Oklahoma vs. Boston College—was postponed tonight for an almost unbelievable reason—rain.

The game has been rescheduled for tomorrow night.

Although the official statement said only 800 were in the stands, when the postponement was announced an hour before game time, thousands of disgruntled fans took cars in a very real traffic jam outside Braves Field.

They were stunned over the postponement of the big-time college contest between Oklahoma's Sooners, ranked fifth nationally last year, and Boston College, expected to come into its own this season.

According to B. C. Coach Denny Myers, the almost unprecedented action was a result of his pregame talk with Oklahoma Coach Bud Wilkinson.

Two hours before game time, the field was bone dry. Then came a torrential downpour.

The two coaches went out and looked at a field covered by an inch or so of water. Stepping on the field, put their ankles in mud.

Said Bud Wilkinson, "Sure wish we'd had a dry field."

Myers countered, "Wonder what would happen if you tried to postpone a football game?"

Wilkinson asked, "Who would you see about a thing like that?"

Myers said abruptly, "Let's go up to the office."

They conferred with John T. Curley, Boston College athletic director, and Braves Field officials and agreed to hold off the game for 24 hours.

Wilkinson, neutral about the whole thing, said, "Well, it couldn't have been much of a contest anyway."

Anyway, the game will be played tomorrow night—barring an earthquake.

Hoyas Oppose Holy Cross; GW Faces Revengeful Virginia

Cavaliers Favored Over Colonials

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 23.—George Washington opens its football season at Scott Stadium tomorrow, a 13-point underdog to practically the same University of Virginia team it beat 20-12 last season.

A capacity crowd of 17,000, including about 1500 from Washington, is expected for the kickoff at 3 p. m. (4 p. m., Washington time).

In last year's contest, Virginia, a smug 18-point underdog, was scored on first, and could not catch up. This year, the Cavaliers have a new respect for the upstart

Georgetown Rated 14-Pt. Underdog

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 23. Forty determined Georgetown gridders swooped down on Worcester Ariport this afternon, immediately went to Fitton Field for a light drill and steadfastly refused to take seriously their 14-point underdog role against Holy Cross tomorrow.

Their four-motored plane had a little trouble setting down, and the Hoyas seem to feel that Holy Cross, despite its 18-7 victory last season, will have trouble setting them down.

Tomorrow's opponents, meeting for the seventh time since 1904 and deadlocked in the series, have a lot in common.

For one, both are leaning heavily upon sophomores. Georgetown isn't expected to go any farther than the passes of Frank Mattingly and Bob Deacon take them.

Dr. Bill Osmanski's Crusaders are expected to have two second-year men in the starting backfield, Fullback Bob Doyle and Halfback Mike Zinkiewicz. Right behind Mike is Mel Massucco, also a soph.

Carrying the similarity to the last decimal place, both teams have linemen as cocaptains. Rangy End Tom Kelleher shares honors with Decley and End Fran Desmond and Tackle Tom Dolan lead Georgetown.

Cagy Babe Baranowski, Jack Kivus and Johnny Hughes will supply the running power and Georgetown hopes to have Billy Conn play some. Conn apparently has made a swift recovery from his serious stomach ailment.

Two weeks ago, he was hospitalized with a penetrating duodenal ulcer. Georgetown officials insist it won't hurt him to play

Probable starting lineups:

Coolidge Opens With 6-0 Triumph

By Don Lief

The 1949 Inter-high football season opened yesterday with Coolidge defeating Wilson, 6-0, at the losers' field before 1800.

Arnie Tranen's 15-yard touchdown pass to Kirby Gallagher early in the third period was the game's only score. Colt Center

(OTHER HIGH GAMES, PAGE 15)

Bob Suddith had set up the tally when he recovered a fumble by Wilson Back Carl Prigg. Prigg, in punt formation, muffed a high pass from center on the Tiger 45. In the pile-up, Suddith wriggled onto the ball on the 28.

Tranen than ran to the 15. Two plays later, Gallagher drifted far to the right, broke for the end zone, and took Tranen's pass for the score.

The publicized passing duel between Tranen and Speros was confined to the first quarter, when Speros was hurt. Leo returned to the game in the final period, but he only managed to fill the air with long, desperate heaves before the end of the game.

Wilson Back Jerry Sandler, hurt in the first quarter, was taken to Garfield Hospital for observation. Reports from the hospital indicated that Sandler had suffered head injuries, but is in conscious and "satisfactory" condition.

Furman Upset by W. & L. 27-7

Greenville, S. C., Sept. 23 (AP). Washington and Lee's untried Generals turned the gridiron tables on favored Furman's Purple Hurricane 27-7 here tonight.

W. & L. put on a sparkling display of new coach George Barclay's split-T tactics in four long touchdown marches, and was adamant on defense.

After Furman opened the scoring, the visiting team from Virginia tallied but missed the extra point to trail at the end of first quarter.

From there on out it was W. & L.'s game. Furman never was able to rouse to scoring pitch again, and the visitors couldn't be kept from a substantial Southern Conference victory.

The W. & L. drives for scores went 85, 75, 75 and 89 yards, with Gene Bennett, Walley Oref, Vic Marler and Gil Bocetti getting one each. Fullback Sonny Horton topped off Furman's 40-yard touchdown march with a 21-yard tackler-toting charge through center.

Sweet Revenge

Nats Get Big Bang Out of Yanks' Woes

Between games of the doubleheader, the Nats were wasting no sympathy on the Yankees yesterday after their 9-8 defeat of the New York club. "They've been rubbing our noses in the dirt all season," said one eminent member of the Nats, referring to the Yanks' 14 previous wins in 20 games with Washington.

The fact that the Yanks are leading the league and the Nats are 46 games behind in last place, isn't quite reflected by the scores. Thirteen of the games between the two clubs have been decided by one-run margins. On each of the six occasions when the Nats won, it was by a single run.

A 75-year-old gentleman from Los Angeles, watching his first major league ball game from behind the Yankee dugout, got no satisfactory first-impression of his son's enterprise. Ernest Webb, father of Yankee Owner Del Webb, saw the Yankees blow the opener of the twin bill, in the company of his second son, Harold Webb of Washington.

Manager Casey Stengel and the Yankees squawked loudly that a fan in the first row of the left center bleachers interfered with Eddie Yost's base-clearing double against the wall in the Nats' five-run seventh inning of the opener. They demanded that only two runs be permitted to score on the hit but found Umpire John Stevens a deaf audience.

A Yankee representative made the trek to the bleachers and came back, declaring "one man said he had the ball in his hand, and four others testified that he did."

Washington and New York baseball writers were acclaiming the 37 players used by the two clubs in the first game as an American League record, until research revealed that on Wednesday the Yanks and White Sox had used 38, to supersede the old record of 35.

SHIRLEY POVICH.

Hudson Bats, Hurls Win; New York Still 2 Up

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The league-leading Yankees averted a completely dismal day against the Nats yesterday by salvaging the second game of a double-header, 7-1, after dropping a messy 9-8 decision earlier in the afternoon.

Acting as if they were fighting for the pennant, the Nats pulled out the first game in 10 innings. They rolled over and played dead for the Yanks in the second, which darkness mercifuly halted at the end of the seventh inning.

Fred Sanford went the seven-inning route for the Yanks in the finale, giving up only four hits, the last of which was Jake Early's first homer of the year. Jake fell six home runs short of tying the score.

The Yankees escaped with their two-game lead over the second-place Red Sox intact, but muffed a chance to gain valuable ground on the eve of a crucial three-game series with Boston.

Hudson First Game Hero

They had that first game won, apparently, when they knocked Ray Scarborough out of the box in a seven-run eighth inning to go in front, 8-6. But with two out Sam Mele's double and Sam Dante's single off Joe Page tied the game for the Nats in the eighth.

And then Sid Hudson emerged as the winning pitcher. He personally made the winning hit in the tenth with the combined help of Tommy Henrich and George Stirnweiss who played his wind-blown pop fly into the decisive blow.

The Yanks did a frightful collapse in that tenth. Page walked Ed Robinson with one out, and with two out, Center Fielder Cliff Mapes bobbled Dente's single to right, enabling Robinson to take third. Al Evans drew a deliberate walk that brought Hudson up, and with two strikes against him Hudson popped a ball between First Baseman Henrich and Second Baseman Stirnweiss.

Henrich gestured that he would make the catch. Then Stirnweiss motioned that he would take it. They did everything except hold a caucus while the ball dropped safely between them and Robinson trotted home from third on the cheap single.

Scarborough was keeping the Yankees humble until the fifth inning of the first game, permitting no hits at all and riding a 1-0 crest against Vic Raschi. The Nats got him that run back in the first inning on a walk, Sherry Robertson's single and Stewart's fly.

And then all of a sudden the Yanks tied the score at 1-1, on Henrich's home-run blast over the right-field wall that opened the fifth.

Ed Stewart literally knocked Raschi out of the game, bouncing a line drive off the forearm of his pitching wing in the fourth inning. Raschi retired in favor of rookie Ralph Buxton in the fifth.

Phil Rizzuto's leaping catch of Robertson's liner with two on and two out helped Buxton out of trouble in the sixth. But when Hugh Casey took over the Yankee pitching in the seventh, the Nats came up with five runs to move in front, 6-1.

Yanks Bounce Back

Stewart's broken-bat single launched the assault on Casey, and Ortiz followed with a single. Nobody scored on Robinson's infield out, and Mele was purposely passed. Dente got a run home on his bouncer to Coleman, who had only a play at first and then Casey walked early intentionally to fill the bases. He walked Scarborough unintentionally to force a second run home.

At that point Yost rapped a windblown two-bagger against the center-field wall for the third, fourth and fifth runs of the inning.

That 6-1 lead began to disintegrate immediately in the seventh. Coleman and pinchhitter Woodling rapped singles off Scarborough who had pitched two-hit ball to that point.

Rizzuto followed with a third

Terps Open Today With Virginia Tech

Coach Jim Tatum unveils Maryland and its Mighty Moe Modzelewski today at Blacksburg against Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

The Maryland squad left Washington by plane yesterday and spent last night at a Roanoke hotel. They plan to go the rest of the way by bus this morning.

Maryland again has a rugged line but is still looking for capable ball carriers. Sophomore Modzelewski is the big hope in that department.

Unless newcomers show something today the Terps will depend on veterans like Vern Siebert, Johnny Idzik and Joe Tucker.

VPI already has a game under its belt, a 33-14 losing effort against the powerful Quantico Marines. Tech rallied from a 20-0 deficit to make it a 20-14 ball game in the third period before going under.

Maryland fans aren't too confident. They can't forget the 1947 game when it took a last-minute score to register a 21-19 triumph. Last year, the Terps triumphed, 28-0.

Virginia Tech has been humiliated by Maryland six times in the last seven years.

Bill Shea Upsets Parker Nolan, 1 Up

Bill Shea registered the biggest upset so far in the Congressional Country Club championships by defeating defending champion Parker Nolan, 1 up in nineteen holes. Nolan, who had won the title the last five years in a row, was five up at the end of the first nine.

In other quarter-final matches, Bill Wenzel defeated Dr. W. J. Evans, 6 and 5, Dick Pruitt downed Bruce Quigly, 6 and 5, and Fleming Bolmer eliminated Harry Buckman, 2 and 1.

In today's semifinals, starting at 10 o'clock, Bolmer meets Pruitt and Shea plays Wenzel.

Chemical Center Wins Army Title

The Army Chemical Center of Edgewood, Md., won the second annual Army area softball tournament by defeating Camp Holabird, Md., 6-0, yesterday at Fort Meade. Tex Hendon hurled four-hit ball and fanned six men for the winners.

Dear folks:

Royal Governor was found to be suffering from colic when he arrived here for the Capitol Handicap and for a time fears were held for the winner of last week's fall highweight handicap at Belmont. Agent Charley Wells, who handles Willie Downs, will make saddle engagements for Dick Lawless, half-mile circuit star. Big Dial was one of seven horses shipped here by Trainer E. E. Hart of Washington. Stymie, top money-winning thoroughbred of all time, has been invited to the Pimlico Special, Friday, October 28. Stymie, trying a comeback after breaking his foot, hasn't won a stake that would make him eligible but President Harry A. Parr 3d, and his cohorts feel that he fully deserves a place in the winner-take-all classic.

Tea Maker, Irisen Rated Favorites

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Maryland's major track fall season, the longest in the history of the State, opens today at nearby Laurel.

Embracing 59 racing days, to run through December 3, the sport opens with a program topped by the $7500 added Capital Handicap, traditional opening day feature at the Baltimore blvd. track.

As usual, the 6-furlong sprint, a fixture here since J. K. L. Ross' Billy Kelly won the first runnnig in 1919, was enthusiastically received by horsemen who named 14 entries overnight from a list of 37 nominations.

Post time for the first race today and throughout the 25-day meeting will be 1:30 p. m. Upward of 15,000 regular and occasional turf fans are expected to watch the inaugural program.

Overnight rains Thursday and Friday drenched the racing strip and all indications pointed to a slow track. The fact that conditions were known at entry time seemed to asume full fields in the majority of events.

Tea Maker, Irisen Favorites

Two horses are expected to draw the bulk of the backing of the bulky Capital Handicap field. Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Tea Maker, despite top impost of 117, could be the post-time favorite. Last Monday Tea Maker, carrying 127 pounds, was third in the fall Highweight Handicap at Belmont Park, being beaten a neck and a head by Royal Governor and Royal Blood.

Vying with Tea Maker for the role of public choice will be Mrs. O. L. Nyberg's Irisen. The daughter of Sweep Like and Black Plane moves up on off going and is better known hereabout than the Clark gelding.

There are other stout candidates for honors, including the Brookfield Farm's entry of Imacomin and Itsabet and Irisen. Itsabet won three stakes in 1948. Irisen will be second top weight under 115 pounds, with Imacomin in at 113 and Itsabet at 110.

Completing the line-up for the first of a dozen stakes to be offered during the session are Bobanet Stable's King Midas, 111; E. A. Nicodemus' Laran, 110; Dion K. Kerr's Flying Weather, 110; Mrs. E. H. Augustus' Big Story, 109; Shamrock Stable's Little Harp, 108; A. B. Hancock jr's. Shimmer, 106; A. L. Kuhn's Child Rice, 106; R. Engas Stable's Superb Donna, 105; H. G. Bedwell's Daily Dip, 105, and Mrs. L. G. Bedwell's Oidenasal, 104.

Laurel in the last three years under the present management, has been the scene of many improvements. The first year, a sweeping program designed to make the stable area more inviting to horsemen was carried out, along with some enlargement of parking areas, additional paving and beautification of the ground.

A year ago, the actual race course was rebuilt in its entirety while about half of the steeplechase course also was renovated. This season, the major improvement is that in the grandstand betting rigs, where an additional 30 feet of space will provide ample room for bettors to move freely, avoiding the confusion and jamming of previous seasons, particularly on big days.

A capable line-up of officials has been approved by the Maryland Racing Commission.

George Brown, jr., a veteran steward, will represent the local association and will serve with Joseph F. Flannagan, steward for the racing commission. These two have chosen William L. Harron, another seasoned official, to serve as third man in the steward's stand.

Charles J. McLennan will preside over the racing secretary's desk with Sidney Brown as his assistant while J. Fred Colwill is racing secretary for steeplechasing.

Placing judges will be Brown, James P. Ross, jr., and Richard Johnson while patrol judges will be William Doyle, F. G. Farrell, E. T. McLean nad Henry Erickson.

Edward Dennison has been named clerk of scales; William Jennings, paddock judge; Edward Blind, starter; Hart Nevin, timer. John Madala again will be director of safety while the pari-mutuel department will be in charge of Riggs Mahony.

Cotton Beats Both in British PGA

Tadworth, England, Sept. 23 (AP).—Henry Cotton today gained personal revenge for his 1947 Ryder Cup humiliation by decisively ending the American threat to the British Professional Golfers' championship.

The 42-year-old Englishman outlasted Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., to win his quarter-final match, 2 up. Then he played Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago into submission in the semifinal, 4 and 2.

Both his victims were members of this year's victorious American Ryder Cup team, and Mangrum also helped beat the British, 11 to 1, when Cotton was captain two years ago.

Cotton defeated Palmer with excellent golf, touring the par 72 Walton Heath course in 67. He had lost some of his sharpness by afternoon but had enough left to subdue Mangrum.

"I saw a lot of the country," Mangrum said, "and very little of it was smooth."

He was either deep among the heather and shoulder high bushes or wallowing in sand traps on 7 in the 16 holes. He finally conceded the match while almost hidden in the prickly shrubbery 175 yards from the sixteenth green.

Cotton will meet Dai Rees of Wales for the title over 36 holes tomorrow.

By Jules Loh

Devitt Prep overcame a 6-0 deficit in the third quarter to defeat Richard Montgomery High School, 18-6, in both schools' opening football game yesterday at Rockville.

After a scoreless first half Montgomery fullback Upton Grant saved the losers from a shutout by intercepting a Devitt pass by Tom Hunt and scampering 45 yards for a touchdown. Cooper's conversion placement was blocked.

Devitt retaliated with a 90-yard march climaxed with a Hunt-to-Harvey Ray aerial which tied the score at 6-6.

A 40-yard drive, including two first downs produced another six-pointer with Hunt carrying off tackle from the four for the tally, and Johnny Kelly added the third when he returned Jimmy King's punt 50 yards to pay dirt.

Peron Demands More For Meat to Britain

Buenos Aires, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Anglo-Argentine trade agreement, which took five months to negotiate, probably will be reopened on its most important point—the price of meat.

The Peron government, it was learned, sent a note to the British Embassy several days ago, stating flatly the present price of 97.536 pounds sterling per ton is no longer effective because of the pound's depreciation. It is reported that Argentina is seeking more than 140 pounds sterling for a ton of meat.

Big boy whom the Colonials will have to stop is Philadelphia Johnny Papit, 190-pound steamrolling fullback, who piled up 884 yards overland in 1948. Even North Carolina found Johnny unstoppable last year.

The starting lines of the two clubs are about equal in ability and weight, but Virginia has the edge in reserve strength.

Planted Bomb, Woman Says

boarded the plane at the airport. That was the last thing between us."

Earlier Inspector Belec said Mrs. Pitre, who he charged had been living with Guay in a common-law relationship, had confessed orally that she bought the explosives for the bomb. He said the bomb was composed of two sticks of dynamite, machinery from a clock, tape, sawdust and another explosive, "probably nitroglycerine."

The police said Mrs. Pitre could not have had sufficient knowledge to put the bomb together herself, but they pointed out that Guay was a clock-maker and formerly was employed by a munitions plant. They said the dynamite had been traced to a local hardware store.

Parts of Parcel Found

Mrs. Pitre admitted, the police said, that she took a cardboard box to Quebec airport at Guay's request, and air-expressed the parcel to a fictitious person at a Baie Comeau address. Parts of the parcel were found in the wreckage, the police said.

A coroner's inquest two weeks ago returned a verdict the crash was caused by an explosion in the baggage compartment of the DC-3 shortly before it plummeted int othe side of Mount Torment, near St. Joachims, Que., 52 miles fro mhere.

Police spent hours questioning Mrs. Pitre, mother of a 4-year-old daughter, this afternoon while she was in a hospital recovering from an overdose of sleeping pills, which they said she took in an attempt to commit suicide last night, reportedly at Quay's suggestion.

RCMP officials said Mrs. Pitre expressed the lethal package five minutes before the plane took off. An express company official became suspicious when he found the parcel was so heavy, (it weighed 28 pounds) but he did nothing about it because the plane already was warming up for the takeoff.

Among the 19 passengers and four crewmen killed were E. T. Stannard, 65, president of the Kennecott Copper Corp.; Arthur D. Storke, 55, who was to succeed Stannard as Kennecott head, and R. J. Parker, 52, a vice president of Kennecott.

Spouse May Refuse to Set Ingrid Free

Hollywood, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Dr. Peter Lindstrom may refuse to give Ingrid Bergman a divorce if her agents continue to offer him her "fortune" in return, the surgeon's business representative said today.

John Vernon said the movie star's fortune didn't amount to much anyway.

"This method of offering a 'fortune' in exchange for his wife places him in a position of refusing a divorce on this point alone," said Vernon. "I don't think he would ever consider 'selling' his wife."

Miss Bergman was romantically linked with her director, Roberto Rossellini, last spring. Miss Bergman's attorney, Monroe McDonald, in town to confer with Lindstorm's lawyers about a divorce, announced yesterday that the actress was willing to offer her fortune for a divorce.

McDonald also described the couple's relationship as "father-daughter." He said Lindstrom dominated the famous star.

"Aside from their home, their joint assets are very nominal," said Vernon. "I also have learned that Miss Bergman's attorneys want him to give up more than his legal share and still agree to their terms.

"Because of their financial difficulties, in fact, I have resigned as business representative for Miss Bergman and Dr. Lindstrom.

"I have never felt Lindstrom had any 'great domination' over Miss Bergman. He guided her in a way that only a husband with great devotion could guide a wife. (Nor was) Miss Bergman's relationship with her husband that of a daughter and father. They were a normal married couple . . ."

The Lindstrom's daughter, Pia, 9, has not been told by her parents of the possible divorce.

"She knows there's talk of divorce, however, and she is very sad," said Vernon. "Ingrid is confused between her duties to Pia and her many problems . . . I believe she became too deeply involved in romantic and professional problems before she realized her daughter is in a more unhappy situation than she is."

Public Works Advances Bill Passed by Senate

The Senate yesterday passed a bill authorizing 100 million dollars in advances to states and communities to be spent for the planning of public works projects.

The action was by voice vote. The measure goes now to the House.

In Congress, the bill has been called an "anti-depression measure."

Last July President Truman recommended such a program of advance planning as a safeguard "if the business downturn should become more serious."

Members estimated the District could qualify for up to $700,000 of the planning money.

Sailing Regatta Starts Today With Hundreds of Entries

By Happy Walker

Hundreds of sleek windjammers will dot the Potomac River today as the first of the two-day President's Cup Sailing Regatta gets under way.

The course for the two-day maneuvers is laid along the seawall off Potomac Park with the start just north of Hains Point. The boats start down river, tacking back to the Virginia shore before returning.

George A. Dankers, race chairman, will signal the first race off at 10 a. m. starting the larger Star class on their way over the triangular course.

Following, at five-minute intervals will be the Thistle, Chesapeake 20's, Chesapeake 16's, Lightning, Hampton One Design, Comet, Snipe, Tempest and Penguin classes.

The day's second race will get away at 2 p. m. providing a calm does not call for a delay.

Bill Heintz, this weekend's sailing head man, received a number of late Eastern Shore entries, swelling this year's contestant's list far above last year's.

Last night, out-of-town skippers jammed every inch of space around Capital, Columbia Yacht Clubs and sailing marina with their boats.

Spectators will have ample vantage points at no charge all along the seawall.

The final of the three scheduled races will be staged tomorrow at 10 a. m. followed by trophy presentation at 4 p. m. at the sailing marina.

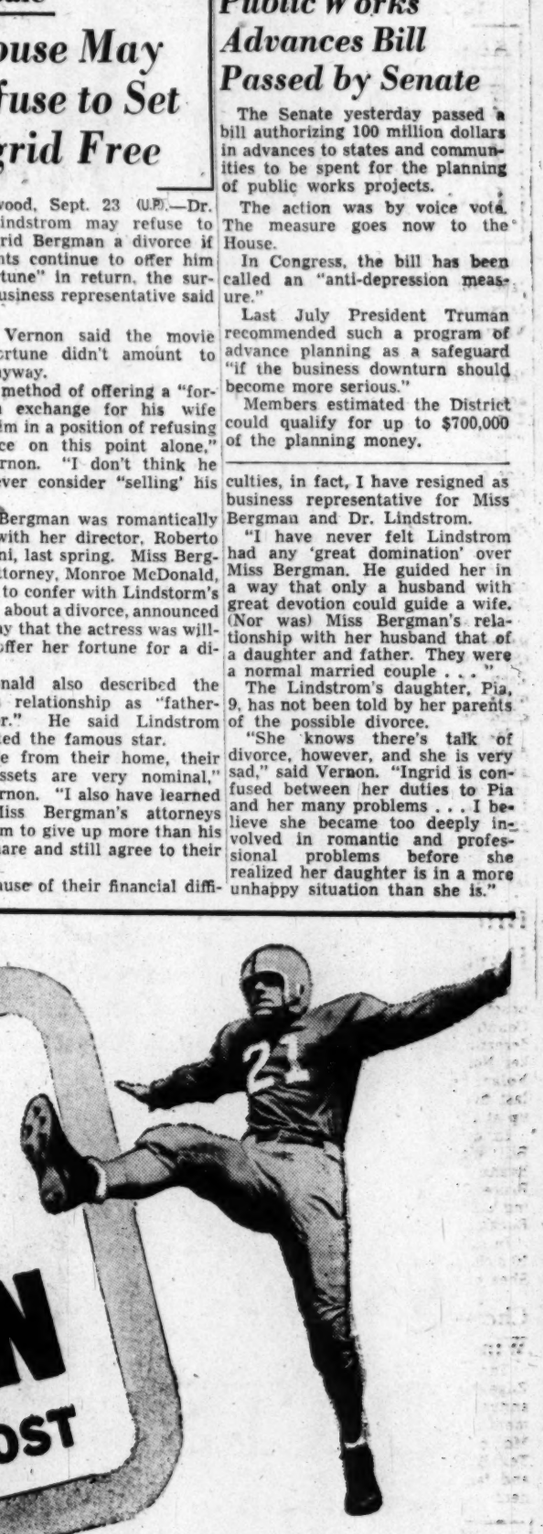
SPORTS SECTION
IN SUNDAY'S WASHINGTON POST



Yes, starting this Sunday, Sep' ber 25, a bigger, better sports section in The Sunday Washington P. It's another improvement in your newspaper . . . the sports leader in this entire area. Ever wonder WHY you always felt the Post was best? Here's the story:

FULL FOOTBALL COVERAGE

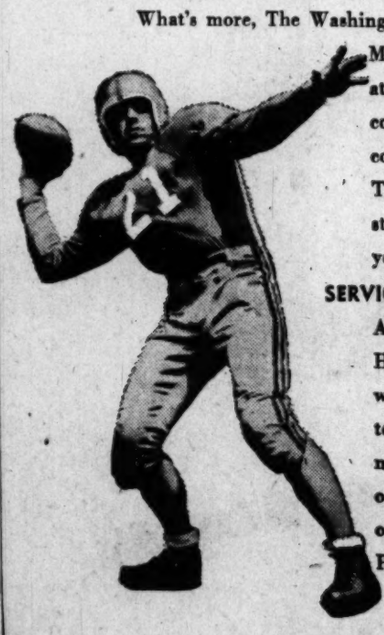
Space—staff—services! Those three words are what make the difference between an ordinary sports section and The Washington Post's great, new, expanded one.

SPACE? That means how many columns—how many pages—does the editor give to sports. And the answer for The Washington Post is—MORE, more space for sports, more columns of sports news and pictures and features, EIGHT PAGES in the big Sunday Post sports section.

STAFF? That means how many sports writers and photographers? How good are they? What use does the paper make of them?

The Washington Post is famous for its brilliant sports staff. There's sports editor Bus Ham, who was war-time regional sports editor for the Associated Press. There's Shirley Povich, winner of the National Headliners Award for America's best sports writeing. There's Morris Siegel, a great writer and special authority on college teams of the Washington, D. C.-Virginia-Maryland area. There's Bill Burnett, who's followed the Redskins from coast to coast, throughout playing seasons and at training camps. There's Jack Walsh and Herb Heft and a lot more writers, editors, photographers, special correspondents.

What's more, The Washington Post uses them! When Maryland plays at Michigan or the Redskins at Los Angeles or Navy at Wisconsin, a Post staff writer is out there to cover that game, with the special knowledge that comes from having watched the team all season. The Washington Post brings you more staff-written stories, and that means better stories, of the teams you follow most closely.



SERVICES? Post wire services include those of the Associated Press, United Press, and the New York Herald Tribune Syndicate. That's one reason why, Sunday after Sunday for years, The Washington Post has always published more scores of more games played all over the country than any other paper published in this area. Notre Dame or Hicksville Teachers College—The Washington Post gets you all the scores.

SHIRLEY POVICH

It isn't just chance that The Washington Post's sports columnist won the coveted Headliners Award as America's best sports writer. Povich has been writing brilliant sports pieces for more than 25 years. Once a boy wonder — America's youngest major newspaper sports editor—Shirley switched from editing to writing his daily "This Morning" column. His wealth of experience, his complete knowledge of everyone in the sports world, plus his gift of words make Povich as indispensible each morning as breakfast to the real sports fan. No wonder surveys prove Povich to be Washington's best known sports writer—by 6 to 1 over his nearest rival!

OUTSTANDING EXTRA FEATURES

You get frequent sports "bonuses" in The Washington Post—every one standout reading. Each Sunday Shirley Povich profiles a colorful sports luminary—he's done Casey Stengel, Larry Doby, Choo-Choo Justice and Pancho Gonzales lately—or writes entertainingly on some phenomenon like the "bean ball." But that's not all! You get "outside" extras, like the recent self-told stories of Joe Louis, Jackie Robinson and Birdie Tebbetts. There's always another top feature ahead in The Washington Post sports pages.

Senate Group Reports Bill to Boost Pay of U. S. Hospital Staffs

A bill that would raise the salaries of from 35,000 to 40,000 Federal doctors, dentists, and nurses was reported to the Senate yesterday by its Education and Labor Committee. It has House approval.

The measure is designed to boost the salaries of the 17,000 doctors, dentists and nurses in hospitals of the Veterans Administration. But a rider on the military appropriation bill would extend the VA wage scale to civilian doctors, dentists, and nurses in military hospitals.

Pay boosts in the bill would range from $200 to $4000. Junior nurses would get a $426 annual raise, and increases of from $500 t. $1000 would be granted many employes in the middle and top brackets. The bill is intended to bring hospital salaries in line with increased incomes proposed in the classified and executive pay bills.

BLS: The Bureau of Labor Statistics has begun to hire people for its three-year cost-of-living study.

Congress has tentatively approved funds to allow BLS to hire about 500 new people for the project. About 150 will be here; the remainder will gather information in the States. Being temporary jobs, they aren't under Civil Service.

Lack of office space here came within a whisker of forcing BLS to transfer its entire cost-of-living division to another city. However, BLS has been assigned a converted dormitory back of the Navy Building on Constitution ave. and transfer plans have been called off.

GSA: The first big round of major appointments in the new General Services Administration was made yesterday by Administrator Jess Larson. Among them were:

Almon E. Snyder, formerly of War Assets, assistant to the administrator; Maxwell H. Elliott, formerly of Federal Works, general counsel; William C. Cleary of WAA, management director; Max K. Medley of WAA, comptroller; Joseph S. Cohen of FWA, information director; James A. Garvey, deputy management director; Melvin L. Reese, director of program planning and research; William N. Rehlaender, personnel director; Clifford R. Geery, director of the organization and methods division, and Earle M. Kegel, director of office services and supply.

At the same time, Larson indirectly answered Senator Byrd (D., Va.), who accused GSA of having more employes now than it had before it was created in July. The administrator emphasized that GSA's employment had slumped 531 in the past two months.

FIGHT: Former Representative Will Rogers (D., Okla.) is one of the several Agriculture Department hearing examiners who were declared to be ineligible to hold their jobs by a Civil Service board. He has appealed the ruling to the full Civil Service Commission.

Rogers has held his $10,000 job for more than two years. He is a lawyer and he served in the House for 10 years. More than a score of members of Congress have written the commission to urge that Rogers be retained.

Meanwhile, the Senate Civil Service Committee is preparing to make an investigation of the conduct of the test. The Civil Service Commission, it was learned, has had eight of its top people check the eligible list set up by the board of people other than incumbents. The eight agreed with the board's finding, and in doing so, discounted charges of bias made against the examiners. In contrast, the commission was unhappy over the board's conduct of tests for incumbent examiners.

PROMOTIONS: Federal agencies have given 972 of their employes in-grade promotions for superior work during the past year. A report to Congress on the number and type of promotions was made yesterday by the Civil Service Commission. VA was the leader, as it granted promotions to 363 of its employes. Agriculture was next with 107, followed by Army, 101; Navy, 97, and Interior, 78.

Surgeon's 'Window Pane' Will Give Janie, 5, Her First Sight of Green Grass, White Snow

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

FOR THE FIRST TIME—Elizabeth Jean Arnold, 5, can see the lovebird she heard sing

Janie will see green grass, blue skies and white snow.

There is nothing wonderful about seeing such things—unless you are 5-year-old Elizabeth Jane Arnold of 816 Yuma st. se.

She has never before seen them. But now she will.

Janie was born with a rare condition known as hazy corneas, a condition that until recent medical advances would have meant a lifetime of being almost entirely blind.

But these medical advances and a surgeon's skill have saved Janie from this fate.

Janie's mother, Mrs. Herbert W. Arnold, hoped and prayed for a remedy. The remedy was a delicate "window pane" operation.

Dr. Frank Costenbader, Washington eye specialist, arranged for Janie to be examined by Dr. John McLean of the New York Hospital, one of the few surgeons in the country with sufficient skill and technique to perform this operation.

Mrs. Arnold and Janie first went to New York last spring, but the operation had to be postponed. The "eye bank," which contains corneas taken from persons immediately after death when they have requested that their eyes be so used, was empty.

But finally there was a cornea available and the operation was performed on Janie's right eye.

A rectangular slit was cut out of her cornea. In its place was inserted a "transplant" from the donor's cornea.

It was just as if a defective window pane had been replaced with a new one.

For two weeks Janie had to lie in bed and keep her head perfectly still. She did.

Then, last Sunday, the bandage was removed. Janie kept her eye shut against the light. Then her mother lifted the eyelid to apply eye drops. Mrs. Arnold was wearing a gleaming white blouse. It was then that Mrs. Arnold heard the happiest words of her life.

"Oh, mommy," said Janie in sudden joy, "how bright you look!"

It will be some time before Janie's right eye is strong enough to see all the sights she has been denied since birth, perhaps as long as a year. But her doctors are sure that day will come.

Mrs. Arnold said they will probably wait about two years and then let Janie decide whether she wants a similar operation on her left eye. If she wants it, she will have it.

Janie's father is a civilian toolmaker employed by the Army. She has a sister, Roberta Jean, 7.

Neely Wants Golden Rule Applied Here

Calls It First Job Of Proposed D. C. Commission on Human Rights

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) declared yesterday that the first job of the proposed Washington human rights commission should be to apply the Golden Rule to the solution of District racial problems.

He wrote this assignment into the bill he introduced in the Senate setting up a 25-member independent District agency, to be known as the Commission on Human Rights for the District of Columbia.

The Golden Rule, part of Jesus' Sermon on the Mount, has been recorded this way in the Gospel according to St. Matthew: "Therefore, all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

The Golden Rule showed up in the Neely bill this way: "It shall be the duty of the commission to promote amicable relations among racial, religious, and cultural groups and to endeavor to establish and maintain a meticulous observance of the Golden Rule in all matters pertaining to interracial relations in the District."

Members of the commission would be named by the President, subject to Senate confirmation, for four-year terms. The commission could employ a full-time staff director and other necessary personnel. The bill would authorize necessary appropriations for its work.

Among major assignments of the commission would be:

1. To collect timely and relevant information about legal and social developments affecting civil rights.

2. To do everything in its power to protect civil rights.

3. To issue reports about the results of its studies that would tend to promote good will and eliminate or minimize discrimination based on race, color, creed, or national origin.

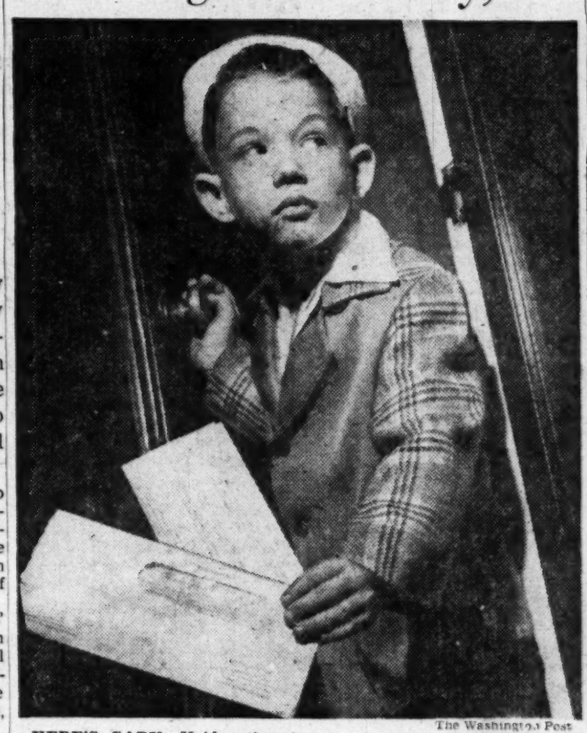
4. Receive and investigate all complaints about discrimination in employment, education and public places, and make recommendations for eliminating the cause of the complaints.

5. Recommend legislation for adequate protection of civil rights in the District.

Another section of the bill says that the commission is to make full use of the services and information of District and Federal agencies, and that these agencies are to give full cooperation to the commission.

The bill was sent to the Senate District Committee of which Neely is chairman.

Jury Commission's Warnings Fail to Register With Boy, 6



The Washington Post

HERE'S GARY—He'd rather be an aircraft mechanic than a juryman

Six-year-old Gary Moore can go back to playing cops and robbers today, without the threat of those formal letters from the Jury Commission hanging over him.

Gary, who resides at 1701 19th st. se., is just learning to read, but already he has received two letters from the commission in the last month. The last one informed him that he had better get on the ball about filling out that questionnaire on what he has been doing all these years, or else the courts might not like him.

Mrs. Walter Moore, his mother, said she opened the first letter for Gary and thought it was a joke. On the recurrence, she called up the commission and got an apology.

A spokesman for the Jury Commission explained it takes the names for jury lists from the city directory and the telephone book. Gary's name was taken from the directory.

The commission official suggested Gary's name might have been given to the checkers who canvassed the address without disclosing his age, or insertion of Gary's name might have been an error in compilation.

Directory officials could not be reached for an explanation.

As for Gary, his mother said the business of being a juryman was "over his head" when she told him about it. He is much more interested in becoming an aircraft mechanic like his father.

Gary is in grade 1-B at Orr School.

Equal Rights Program Set By Civic Units

A legislative program dealing with equal rights in the District will be submitted to Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), chairman of the Senate Disrtict Committee, by the District Federation of Civic Associations.

In a resolution adopted at a meeting last night in the District Building boardroom, the federation said Neely "has opened the door of hope and afforded us a vista of full democracy here . . ." A statement of suggested legislative needs was appended to the resolution.

The resolution urged Neely to make a "searching scrutiny" of the "curious" plan offered to Congress by a group of three real estate dealers and planners to relieve "the so-called slum clearance deadlock."

In its suggested legislative program, the federation commended Neely for introducing in the Senate S-2595, a bill creating a 25-member commission on human rights for the District.

Such a commission, the federation declared, would bring about a condition in the District where constituted authority would be able to handle racial issues and would result in elimination of racial and religious discrimination in the District Government and all of its departments and offices.

It was also suggested that Neely request an opinion from Attorney General J. Howard McGrath on the existence or non-existence of certain District civil rights laws enacted in 1872 and 1873.

The federation recommended that Congress remedy "the woeful lack" of public school buildings in the District with a building program, the costs to be met by long-range financing by the Federal Government.

The program also suggested increased funds for social welfare, creation of a District Department of Labor, and nactment of legislation to "safeguard first-class citizenship to all."

Fire-Hazard Letter Keeps Pupils Home

About 70 percent of the students at the Slowe Elementary Scho l were withdrawn from classes yesterday by parents on grounds that classroom overcrowding creates a fire hazard.

School and District officials promptly denied any fire hazard exists at the red brick school opened at 14th and Jackson sts. ne. in January, 1948.

Of 201 students who appeared for morning class, only 58 returned after the noon recess. The withdrawals followed circularization of a mimeographed letter signed by Dr. Frank M. Snowden, jr., chairman of the educational and recreational committee of the Slowe P-TA.

Dr. Snowden, chairman of the classics department and summer school head at Howard University, stated in the circular that he withdrew his daughter, Jane, 9, from class in the morning and that "some other parents are doing the same thing."

The letters, handed to children during recess to take home to parents, said the classrooms were designed to accommodate 42 students, but that one room has 45 and two others 46.

Dr. Snowden said he took action only after receiving no satisfaction from District officials. He said he would not return his child to school until officially assured no fire hazard exists.

He stated the following further remarks to a reporter: (1) completion of the school's second floor would provide two extra classrooms to eliminate "overcrowding" and pare down the number of grade levels now grouped in one room under one teacher; (2) there is no recreational facility in the area for Negro youths; (3) Slowe facilities are generally "woefully inadequate" while there are 17 vacant rooms and space for 331 more students at four nearby white schools.

Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Hayes, assistant Engineer Commissioner, told a reporter the school was inspected in September, 1948, and found to comply with egress regulations. Snowden received a letter to the same effect and showed it to the reporter.

A. K. Savoy, associate superintendent of Negro elementary schools, said that use of some classrooms at the school for 46 students was not a fire hazard since they are designed to accommodate 48.

Mrs. Alice Elam, divisional director of nine Negro elementary schools, said that the combination of as many as four grade levels in one classroom is necessitated by the small number of students in some classes and the rise in enrollment. She said the system is not "ideal but very workable."

PUC Rejects Gas Hearing Testimony On Mistakes

Research Expert Admits Errors in Figures Showing 11% Income Gain

Mistakes in the arithmetic of a research expert yesterday led the Public Utilities Commission to reject his testimony that the Washington Gas Light Co. made a higher financial return last year than it reported.

The gas company seeks to add $900,000 to its yearly income from District consumers by a 7-percent increase. Its books show a return of 4.25 percent on a total investment here last year of $32,594,990.

William A. Roberts, counsel for the Gas Consumers and Independent Dealers Association, which opposes the rate increase and the gas company's sale of appliances, was upbraided yesterday by a PUC member when he failed to show the company made an 11 percent return in 1948.

Roberts, on Thursday, placed on the stand George H. Harbaugh, executive secretary of Associated Professional Services, a research firm engaged by the appliance dealers' group to study the gas company's financial report.

Mistakes Admitted

Harbaugh testified then that his calculations, which showed the gas company made a 14.76 percent return in 1948, contained mistakes.

Yesterday he testified a restudy showed the company made an 11 percent return.

After lengthy questioning by PUC members and Stoddard Stevens, attorney for the company, however, he admitted he had made additional mistakes. The admission came after PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan declared Harbaugh's findings left him "thoroughly confused."

Cross examination by Stevens, and questions by commission members, showed that in at least one instance Harbaugh had made a "double allocation" in his figures amounting to more than $500,000.

Is "Utterly Amazed"

At this point, James W. Lauderdale, commission member, told Roberts:

"I am utterly amazed and surprised. You come in here and intervene, alleging one purpose to be shown—that this company is charging more than should be allowed—and then bring in a gentleman who I don't think is qualified.

"You have wasted time and money and I am utterly amazed."

Roberts retorted: "I am utterly amazed at you."

Flanagan asserted that the commission felt Harbaugh's report was so full of errors it could not be accepted. The errors, he said, were "very palpable and obvious."

Flanagan later informed Roberts he could submit a new study of the company's finances. The hearing will resume at 10 a. m. Monday in the board room of the District Building.

Practices Criticized

Testimony also was given yesterday by George C. Webster, trustee for the appliance group and chairman of the public utilities commission of the District Master Plumbers Association.

Webster charged that the gas company was in "unjust and unfair competition" with private plumbing firms.

He said the advertising fliers mailed with gas bills constitute an unfair competitive practice. He also asserted that free service work done by the company, with the ensuing good will, could not be overcome by private firms.

Stevens produced a photostatic copy of minutes of a meeting of the Master Plumbing Association that authorized spending of money "toward the end that the Washington Gas Light Co. shall terminate its merchandising business in gas heaters, gas refrigeration, gas ranges and water heaters."

Stevens told the PUC, which placed the document in the record, that the sole purpose of the intervention of the master plumbers in the rate hearing is elimination of the company's merchandising.

Sunshine, Cool Is Weather Outlook Today

Fall came on soggy wings yesterday, but the Weatherman promised things will be different today: Crisp and cool conditions for the first big football Saturday of the year.

From a low of about 48 this morning, the mercury will climb to the middle 60s and the day will be, in the words of the Weather Bureau, mostly sunny and cool.

The forecast is for fair and continued cool weather tonight.

You might have thought the skies were emptied of their rain after Thursday's deluge. They weren't. At 10:52 a. m. yesterday the rains really came and piled up .14 of an inch in nine minutes.

The skies shadowed almost to darkness. Lights in downtown buildings twinkled. Motorists turned on their lights.

Oh, yes, don't forget to turn back your clocks one hour tonight before you go to bed. Washington returns to standard time at 2 a. m. Sunday.

Fairfax, Scot Baron, Dedicates Cemetery

Mount Comfort Cemetery on King's Highway in Fairfax County, Va., was dedicated yesterday by Thomas McKelvie, Baron Fairfax of Cameron.

The baron, who is visiting in the United States from his native Scotland, is a descendant of the founders of Fairfax County. The dedication ceremony was conducted by clergymen from Alexandria and nearby Virginia communities.

In Seconds

Storm Gust Flings B-17 9000 Feet

A high-speed elevator in a tall building, with a drunken operator, would be child's entertainment compared with the trip of a B-17 plane that landed late Thursday night at Bolling Air Force Base.

Freak winds caught it over Virginia and West Virginia and tossed it about in the air like one of those balls used to demonstrate vacuum cleaner air volume.

According to the pilot, Lieut. William E. Hillsamer, of Marion, Ind., a storm updraft caught the ship and shot it up from 13,000 feet to 18,000 feet in a matter of seconds. Not long afterward, with no benefit of jet assists, it went from 9000 to 18,000 feet, also in seconds.

Both times, Lieutenant Hillsamer and his copilot Lieut. George F. Penfield, of Philadelphia, Pa., had to resort to acrobatic tactics to bring the ship back under normal control.

The B-17, dubbed the "Old Lady of the Air Force" was not built for such tactics, Bolling Base officers said, but is sufficiently strong to withstand them. The ship, bound from Montgomery Field, near Montgomery, Ala., to McGuire Field, near Philadelphia, Pa., came to Bolling as the nearest base.

Officers at Bolling, finding that the "Old Lady" had been severly strained, grounded the ship for repairs.

A dozen pasesngers, who apparently didn't have seat belts fastened, were inspected at Bolling Base Hospital and released. Officers said they bounced about in the ship like stones in a baby's rattle, but were not injured aside from bruises.

Speedy Driver Who Lied Gets 30 Days in Jail

A 22-year-old plumber who tried to conceal his bad traffic record from the judge received a 30-day jail term yesterday for speeding here at 60-65 miles an hour.

Judge Milton S. Kronheim, jr., of Municipal Court imposed the sentence upon Ralph Burroughs, 4448 Reservoir rd. nw., and lectured him severely.

Burroughs was arrested September 1 after police chased him along a winding course from Prospect and Wisconsin aves. to Edmunds pl. and MacArthur blvd. He was found guilty of exceeding the 25-mile speed limit in the chase that often exceeded the rate of 60 miles an hour.

Kronheim on September 8 imposed a 30-day jail term and a $200 fine but rescinded them when Burroughs declared there was but one other traffic violation against his record in the last two years.

A probation office check disclosed that since 1946, Borroughs has been convicted four times, including offenses of leaving after colliding and failing to yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian. He forfeited collateral on seven other occasions, and once previously was arrested for going 60 miles an hour here.

In addition, the probation office reported, Burroughs twice had his driver's license suspended and once went to traffic school as punishment.

After hearing this, Kronheim reinstated the jail sentence.

"The only way you can be kept from driving dangerously is to put you in jail," Kronheim lectured Burroughs. "You have already proven this. Every other remedy available to the public to make you a safe driver has been applied to no result.

"I am doing this as much to protect you as anyone else. Stringent measures are necessary before you kill yourself or someone else. I want you to sit in your cell and think over the possible consequences of driving as fast as that over a large area of the town."

Cowen to Represent U. S. in Far East Talks

President Truman yesterday nominated Myron Melvin Cowen, Ambassador to the Philippines, to represent the United States at the fifth session of the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East.

PHA Asserts It Has Right To Raise Rents

The Public Housing Administration will contend it had the right to raise rents at Greenbelt, Md., because the Government is excluded from provisions of the Rent Control Act of 1949.

This was announced yesterday in Baltimore by Assistant United States Attorney Norman P. Ramsey after a preliminary Federal Court hearing into a suit brought by tenants seeking to overturn the recent rent boost.

The suit was originally filed last June in Prince Georges County Circuit Court in behalf of two Greenbelt tenants, Thomas J. Canning and Francis J. Lastner.

Named defendant in the suit was Charles M. Cormack, community manager for the PHA at Greenbelt.

The tenants sought an injunction in the county to restrain PHA from putting through proposed rent increases. However, the PHA had the case removed to Federal Court in Baltimore and the rent increases went through.

Last June the Supreme Court held unanimously that another Government agency, the National Capital Housing Authority, was not bound by the District's rent-control law.

Woman, 23, New D. C. Polio Case; 1949 Total 162

One new polio case was reported in the District yesterday, boosting the Greater Washington total for the year up to 162.

A 23-year-old woman from the 2200 block of Massachusetts ave. nw. was the sixty-ninth reported in the city, as compared with 91 for this date last year. She was admitted to Gallinger Hospital on Tuesday.

District—69.
Fairfax County—11.
Montgomery County—22.
Arlington County—14.
Prince Georges County—40.
Alexandria—6.

Rep. Doyle to Speak

Representative Clyde Doyle (D., Calif.) will speak at the first fall service of the Rockville Layman's Association at 8 p. m. Sunday in the Rockville Presbyterian Church.

Escaped Patient, Held 'Dangerous,' Is Recaptured

Two hours after a psychiatric patient considered "dangerous" escaped yesterday from Walter Reed Hospital he was recaptured in Baltimore by military police and returned here.

The escapee, Robert V. Ritchie, 23, of Baltimore, was among a group of patients accompanied by two attendants en route to the hospital gymnasium when he bolted and ran through an open gate near Georgia ave. about 2:30 o'clock.

Move to Enable Vice Squad To Get Warrants Next Door

It will be more convenient for vice squadsmen to get arrest warrants under an arrangement which will go into effect about October 1.

The Office of the United States Commissioner, Cyril S. Lawrence, will be moved then from its 20-year-old location at 631 E. st. nw. to the Municipal Center, right next door to the vice squad.

The rent-free arrangement will prevail until the new courthouse is constructed.

Police officers were well aware of the advantages of the new setup. They said that it will enable undercover men to visit Lawrence's office without disclosing their identities to interested bystanders.

Failure of the vice squad to secure warrants in gaming arrests has drawn criticism from United States Attorney George Morris Fay who has said he will not prosecute cases growing out of warrantless arrests where evidence indicates a warrant might have been obtained.

Legislation Sought to Sell Outside Grade A Milk in D. C.

Representative Reid F. Murray (R., Wis.) called anew yesterday for legislation to legalize sale in the District of grade-A milk from any part of the country.

Murray made the appeal in testimony before a Senate Agriculture Subcommittee investigating the spread between prices paid to the farmer and those paid by the consumer.

Murray pointed out he had introduced a bill to legalize importation of milk from any State to the District, but the House District Committee has not acted upon it. He suggested the measure would lead to lower milk prices here.

New York, Sept. 23 (NYHT.).—More than 1000 persons attended the funeral of Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., wife of the former Secretary of the Treasury, today at Temple Emanuel. Morgenthau, who had been a patient at New York Hospital where his wife died Wednesday, was present with his two sons and daughter.

The chief eulogy was delivered by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, long an intimate friend of Mrs. Morgenthau. Dressed in deep black, looking pale and sad, Mrs. Roosevelt spoke from the pulpit.

"My deepest sympathy goes to her family," Mrs. Roosevelt said, "but I hope they will feel with me today a sense of gratitude that we have had her as long as we did, and that her influence will continue throughout our lives.

"We should have a sense of triumph that human beings can pass through this life and leave a challenge to better doing for all of us.

Dr. Julius Mark, senior rabbi, opened the service with the 19th Psalm and readings from John Donne's "Devotions." Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, rabbi emeritus, delivered the final eulogy, praising Mrs. Morgenthau's wide humanitarian, artistic and social interests, which she had been able to pursue because she was, he said, "a woman of high intellect as well as of deep affections."

Miss Frances Bible, Metropolitan Opera soprano and onetime protege of Mrs. Morgenthau, sang Mendelssohn's "O, Rest in the Lord," and Schumann's "Du Bist Wie Eine Blume."

Among those present were Bernard M. Baruch, Robert P. Patterson, former Secretary of War; Frank C. Walker, former Postmaster General; Nathan Straus, former Federal Housing Administrator; Benjamin V. Cohen, member of the United States Delegation to the United Nations; and Elliott Roosevelt.

Another Skin Job Has Mike Doing Nicely

Four-year-old Michael Rector, Casualty Hospital's most valiant patient, weathered his latest skin transplant operation "very" nicely yesterday, his physician reported.

Little Mike has been battling for his life ever since more than 70 percent of his skin was burned in an accident 10 months ago. Since then he has had 19 skin grafts from volunteers and the fifth transplant of epidermis from one part of his body to another was performed yesterday.

Dr. J. Rogers Young, chief surgeon at the hospital, said the operation was successful and Michael's condition is good.

Democratic Chiefs Support 3 Changes

Three recommendations submitted by a committee of Montgomery County Democrats to "revitalize" the party in the county have unanimously been adopted by the county Democratic State central committee.

The action was taken Thursday night at an executive session of the party steering group attended by members of the special committee, J. Bond Smith, chairman of the State central committee, said yesterday.

Most sweeping change in party policy was a decision to elect precinct leaders rather than to have them appointed by the central committee as in the past.

This recommendation was made by the independent committee, headed by Rockville Mayor G. Lamar Kelly, to provide "greater participation" by the party's rank and file in party procedure.

The central committee added a provision to the recommendation to set up the post of a cochairman in each precinct, to filled by a woman.

Other changes approved at the session provide for public meetings of the State central committee and the establishment of a publicity and speakers' bureau.

The committee voted to hold public meetings every Friday next month in Potomac, Gaithersburg, Bethesda and Damascus. Time and place of the meetings will be announced later.

Plans also were made to attend a harmony meeting of Sixth Congressional District Democrats Wednesday in Hagerstown.

Those attending the executive session expressed great enthusiasm over the party's prospects following adoption of the changes, Smith said.

The recommendations of the special committee had been approved at a mass meeting of some 250 Democrats last week in Rockville.

$21,095 Received For Arlington Hospital Fund

A total of $21,095 has been received so far in Arlington Hospital's $25,000 building fund drive, Administrator John J. Anderson announced yesterday.

Some reports have not yet been turned in, Anderson said yesterday, expressing hope the drive will reach the top before its closing date today.

The $25,000 is needed for a down payment on the hospital building, built by the Federal Government for $661,000 in 1944, and now offered to hospital trustees for $125,000 over a five-year period. Checks and contributions should be sent to Arlington Hospital, Arlington, Va.

$1873 Cash Lost, Says Rail Clerk

Kenneth F. McFarlane, chief clerk at the New York Central Railroad's office here, reported to police yesterday the loss of more than $2000 in railroad funds while walking on the street.

MacFarlane said he left his office at 15th and H sts. nw. with $1873.05 in cash and $230.43 in miscellaneous checks, all in a white envelope. Upon arriving at the American Express office, 624 14th st. nw., where he customarily sent the money to the New York office of the railroad, the envelope was missing.

MacFarlane said he retracted his steps several times, but did not find the envelope, which had been in an inside coat pocket next to a long billfold.

MacFarlane, who lives at 1332 31st st nw., said this was the first such accident that had occurred during the eight years he has been with the railroad.

School Bond Poll Issue Up in Fairfax

Possibility of a Fairfax County bond issue election for school contruction was revived yesterday when the school board asked for a meeting with the county supervisors to get their views on it.

The school members agreed at a Thursday meeting that some action must be taken immediately to ease overcrowding after learning that an increase of 1700 students over last fall has forced schools to use cafeterias, libraries, offices and basement rooms for classrooms. In some cases it was necessary to improvise classrooms in churches and community centers.

The county has had no source of building funds since the State Literary Fund dried up two years ago.

Several school members agreed with Board Chairman Fred Robinson Thursday when he said:

"I'm tired of hearing people say the school board doesn't know what it's doing. I'm in favor of letting the people decide at a referendum whether they want to put up the money for schools."

The board took no action on the bond issue proposal. It decided instead to talk the whole problem over with the supervisors first. No date has been set for the meeting.

There are two ways for obtaining a referendum in Virginia. One is by request of the board of supervisors to the Circuit Ciurt. The other is by a petition to the court signed by 10 percent of the county's qualifled voters.

This latter course was tried last year, but hit a snag, before it reached court, on the eligibility of Falls Church to take part. Falls Church has since become a separate school district. If that petition were to be presented names of Falls Church residents must be stricken from it, county officials said.

When the School Emergency Committee circulated the petition last year, the school board set immediate school needs at $7,500,000.

Blackmer Due To Plead Guilt On Tax Count

By The Associated Press

A Justice Department official said yesterday that Henry M. Blackmer will settle his score with the Government by a guilty plea to one of the 21-year-old tax evasion indictments standing against him.

The Government will then drop the five other indictments, charging tax evasion and perjury, this official said.

The action, if carried out, would subject the 81-year-old Denver millionaire, who has been in exile in Europe for the past 25 years, to a possible prison term of one year and a fine of $5000.

Blackmer, who fled to France to avoid testifying at congressional investigations into Teapot Dome oil scandals of the Harding Administration, arrived in Boston by plane three days ago. He entered a hospital there for a physical checkup before going on to his home in Denver.

Blackmer, while abroad, paid the Government a total of $3,600,000 to settle a civil suit to recover the old income tax claims. He also paid a $60,000 fine for contempt of the Senate by refusing to answer a subpena to testify in the Teapot Dome inquiry.

Attorney Joseph B. Keenan, who was United States prosecutor in the Tokyo war crimes trials, represented Blackmer in working out the agreement with the Justice Department

Youth Gets 3 Years, Fined $110 in Crash

A Capitol Heights, Md., youth was sentenced in Upper Marlboro Police Court yesterday to three years in the Maryland House of Correction on a manslaughter charge stemming from a fatal auto crash September 8.

Raymond Strine, 19, of 621 60th ave., Capitol Heights, not only was ordered to prison on the manslaughter charge, but was fined a total of $110 on reckless driving and hit-and-run charges, and was held for grand jury action on a charge of stealing the auto which police said was one of two involved in the fatal accident. Bond on the auto theft charge was set at $2000 by Judge Arthur P. Owens.

Strine, according to police, was the driver of an auto which collided with a station wagon driven by Clarence L. Reh, 17, 1300 52d ave., Hillside, Md., forcing it off the road and resulting in the driver's death.

According to testimony of Detective Vincent Free, Strine failed to stop at the scene of the accident, but was arrested about 24 hours later on a tip furnished by a citizen.

Housing Units In Alexandria Face Delays

Alexandria officials yesterday warned that Government approval of loans for 250 permanent low-cost housing units doesn't mean they'll be built immediately.

John Kerr, acting executive director of the Alexandria Redevelopment and Housing Authority, estimated it would be more than a year before the houses are ready for occupancy. The Public Housing Administration Thursday approved the city's application for funds under the new housing bill.

Before anything else can be done, Kerr said, the city must sign a "cooperation agreement" with the Government, whereby Alexandria will agree to accept a stipulated sum in lieu of taxes on the sites.

The main points of this agreement have been worked out, it was learned. It must be ratified by City Council, however, before it is effective.

Then, if the President approves the transaction, comes the job of finding sites and drawing up plans and specifications.

Total cost of construction was estimated by Kerr at roughly $7500 a unit, or a total of $1,875,000.

Hot Bouillon Helps

Cut Your Appetite Down To Size and Eat Slowly

This the sixth of 12 articles on teen-age slimming.

By Ida Jean Kain

YOU LOVE to eat . . . and now that you're dodging fattening snacks you come to the table HUNGRY. If you feel you couldn't possibly fill up on a moderate meal, try this plan—eat slowly. When you eat fast to fill the void, you enjoy only quantity, and it's fattening.

IDA JEAN KAIN

Use the tricks of the dietitian's trade to cut your appetite down to size. Start the meal with a hot bouillon. Get a package of bouillon cubes and fix it yourself . . . all it takes is a cup of hot water. The bouillon gives soothing comfort for 25 calories. Sipping it helps you to relax and eat the main course slowly.

Another help is to eat the salad before the main course. That's what many of the movie stars do. A bulky salad requires chewing, and the very act of chewing helps satisfy hunger. Just try eating a quarter head of lettuce, a mixed green salad or cole slaw first. Not too much dressing . . . one dessert spoonful is sufficient.

Have a slice of bread or a roll with the main course. But don't be a two-fisted eater, bread in one hand, fork in the other. It can double the calories. And do not refill the fork with more food until you have finished chewing the mouthful you're working on.

Avoid sipping ice water between mouthfuls. Water, being bland and cold, washes off the taste buds and stimulates appetite. If you have bouillon and a glass of milk with the meal, skip the water. Drink plenty of water between meals—it has no calories—but do not drink water with the meal or within an hour after eating, for that stretches the stomach.

Also restrict salt. Excess salt tends to postpone weight loss. Use only the amount of salt included in cooking. Get out of the habit of resalting all food at the table.

At the main course have one serving of everything, but do not take seconds on any food except the lean meat and the nonstarchy vegetables.

Allow 100 to 150 calories for dessert. If the family dessert is pie, it need not be passed up entirely. Have a 1-inch slice, measured across the top of the slice. Don't take a chance of having a 4-inch wedge placed in front of you, intending to eat only 1 inch! Your little brother can have the rest of your share—then it will be to his advantage not to tease you about diet. Fruit or cheese and crackers make a good low-calorie dessert.

Keep your after-school snack filling but not fattening. Bear in mind a candy bar or bag of peanuts can undo a whole day of careful eating. The less you eat sweets, the less you'll crave them Don't weaken . . . you don't need a consolation prize. Life is more fun for the gals of normal weight—and you're going to be the winner.

IT'S IN SECTIONS—Practically all the furniture in this room is from a smart new collection of sectional pieces by designer Harvey Probber. The sofas were assembled from the 17 different love seats, ottomans, chairs and corner pieces he has designed. The "wedge" coffee table in the center is made up of five different units, which have many uses. The collection was introduced this week at P. J. Nee's G st. store, now devoted entirely to modern furniture

Wedge Table Has 5-Point Home Utility

NEED a beautiful low coffee table? Extra benches for watching television? Small tables for serving buffet suppers? A modern corner bookcase?

You can have them all—though not simultaneously, of course—with one new piece of furniture designed by Harvey Probber, a Washington visitor this week. A five-part coffee table of dark cordovan mahogany, it was one of the stars of the opening of the "Dreamhouse of 1950," Thursday at P. J. Nee's G st. store.

Mr. Probber, a personable young man of 27, was here to present his unusual creations. He has been designing furniture since he was 17, except for time out for the war and a brief career as a night club singer in the Frank Sinatra manner.

Peas From Same Pod

"I QUIT my singing career the day I walked into an audition and found the room filled with 50 different Sinatras, all in bow ties," he says. Today, he inflexibly wears a four-in-hand, is recognized as one of America's outstanding young designers and manufacturers of modern furniture.

His "wedge" coffee table consists of a round nucleus surrounded by four pieces forming a larger circle. The latter can be used as separate tables or benches or stacked in a corner to make a bookcase. Besides the table, he presented his 17 different sofa units, for use together or individually, at Thursday's showing.

Jasha Heifitz—no relation to the violinist—was another visitor at the Nee opening, which comes at the beginning of national "Home Fashion Time." Mr. Heifitz is a former baritone (added proof that singing and furniture designing go hand-in-hand) and started his vocal career here in Washington more than 20 years ago. He now makes lamps, beautiful abstract creations

'Package' Room Unwrapped

A smart one-room apartment is included in the model rooms on display at the Nee G st. store, now devoted exclusively to modern. This is a "package" room and the entire collection of furniture can be purchased for a fixed price.

With the State Societies

Festive Week Ahead for Dixielanders

By Nicha Soure

DIXIELAND festivities will dominate the October 1 State society calendar with the opening of the Georgia and North Carolina social season.

At the Georgia dance, on October 1, new members of the society and recent arrivals in Washington from the Peach State will be honored. The dance will be held in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel at 9 p. m.

Mrs. Robert Ramspeck, president of the society, will receive the guests, assisted by Mr. Ramspeck, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thurston, Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Hinely, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bucholz, Mr. and Mrs. Renest Geeslin, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Tate, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Jackson, Miss Julia Reynolds and Ben Stembridge.

Working on the dance committee will be Mr. and Mrs. Earle Newman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gasque, the Misses Betty Ramspeck, Clarissa Wright, Martha Brown, Harriet McGuire, Jackie Stearns and Dorothy Winfree. Also Ben Stembridge, Wisner Ray, Lieut. William Solomon, Capt. Norman Creech, Bill Darden and Jack Jones.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee, plans were made for a varied program of activities for the Washington members of the Georgia Society, including receptions, bridge parties, dances and teas.

Mrs. E. B. Jackson will head the bridge committee, assisted by Mrs. Douglas Winfree, Mrs. S. Gordon Green, Mrs. Edwin Bowden, Mrs. Charles Napier and Marshall Giles.

For information about joining the society, call Ernest Geeslin, chairman of the membership committee, at Chestnut 2000, extension 260.

THE opening dance of the North Carolina State Society on October 1 will be an unusual, as well as gala, event. For that celebration will inaugurate the Golden Jubilee year of the Tar Heel group in the Nation's Capital.

Even before the Gibson Girl Era there were Tar Heel gatherings in Washington to which gay young blades squired their best girls. The formal organization, however, took place in 1900 to the tune of the "Blue Danube" and other waltzes of the day, and it is that occasion the society will celebrate during the 1949-1950 season.

A committee has been hard at work during the summer months planning a program that will entertain and interest all North Carolinians in the Washington area. Heading the list of the varied program is the costume dance of 1900 vintage to be held early in 1950.

The October 1 Tar Heel dance will be in the large ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel at 10 p. m. For the North Carolinians who are more interested in bridge than in dancing, card tables will be set up in the lower mezzanine. Reservations for bridge may be made with Mrs. Mary C. Murphy (OR. 0995) or with Mrs. Newman A. Townsend (DU. 5888).

Assisting with the card party will be Mrs. Edward B. Gibson, Mrs. A. P. Bauman, Mr. and Mrs. B. Braxton Jones, Miss Helen Whitaker, Mrs. Selma Carson Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Jacs Jackson Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spain, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oglesby, Miss Irene Whisenant, Mr. and Mrs. William Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Halstead, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. DeArmon, Mr. and Mrs. J. Latimer McClintock.

WOULD you like an old-fashioned New England baked bean supper?

If the answer is yes, the Massachusetts Society will be your host on Thursday, September 29, at the traditional New England affair. It will be held at Pierce Hall, 15th and Harvard sts. nw., at 7 p. m.

Besides the supper, guests will enjoy a social hour including dancing to midnight. For reservations call Bill Neagle at Temple 6431 before Tuesday.

TODAY'S STATE SOCIETY EVENT will be the Maryland annual fall dance at the Shoreham Hotel. The reception will be from 9:30 to 10 p. m. followed by dancing till 1 a. m. in the new ballroom.

THE FIRST of the quarterly meeting of the Conference of State Society Officers will be held on Monday at the Dodge Hotel. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m.

Mme. Pandit Points to USSR

Give Youth Great Music, She Asks

By Elizabeth Maguire

MADAME PANDIT, Ambassador of India, spoke yesterday of the musical advantages of Soviet children at the annual luncheon of the Women's Committee for the National Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. Truman was guest of honor, and the luncheon, which was held in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel, was attended by several hundred committee members.

"In Russia," Madame Pandit said, "all the well-known artists are conscripted to act or play for the children."

Just before her appointment as Ambassador to the United States, Madame Pandit served her country as Ambassador to the Soviet Union, and there she found that emphasis was placed on giving the best in art and music to the young.

Madame Pandit said there was an urgent need today for something to harmonize the conflict in the soul of the individual, and she felt nothing could do this quite in the same way as music. She ended her speech saying she hoped efforts would be made in this city to give all children the opportunity to appreciate music from their earliest years.

Mme. Pandit Impressive

THE GUEST speaker was a symphony in blue. Her steel gray hair was well set off by a two-tone sari in steel blue. Her beautiful voice and perfect delivery made poetry of her words, and her manner was as natural and gracious before hundreds of people as if she were in a small drawing room at home.

Others seated at the speaker's table were the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Louis E. Denfeld; Howard Mitchell, permanent conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra; Miss Frieda Hennock of the Federal Communications Commission, E. R. Fnkenstaedt, former president of the National Symphony Association; Raymond E. Cox, president of the National Symphony Association; Samuel Spencer, chairman of the National Symphony's Sustaining Fund Campaign; Dr. Robert M. Corning, Superintendent of the D. C. Public Schools; J. E. Mutch, manager of the National Symphony; Mrs. Sidney Sherwood, vice chairman of the ticket sale campaign; Mrs. William H. Arnold, chairman of the ticket sale campaign; Miss Sylvia Meyer, harpist of the National Symphony, and William Mann, flutist of the National Symphony; all of whom were introduced by Mrs. Theodore Dominick, chairman of the women's committee of the symphony.

Mrs. Truman Presented

EVERYONE rose as Mrs. Truman, the guest of honor, was presented. The First Lady wore a blue tweed suit, a small navy blue hat and blouse of white and navy blue print. Her daughter, Margaret, will open the Sunday series of the National Symphony on November 27. It will be Miss Truman's second appearance in her new tour beginning November 15 in Buffalo, N. Y. It will be her first appearance with the National Symphony Orchestra and her second in Washington.

To attend Margaret Truman's concert on the 27th, one must buy tickets for the entire Sunday series, which indicates a certain sell-out.

Yesterday's luncheon launched the National Symphony's ticket sale campaign for the nineteenth season. The first concern will be on October 26 with Yehudi Menuhin, violinist, guest artist.

How to Get Rid Of Silver Fish

Please tell me how I can get rid of silver fish that seem to have invaded everything from my linen closet to my food cabinets. C. B. J.

Silver fish thrive and multiply in damp, warm basements, attics, or in the damp walls of new buildings. Since you seem to have a sizable infestation I suggest you try to discover their source, giving special attention to those areas. Spray a 5 percent solution of DDT about base boards, door and window casings, closets, where pipes go through walls or floors, etc.

Silver fish hide in cracks and come out for food, so by spraying all cracks in your clothes and linen closets you will leave a deposit of DDT crystals which will kill them for several months as they come in contact with it.

Do not spray DDT into food cabinets unless all food has been first removed and then the shelves are allowed to dry completely before returning the food. All food returned to the shelves should be in closed containers to avoid contamination.

This method will not bring immediate 100 percent results, but in time there will be gradual reduction and eventually they will be completely eliminated if the DDT has been applied thoroughly.

We are considering the purchase of foam rubber mattresses. Will you please list in your column the advantages and disadvantages of such mattresses? Is it true that they are dangerously inflammable? R. N.

Foam rubber mattresses are light, clean, comfortable, resilient, cool, odorless, and durable.

Because rubber foam "breathes" as it is pressed, no dust collects in them. Also, there is no disintegration to make dust—a point of interest to allergic persons. Latex foam is vermin, mold, and damp proof.

The buoyancy of latex foam especially suits it to use as mattresses because the compression is in direct proportion to the pressure. It does not sag or mat down and the mattress requires no turning to keep shape.

Some firms make latex foam mattresses in several densities—soft, medium, and hard. The greater the density, the harder the mattress; the softer the mattress the less the density and more air spaces. In selecting a mattress it is wise to choose one to suit your weight and individual preference.

Latex foam products have been on the market since 1932, and it has been said that no one has ever seen one which was worn out—so it is durable.

It is interesting to note here that the man who developed the process for making latex foam is living in Washington. However, he prefers to remain anonymous.

As for inflammability, foam rubber will char but will not flame up and burn quickly. Therefore, from the standpoint of danger from fire, they are not any more hazardous than other types of mattress.

Capitol Musical Gets Out of Rut

By Richard L. Coe

THE CAPITOL'S "You're My Everything" is another Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolored musical—but it's a good one. Not zingy, but pleasant.

They've gone out of their way to avoid the usual teeth-clamping cliches of backstage yarns which may tend to give you the feeling that nothing is going on. But any backstage movie that lets the two-men-one-woman or two-women-and-one-man stuff lie in its musty grave strikes me, comparatively speaking, as okay.

Dan Dailey (they used to bill him "Dan Dailey, jr.") is the song and dance man of the '20s. Anne Baxter, as a prim Boston lass, very Lewisburg Square, sets her sights on him, lugs him home for dinner, marries him. When she helps him in the filming of a screen test, it's Anne they want, not Dan.

In most musical movies this would be the signal for Dan to go off on a massive bender to find a True Love. Nothing of the sort. Dan thinks it's swell that the movies want Anne, so she obediently jines up, becomes a Clara Bow flapper and the toast of the land. When talkies come along, that means exit for her, big time again for Dan. When musicals pfffft, does that mean a marital bustup, a starving chee-ild and home on the streets? Nope.

They get themselves the snaz-ziest ranch this side of St. Peter's gates and LOVE it. But their little girl is growing up with the talent of Shirley Temple. Anne says she shouldn't become a movie star. Dan says yes. That causes the only marital breakup of the picture, but you've been around long enough to know that can't last.

"YOU'RE MY EVERYTHING," a 20th Century-Foz release, produced by Lamar Trotti, directed by Walter Lang, screenplay by Lamar Trotti and Will H. Hays, Jr., based on a story by George Jessel. At the Capitol.

Songs of the '20's

Probably because so many other musicals have had such tremendous problems (bottles and blondes), all this may strike you as thin stuff. When you're used to having the lily gilded, it's a shock to find one reasonably life-like.

Apart from the songs and dances ("Varsity Drag," "I May Be Wrong, But I Think You're Wonderful," "Ain't She Sweet" and "The Good Ship Lollypop")) there are some lively forays into mores of the '20s, at which Miss Baxter is amusing. Alan Mowbray is whackily funny as a limp director and Shari Robinson is fine as the couple's little girl. Dan Dailey is his likable self.

There's a nice air about "You're My Everything," and if you don't expect chimes you'll rather enjoy it.

Miss MacArthur

THE PASSING of Mary MacArthur is one of the most heart rending stories of the American theater.

While the title, "Queen of the American Stage," has been given to several ladies, no star of recent history has been so widely loved as Helen Hayes. Her affection for her only child is theatrical legend. While no one can say what might have happened had Mary lived, even the most reserved critic would admit that Mary had made great strides in her brief acting career. With blood, theatrical environment, an unusually sweet nature and maturing talent in her favor, Mary's death at 19 is immeasurably sad.

And the personal heartbreak to Miss Hayes threatens her glowing service to the American theater. Only her stout heart and the prayers of her numberless admirers can aid her in the lonely years ahead.

When I first met Miss Hayes 10 years ago, Mary's name was proudly on her lips. She wrote of her in wartime letters while I was overseas. And just last week, when the seriousness of Mary's illness was not evident, we spoke at length about Mary's patient studies in drama work work and of her apprenticeship at Olney. Miss Hayes loved Olney because there Mary had been on her own.

The hearts not only of the theatrical profession, but of everyone across the world once gladdened by Miss Hayes' lustrous art, go out to her and Playwright Charles MacArthur in their heartbreaking loss.

'Amateur' Film at Dupont Moving

THE DUPONT has an interesting hour-long semidocumentary in "The Quiet One." This film was made by a small group of amateur picture-makers in New York and its approach has a sense of humanity not often found in more professional films.

Also on the Dupont bill is a study of youth in Israel made by the Hadassah organization. This shorter film is too like "The Quiet One" in theme and too lacking in simplicity to make a satisfactory companion. No matter how much you may admire the aims of both pictures, by the time you've seen them together, you've had all the elevation you'll want for a month.

Which is too bad, for "The Quiet One" has its points. It pictures the anguishing art of learning how to take one's place in humanity.

He's a miserably lonely little waif who takes out in anger his inability to find a place for himself.

He winds up in what must be a splendid school, Wiltwyck, where an admirable faculty lets him gradually find himself. How his spirit gradually unfolds, thanks to the understanding of a young master, and how hope replaces loneliness is compellingly pictured.

There are some memorable scenes—the boy listening to the jerky conversation of his mother and a friend, his miserable jealousy at watching the master treat other boys with the same friendliness he would prefer only for himself, and his frantic adventure in a tunnel as a train hurtles through.

Donald Thompson plays this lad finely. He is a professional actor, I'm told, but his fellow performers are all amateurs. It's a moving performance. James Agee's commentary and dialogue are narrated by Gary Merrill, and the cooperation between the school officials and the New York trio which made the film is impressive.

"Tomorrow's a Wonderful Day" is the Israel film, which also depicts a boy's integration into the society of his fellows. The pictures of the young state are interesting and presented with proud care.

But you can't help observing the youth movement feel of the picture. And the insistence on Love coming to the lonely lad, still suffering from the effects of prison-camps, is too Hollywood to ring true, especially alongside the unusual honesty of "The Quiet One."

R. L. C.

"THE QUIET ONE." Produced by Janice Loeb in cooperation with the Wiltwyck School for Boys. Screen play by Helen Levitt, Miss Loeb and Sidney Meyers. Directed by Mr. Meyers. Commentary and dialogue by James Agee. William Levill Levitt, associate producer. Music composed, arranged and conducted by Ulysses Kay. At the Dupont.

Vitamin B12 Held Cure For Spinal Ailment

Chicago, Sept. 23 (AP).—Degeneration of the spinal cord—one of the most serious complications of pernicious anemia—can be cured by early treatment with vitamin B12, three Mayo Clinic doctors said today. The report was made in the Journal of the American Medical Association by Drs. Byron E. Hall, Frank M. Kruse and Henry W. Woltman of Rochester, Minn.

Hotel Resident Found Unconscious

Florence Warner, 40, a Wardman Park Hotel resident, was found in her bed in an unconscious condition about 8:30 a. m. yesterday, by Henry T. Miskel, house detective, and Mary Cooper, maid, who were investigating her failure to answer her telephone.

Dr. Robert F. Owen, of the Wardman Park, who examined her at the scene, told police she had taken an overdose of sleeping tablets. She was transferred to Garfield Hospital, where her condition was described as "fair."

A bottle containing 60 tablets was reported found in her bathroom. The hotel described her as a radio writer and said she had been living there about a year.

8000 Merchants File Tax Returns For $705,000

About 8000 District merchants have filed sales tax returns totaling more than $705,000 in first month's collections, Sales Tax Administrator Allan F. Brooke reported yesterday.

About 250 of these were filed late and included the 5 percent penalty fee.

Next week, 13 auditors will begin tracking down delinquents among the estimated 2500 retailers who applied for certificates, but failed to submit returns, Brooke said.

Net income of Potomac Electric Power Co. totaled $358,469 in August, a gain of 24.56 per cent over the same 1948 month. It was the eighth consecutive month of improvement, reflecting the increase in electric rates authorized in July, 1948.

For the first eight months this year, Pepco reported net income of $3,129,939 or an increase of 28.6 percent over the same 1948 period. This year's figures include a $88,200 refund of Federal income taxes applicable to prior years.

Comparing the results for the first eight months of 1949 with the same period last year, operating revenues were up 15.36 percent; fuel and interchange costs were up 9.76 percent; labor costs were up 2.19 percent, and total operating expenses were up 6.69 percent. Taxes soared 80 percent. Provision for depreciation was 5.36 percent higher.

Masonic Temple's Leaning Elevators Not Unique After All

Those leaning elevators at the Alexandria Masonic Temple, it seems, are not so unique after all.

A statement saying they were unique was made in a story about the temple printed in The Washington Post yesterday. Between the continual ring of telephones, it was gleaned that leaning elevators exist in such places as:

(1) Eiffel Tower in Paris.

(2) Bok Tower at Lake Wales, Fla.

(3) In Boston, where an elevator travels in a slightly nonperpendicular course between a subway and the surface.

A leading elevator manufacturing concern, incidentally, was asked about it all. They didn't know of any other leaning elevators, but, come to think of it, they had once installed a curved shaft in a dirigible hanger in Ohio.

So be it.

Newscaster Thomas Hurt Seriously

New York, Sept. 23; Lowell Thomas, 57, newscaster, was seriously injured when thrown from a horse in a steep mountain pass in the Himalayas, his office said today.

The extent of his injuries was not learned but his office said the United States Air Force had been asked to rescue him from the tiny mountain village of Gyantse.

Thomas recently left Tibet with a message from the Darai Lama to President Truman. His son, Lowell, jr., 25, was with him and reporedly saved his life.

The accident occurred in 17,000-feet-high Karo Pass as Thomas was returning to India on horseback from a visit to the Tibetan capital of Lhasa. Tibetan bearers carried him for six days to the village of Gyantse.

His son reported that an Indian doctor there was unable to diagnose the injuries because of a lack of X-Ray equipment. The doctor said it was impossible for Thomas to proceed.

The broadcaster's office said it had appealed to Air Secretary Symington directly for help and understood the Air Force would attempt a rescue by helicopter and transport plane.

Jobless Payments Over 170 Million; New Monthly High

Jobless payments made by States reached a new monthly high of $170,629,000 in August.

Robert C. Goodwin, director of the Labor Department's bureau of employment security, said the record outlay was due to a high volume of continued claims from mid-July to mid-August.

He said other factors were that a number of States had just boosted their benefit amounts and that veterans formerly receiving veterans readjustment allowances were filing unemployment claims.

Goodwin said a downward trend in new claims actually started in late August but did not bring about a reduction in benefits that month because of the time lag between claims and start of payments. He said that for the week ended September 17 initial claims indicating new unemployment numbered 234,711. Continued claims that week were 1,968,450.

The average weekly payment to beneficiaries in August was $20.51, the highest such figure since the unemployment insurance program went into effect.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—AMONG MY SOUVENIRS: A ticket for a flight from San Diego to Los Angeles, on the 6:30 plane. All day long the reservation desk had notified me I was No. 9 on the waiting list. I went to the airport at 6:20, and immediately was booked for the flight . . . "Why did you keep telling me I was No. 9 on a waiting list?" I asked the reservation clerk . . . "You were No. 9, but cancellations came in," the clerk explained. "Oakland's playing San Diego at the ball park today. The Oakland team just canceled its flight because the score's still tied in the fifteenth inning."

AN AFFIDAVIT I wrote for Orson Welles when, during his marriage to Rita Hayworth, he joined my table at the Stork Club and saw some movie columnists who disliked him. Welles felt they would publish reports which might disturb Miss Hayworth—reports that he was drinking and romancing other ladies in the night club . . . I wrote the affidavit, attesting to the fact that Welles was sitting there only with me, that we were drinking only coffee and that no ladies were with us. This affidavit was duly signed, witnessed, notarized and mailed to Miss Hayworth . . . "And poor Rita," said Otto Preminger, when he heard it, "poor Rita believed it."

A COPY of a letter to Clifton Webb, advising him that I would arrive in Hollywood the next week and that if he hoped to avoid seeing me he should begin making a series of previous appointments . . . Three days after the letter was air-mailed, Hedda Hopper, reported in her column: Clifton Webb, in a sudden change of plans, leaves tomorrow for New York, two weeks ahead of schedule."

A NIGHTCLUB photo taken with Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota. He was wearing a dinner jacket, and looked the well-dressed man . . . I complimented him upon his taste, and reminded him that the first time I had met him, when he was Mayor of Minneapolis, he was wearing brown and white shoes. "Aren't brown and white shoes proper?" he asked, and I cited some fashion authorities who had ruled that such shoes are outmoded and no longer are worn especially in night clubs, by gentlemen who have taste . . . A few minutes later Noel Coward entered the room, and the fastidious playwright-actor who exudes sophistication was wearing brown and white shoes.

A GOLF score made in the annual golf tournament sponsored by The Washington Post and the Attorney General. I was placed in a foursome with Arthur Godfrey, Lefty Grove and Attorney General Tom Clark. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder was the scorekeeper assigned us. At the end of each hole Mr. Snyder asked us: "What's your estimated number of strokes?', and in the hope that he'd believe this was a habit inculcated in our preparation of tax-returns, we all over-estimated . . . Mr. Snyder retired after four holes. "I cannot tabulate such large figures," said the Secretary of the Treasury, "unless I am assisted by a staff."

Band Leader Conked

Hollywood, Sept. 23 (U.P.).—Desi Arnaz, bandleader-husband of Actress Lucille Ball, was recovering today from a scalp wound suffered when a waiter dropped a tray of dishes on him at a crowded Sunset Strip night club.

TRY IT — TURN A HAT-BOX INTO A MERRY-GO-ROUND

Riding a Merry-Go-Round is great fun and puts everyone in a happy mood. Even the name suggests that you have a merry time as you go round and round. Did you ever think of how much fun it would be to design and make a Merry-Go-Round? Only a few people have the pleasure of constructing and painting a big one, but you boys and girls can have the fun of putting a model one together.

The most important part of the model is to get a hat box which is big and round. If it is the wrong color or covered with printing, paste a sheet of clean white paper all over the box and start your decorating. If you are not an artist, cut out pictures of animals and paste them around the box.

To arrange for turning select a dowel rod to use as an axle, and bore a hole in a block of wood to hold it upright. Slip a spool over the rod to serve as a pivot for the box, which should be punctured in the center of the top and bottom and slipped on the rod. Have a merry time with your Merry-Go-Round.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

It doesn't take much to amuse the young child. One favorite activity is hammering. Yet, because of the noise and the danger that he may mash a finger or thumb, most parents are reluctant to permit it.

A very popular toy on the market today is one in which large pegs can be pounded through a board with a light wodden mallet. Then the board may be turned over and the hammering started all over again. The 2, 3 and 4-year-old will enjoy this activity very much. Nor is the noise excessive or the possibility of injury very great.

As youngsters grow older, they are quite capable of using a junior-size real hammer. Provided with soft pieces of wood and assorted nails, they will spend happy times making all sorts of contraptions or even enjoy just the process of pounding nails into boards.

Naturally, there is is the possibility of a bruised finger, but with a little supervision and training at the beginning, most youngsters will learn to handle their hammers with surprising skill.

Matter of Eating

I like to gather groceries . . . And stock the highest shelf . . . To please my wife and youngsters and . . . To satisfy myself . . . And now and then I really buy . . . A lot of things to eat . . . Including milk and vegetables . . . And cereals and meat . . . And then the pantry shelves are filled . . . Until they overflow . . . And there is plenty to appease . . . And help the children grow . . . But it is never long before . . . The cabinets are bare . . . And all the plain and fancy foods . . . Have vanished into air . . . And as I write my grocery list . . . And try to stretch my pay . . . I marvel at the speedy rate . . . We stow the stuff away.

BARNABY

If Barnaby has developed this new interest in television, it may be the means of getting his mind off that imaginary Fairy Godfather. If we had a set. . . .
Well—
I haven't seen my Fairy Godfather since Paddy's Bar and Grill put in that old television set. He just hangs around there—
I don't see why you care.
Now we can play and have fun. Your Fairy Godfather always butts in and spoils everything—
You're just jealous!—Because you don't have a Fairy Godfather—
Television sets are rather expensive—
Yes. Too bad I don't have a Fairy Godfather. To wave his magic wand over the family budget at times like this—

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

It's Too Late for Tears After the Accident Has Happened

"I am sending this to your column," writes Weston Dodson of 4657 S. 34th st., Arlington, Va., "because I want to reach the many young folks who are among your readers. They are being unfair.

"For a long time, I have been reading about the 'accidents' that occur so frequently on our highways. These things happened to strange names, at odd places, and meant little to me.

"The only thing that impressed me was that so many of these 'accidents' involved drivers between the ages of 18 and 30.

"But a few evenings ago a car driven by a friend of mine was struck head-on by an auto driven by a 22-year-old boy, who explained that he had skidded.

"My friend escaped serious injury. But his wife, riding beside him, was killed instantly.

"There is quite a thrill in feeling the power of a good machine within your grasp. You can guide it in and out through traffic, and cause it to obey your slightest command. But this can be done with some degree of safety only after you have become sufficiently experienced to know your car's 'feel' and response under adverse driving conditions.

"And a good driver never overdrives. It's the inexperienced driver—filled with the overconfidence of youth—who rushes headlong into 'accidents.'

"No amount of remorse—no punishment meted out by an angry court—can bring back my friend's wife, nor return a mother to her two lonely children. Neither can any act of official clemency erase the memory of the havoc that has been wrought."

HE'S ALSO AN EXPERT ON POOL SHARKS

Hazel Ray tells me that our Walter Haight is regarded as an authority by some budding scientists, and that the Northeast Branch of the Public Library has taken due note of Walter's erudition.

The Children's Room at the library displays a collection of shark's teeth collected by a 12-year-old, and also Haight's newspaper article on the origin of shark's teeth.

And just think—the little moppets who today press their noses against that display case will some day grow up to study Walter's dispatches from Bowie and Laurel.

There they will learn to distinguish the sharks from the poor fish by noting whether they spend the afternoon buying tickets, or cashing them.

CLUB NEWS

Eve N. Smith of 24 Tuckerman st. nw. asks me to inform other members of the District Line Club that she and her husband have good excuses for missing the last meeting.

Mamma Smith was busy hitting the jackpot with a 7-lb.-4-oz. bouncing baby boy, and Papa Smith had to stay home to play nursemaid to his daughters.

Incidentally, club members are invited to turn out for the next meeting this Monday, September 26 (Petworth Library, Georgia ave. and Upshur st. nw.) at 8 p. m.

No business will be transacted. The entire evening will be devoted to entertainment—including movies.

Non-members who want information about joining can get it from W. M. Devine of 234 F st. nw. (Metropolitan 3855).

AGAIN?

Mrs. Clara Kennedy of 6128 New Hampshire ave. nw. calls attention to a recent classified ad which offered day care service for "prewar children."

They ought to be more specific. Pessimists warn that today's kids are also "prewar."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two cute 6-week-old kittens, half-Persian; one is white, the other gray striped," (Chestnut 0319).

"Lovable year-old mixed breed dog, mostly police." (Falls Church 0548.)

"Two-month-old tan and white male kitten." (Shepherd 9247.)

"Intelligent, gay, housebroken 6-week-old kittens; part-Siamese." (Chestnut 3449.)

"Prettily marked, sweet little part-Persian male kitten, 3 months old." (Tuckerman 3064.)

"Six assorted kittens, each more charming than the next." (Atlantic 6153.)

"Intelligent, well-mannered 7-month-old female collie; we're moving into an apartment." (Vienna 195-W.)

"Two housebroken 8-week-old kittens." (Michigan 4485.)

"White, male spitz pup, 4 months old; loves children." (Ordway 3035.)

"Aristocratic young Georgetown alley cat mother and two month-old male kittens." (Hudson 7166.)

THOSE BIKES AGAIN

William Osten of 1436 Fairmont st. nw., who is better than a green hand with bicycles, has a postscript to a letter printed here recently about two-wheelers.

My correspondent had complained that motorists have no regard for the rights of bike riders, and endanger their lives.

District Liner Osten replies: "I started riding a bike in Vienna—a city which had 100,000 autos and 300,000 bicycles. I have traveled from Vienna to Holland by bike and, in all, I've covered 35,000 miles in this manner in Europe and in this country.

"In Europe, a bicyclist obeys the traffic rules; motorists respect his rights.

"Over here, cyclists go through red lights, travel on the wrong side of the street, endanger pedestrians and expect motorists to stop suddenly to avoid them. If they'd obey the laws, the attitude of motorists would change."

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. H. F. Custer, Griffinsburg, Va.: Baseball is a business, as well as a sport. If Griff were to okay the replacement of Nat broadcasts by the Yankee-Red Sox series, he'd (in effect) be saying that the Nats aren't worthy of our attention any more. And the Old Fox has too much fighting heart to ever say that.

Norbert N. Tenenbaum, 3024 Wisconsin ave.: You mean he's really going to stay on that flagpole until Cleveland climbs into first place? Won't he get awfully cold up there during the winter?

Marian S. Lamont, 3350 Chillum rd., Mount Rainier, Md.: Help is on the way; I've passed your complaint along to our circulation director.

COAL STRIKE

Each time the sun starts
headin' South,
And nights begin to chill,
John Lewis gets his shovel boys
All set to make a kill
While John Q. Public sits around
And wonders where he'll stop;
If he don't quit it pretty soon
I'll swear: I'm going to pop!

G. A. Fisher,
1442 Spring rd. nw.

PAINTER WITH A SENSE OF HUMOR

For the past week, a work crew has been partitioning off a corner of The Washington Post's city room, to make a new office for our managing editor.

Yesterday the new installation was painted, and the painters posted the usual "Wet Paint" signs. Then they added a special touch.

Apparently somebody told them that newspaper reporters are a curious lot—the kind of people who don't believe "Wet Paint" signs, and have to rub an experimental (and smudgy) finger over the surface anyhow. So our painters smeared an extra dab of paint on the bottom of the sign, and added the invitation:

"Test Here."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Lewis Welfare Cry Called Hoax

By Drew Pearson

When John L. Lewis sent the strike call down the line—"No welfare payments, no work"—it was one of the biggest hoaxes he has ever pulled on both his miners and the American public.

Lewis

For, actually, the welfare payments were being made. Not a single Northern operator had suspended payments. They were living up to the spirit of the contract even when no contract existed.

And in the South only three or four operators, including the Island Creek and the Pond Creek companies of West Virginia, had stopped the payments.

In other words, Lewis penalized all the operators who were cooperating—which was 99 per cent of them—on the false pretext that the Southern operators were not contributing to the welfare fund.

Real fact, however, is that Lewis wanted an excuse for a general walkout without leaving himself open to possible court action by personally calling a strike. Thus, he made it appear that a great many operators were withholding the royalty payments on coal tonnage.

Lewis vs. Murray

The real reasons for Lewis's tactics in fomenting the strike at this particular time were:

1. He has always wanted to bargain in the fall as the cold season sets in rather than in the spring when demand for coal diminishes.

2. Lewis has spent the welfare portion of his welfare-pension plan so extravagantly that he has to have more money. It has not been the fault of the operators that this fund has been dissipated.

3. Lewis wanted to humiliate and embarrass his old friend and now enemy, CIO Chief Phil Murray.

The President's fact-finding board in the steel dispute has already recommended 10 cents an hour in welfare-pension benefits for steelworkers. This is relatively the same amount as Lewis gets from the coal operators. Therefore if Lewis, by striking now, is able to wangle even 2 or 3 cents more royalty out of the coal operators he will be able to preen his feathers at Murray and boost that he is a much better friend of labor.

Meanwhile and to satisfy Lewis's vanity, the entire Nation will soon be short of coal despite the fact that all but three or four of the coal operators were continuing to make payments into the miners' welfare-pension fund even though they had signed no contracts.

Truman's Legion Days

When dynamic Clyde Lewis called at the White House the other day, President Truman warmly congratulated him on being the first World War II vet to be elected national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"But," added Truman, with a twinkle in his eye, "you fellows don't have the pep of us World War I boys."

Then he recalled that during an American Legion convention in Kansas City some years back he and a few cronies led a bull into the lobby of the Muehlbach Hotel.

"And do you know what the critter did?" continued the President in mock horror. "He had an accident right on the floor. The spot's still on the hotel rug."

Note—Lewis, whose politics differ from Truman's, remarked afterward to friends: "I'm a rock-ribbed Republican, but you can't help liking Mr. Truman."

Prodigal Senator Back

Idaho's repentant Senator Glen Taylor, who broke with the Democrats to run for Vice President on the Henry Wallace ticket, came face to face the other day with the man he revolted against—Harry Truman. This was their first meeting since Truman secretly summoned Taylor to the White House in 1948 and begged him to stay true to the Democratic Party.

But the President seemed to hold no grudges. He was standing in front of his desk when Taylor was ushered into the office and gestured as if to welcome back the prodigal son.

After a cordial handshake, the President escorted Taylor over to a globe of the world and gave it a spin to Iran.

"I'm expecting a visit from the Shah of Persia," explained Truman. Then he mused, half to himself: "I'll probably have to send my plane for him."

"You'll probably be criticized," warned Taylor.

As they sauntered back to the presidential desk, the Senator from Idaho congratulated Truman on his "great victory."

"I was happy to see you elected," declared Taylor, earnestly.

The President replied that he had been through the same thing before in Missouri where he wasn't supposed to have a chance. But by going to the people with his case, he always won.

The presidential campaign, remarked Truman, "was the same thing as before only on a bigger scale."

When the subject of more recent politics was brought up, Taylor observed: "I have voted with you on every domestic issue, but I still can't agree with your get-tough foreign policy."

"That is the only way to handle the Russians," declared the President with conviction.
